School Lunch Spinach

Bryce Angell

I noticed all the spinach cans stacked high up on the shelf.
Not a single can was selling. Must be others like myself.
The pickled beets were sold. They'd placed 'em on the shelf that morn.
And spinach even took back seat to old time canned creamed corn.
My loathe for spinach got me thinking back to second grade.
I was standing in the lunch line, kinda timid and afraid.
The gal, behind the counter, with her hair up in a net, served me corn and fried potatoes and some homemade buttered bread.
I must admit my old school lunch was looking mighty fine.
Until she plopped the spinach and expected me to dine.
I tilted back the plate to keep the spuds from spinach juice.
There's nothing worse for eating with your spinach on the loose.
I gobbled up my corn and spuds then gazed down at my plate.
The spinach wouldn't vanish. Was I destined to my fate?
Well, Jackie Johnson drank her milk then wore the widest grin.
She opened up the carton and she spooned the spinach in.
So, I tore my carton till the top was open to a square.
Then dumped the spinach, sealed the lid, and scurried out of there.
But the dang lunch lady grabbed my carton, shook it up a bit.
I told her it was clabbered milk. She wasn't having it.
I wondered, "Should I cut and run?" My legs were short but fast.
But then I heard the principal. His word would be the last.
The principal spoke up and said, "Don't open up that stink!"
He threw the carton in the trash and shot me his side wink.
That day in spelling class I learned to spell a word so well.
'Cuz three letters ending principal are P.A.L. my pal.

Inaugural BTC406 Gala celebrated community leaders, Oct 6th

The Be the Change 406 Coalition honored area educators, a BCHS senior, and community advocates, as individuals who make unique and lasting contributions to area youth and our community by their time and efforts. BTC targets the reduction of underage substance use due to the negative impact it has on youth brain development and future success in life. "Their commitment to reducing risk factors and increasing protective factors for our kids and our community means we live in a healthier and more resilient environment because of their dedication," according to Elementary School District #10 Superintendent Randy Shipman, who served as the evening's master of ceremonies.

More than 100 invited guests shared dinner conversation and applauded the different recipients as the surprised individuals came to the podium to accept their awards.

Be the Change 406 Youth Coalition President Evey Hansen was the first recipient honored for her extraordinary commitment to and support of the youth group for the last three years. Project AWARE Coordinator Andrea Schurg praised Evey for her leadership skills and strong volunteerism commitment. "She is well respected by her peers…and brings a strong presence. Evey often offers suggestions for youth activities, and is the first to volunteer."

Schurg explained Evey's leadership made a significant change in the annual Labor Day Concert due to her proposal to the Dillon Jaycees in 2019 to reserve an "alcohol free zone" for youth attending the event. "We will never know how many lives she positively influenced, but I guarantee she helped to pave a permanent road for those that follow in her footsteps" Schurg said as she awarded Hansen the inaugural "Student Service" award. She is the daughter of Holly and Burke Hansen, M.D.

A series of "Youth Impact Awards" went to elementary, middle school, and high school educators for their positive influence on youth, both as their students, or when coaching, creating, or engaging area youth in other aspects of their lives. Parkview Elementary Principal Greg Fitzgerald said kindergarten teacher Timi Miles "embodies what is needed for students to be successful both in the classroom and the community." Miles has taught a variety of different grades at Parkview, and her "willingness to help others succeed is evident when you see the impact she has on her peers and students." Fitzgerald said Miles embodies the statement "The best thing about being a teacher is that it matters. The hardest thing about being a teacher is that it matters every day."

Dillon Middle School Principal Joel Rogers kidded his Youth Impact recipient, Physical Education teacher Rami Williams, as "someone with a quirky Canadian/Corvallis/ Ohioan accent", who has touched the lives of 8,000 students in his 30 years of teaching, along with another 4,000 student athletes while coaching a variety of sports. Rogers spoke of one incident that cemented his admiration for the award winner: "As Rami looked at his paycheck in the office, he said out loud, "Can you believe we get paid to do this and hang out with kids all day long?" Rogers said: Not only will I remember those words for the rest of my career, but most importantly use them to challenge myself or others."

Another "Youth Impact" awardee was Beaverhead County High School Computer s Science and Business teacher Megan Conrow. Assistant BCHS principal John English said that Megan successfully blended the mission of the "Be the Change" into her Key Club organization helping those students to find leadership roles in helping their peers make good decisions. She has served as a life link to the high school, coordinating events, and making "Be the Change" part of our school culture. Conrow was unable to attend the Gala but said later both former and current students, and many of their parents reached out to congratulate her on the award. "It is a special honor, and I am humbled to be respected as an individual that has had a positive impact on the youth of this community," she said. "Be the Change 406 has had such a positive impact on our community; the work you all do makes a difference and is very much appreciated."

Principal Gary Haverfield presented the final educator award to Zach McCrae, who teaches high school History and coaches football and basketball. Haverfield repeated how "proud" he was of McCrae, knowing him for many years, both in and outside of the school setting. "Zach is without question an advocate for students. He prides himself and works hard to be a positive role model for students."

BTC 406 Prevention Specialist Kim Martinell provided a history of the coalition in Beaverhead County, beginning in 2015 with federal funding from a Drug Free Community Grant. This anti-drug program provides grants of up to $125,000/annually to selected community coalitions to mobilize their communities by preventing youth alcohol, tobacco, illicit drug, and inhalant abuse. The grants support coalitions of youth; parents; media; law enforcement; school officials; faith-based organizations; fraternal organizations; State, local, and tribal government agencies; healthcare professionals; and other community representatives. BTC406 is able to "strengthen their coordination and prevention efforts, encourage citizen participation in substance abuse reduction efforts, and disseminate information about effective, evidence-based prevention programs", Martinell said.

The two final awards continued the 'surprise element' and included BTC 406 Chair Katherine Buckley-Patton who received the "Community Impact Award" and Martinell receiving the "Outstanding Individual Award." Buckley-Patton has a knack for writing grants and is responsible for bringing millions of dollars to Beaverhead County which has been used in raising awareness and educating residents of all ages in prevention. Martinell received kudos not only for the current recognition, but also for her recent receipt of the statewide Montana Children's Trust Fund award for "strengthening Montana's children" through her dedicated advocacy.

Martinell is "our 'secret weapon'…our energizer bunny, according to Buckley-Patton. "She was the beginning of our coalition. She mothered it and took care of it in the infant stages, and as we hit adolescence, she remains our ever-present cheerleader, confidant, and shining light." The Outstanding Individual Award was meant for Kim, she said. "The Be the Change 406 Coalition has positively impacted social norms in southwest Montana, but Kim laid the ground work, continues to agitate for ongoing change, and is never, never without her remarkable heart, kind soul, and never-ending commitment to Beaverhead County youth."

The Coalition is always looking for volunteers to support their ongoing efforts in regards to reducing underage substance use, building protective factors, and reducing risk factors in our community. For more information, please contact Kim Martinell at bethechange406@yahoo.com, or 406.596.1284 or visit their website at: bethechange406.org.
