Montana Western to NAIA football playoffs

Montana Western's dream season continues.

as reported by 406mtsports.com

In addition to reaching eight wins for the first time since 1995, the Bulldogs learned Sunday that they would be representing the Frontier Conference in the NAIA Football Championship Series, according to a Sunday release from the Frontier.

Montana Western (7-3, 8-3) defeated Rocky Mountain College on Saturday to secure a Frontier Conference co-conference championship along with College of Idaho. Since the Bulldogs (No. 18) finished in the Top 20 of the latest NAIA coaches' poll, they received a bid over the No. 21 Battlin' Bears and will go into the playoffs as the No. 16 seed. Once College of Idaho lost to Carroll College on Saturday, there was little suspense that it would get the bid. The Yotes did round out the poll at No. 25, though.

Western will face unbeaten and top-seeded Lindsay Wilson (Ky.) (10-0) on Saturday in Columbia, Kentucky.

The playoff field is comprised of 12 automatic qualifiers and four at-large berths. In order to qualify for an automatic bid, teams must win their conference regular-season title. At-large berths were determined by the NAIA Football National Selection Committee. Teams who earned an at-large berth must be ranked in the Top 20 of the final NAIA coaches' Top 25 poll.

Saturday will mark the Bulldogs' fifth playoff appearance and first since 2002. Montana Western is 1-3 all time in the NAIA playoffs.

Cowboys Playing Cards

Bryce Angell

We gobbled down our bread and gravy, readied for the game. One cowboy'd hit the covers. 'Twas a doggone dirty shame.

We sat around the table. Every eye was glued on me. The table top was dimly lit, too dark for me to see.

So, I cranked up my old lantern. I saw hope in every eye. I dealt each player from the deck. One scowled, "The stakes are high!"

A cowboy hollered, "Before we start, bartender pour a round." The bar-tend gave a nasty look but didn't make a sound.

But then she walked on over and she poured the drinks with ease. She thumped the cowboy on the hat. Said, "Next time make it please."

The cowboy kinda grinned cuz he was barely nine years old. His mother weren't no bartender, just caring for her fold.

My daughter poured em chocolate milk, then gave a look at me. "Make sure they get to bed on time and see that they go pee."

She gave each one a kiss goodbye, then slipped on out the door. I knew she'd rather be at home. I'd seen that look before.

Then one of them spoke up. Said, "Grandpa teach us how to win." His hat was sitting down so low I could barely see his chin.

So, we started out with Crazy 8, then Slap Jack and Go Fish. Not one game did I win a hand. My losing was their wish.

Playing cards with my grandkids is where I want to be. Especially when we're acting like we're cowboys living free.

And one thing is for doggone sure. They'd be my favorite crowd. No matter if they're hard at cards or even when they're loud.

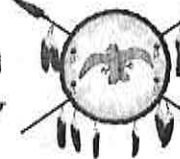

For now, we'll think we're cowboys and for sure the best of pards. And I pray they'll always cherish time with Grandpa playing cards.

Artist Reception at Tendoy Fine Art

Tendoy Fine Art Gallery in Dillon, MT will be hosting a reception on Saturday, November 20, 2021 between 2 and 5 pm highlighting an invitational show of works by photographer, Kim Giannone of Polaris, MT. Giannone's exceptional black and white photographs chronicle ranch life in Beaverhead County and speak eloquently to her insight into the reality of ranching as she knows it from helping with chores, landscaping, cleaning and sometimes cooking on several ranches in the Big Hole, Centennial, Grasshopper and Horse Prairie Valleys.

"I was given a camera in my late teens, and I found that I could use this tool to freeze time," says Giannone. Growing up in Philadelphia, PA, her early subjects reflected the cultural diversity of a cityscape in contrast to her present focus on ranching. Following years of travel that include hiking the Appalachian Trail and the Pacific Crest Trail from Mexico to Canada in 2014, Giannone seems remarkably at home in rural Montana; moreover, her fresh eyes on subjects Montanans often take for granted lend her work a remarkable authenticity. "The curated culture of the 'American West' has often left out the toil, the labor, the passion, and the investment that ranchers put into their work. Their entire livelihood is dependent on the health of their cattle, the price of resources and of their product in the market and most of all, mother nature," writes Giannone, whose talents also extend to writing. Quick to give credit to several positive influences in her life, she has a genuine appreciation for the people, land, and animals she has come to know and respect. "I've had the privilege of spending time with some truly amazing and beautiful people out here in Southwest Montana. The intense tapestry of their lives is so interwoven with time, tradition, pride, craftsmanship, passion, and extremely hard work. The hot coals of an age-old lifestyle are still burning in the hearth of American culture, but as time moves on, the feeling that ranching will become more and more sparse seems to feel more real." Giannone's photographic works are truly an artistically sound, sensitive and well-rendered expression of love for what she sees as a threatened way of life.

Coincidentally, work by Giannone will be included in a book titled "Before the Change" which releases on November 19th. The book, published by Paradigm Publishing in conjunction with Addidas Skateboarding, is a collaboration between 17 International artists. Giannone's work can be viewed at www.kimgiannone.com.

UMW Names Bethany Hauer as Director of Student Success

The University of Montana Western is pleased to announce the appointment of Bethany Hauer as Director of Student Success.

Hauer earned a Bachelor of Arts in Anthropology with a Focus in Archaeology and Native American Studies in 2008 as well as a Master of Arts in Anthropology from the University of Montana in 2011.

Currently, Hauer serves as the Interlibrary Loan/Technical Services Technician for the Lucy Carson Library at Montana Western.

She has over seven years of experience working directly with undergraduate and graduate students, serving as a mentor, academic advisor, and supervisor. Hauer has assisted students with navigating the university system, applying for graduate school, and seeking employment opportunities in federal agencies leading to job placement.

"During my academic career I have served in a variety of capacities, but my focus has always been on creating an equitable experience for all students. I greatly look forward to continuing this kind of work; helping to implement diversity, equity, and inclusion efforts across campus. In this new capacity I hope to expand the department's support of students and faculty – and to create a welcoming environment, where the free exchange of ideas helps to foster academic and personal growth," said Hauer.

Hauer has extensive experience working with Montana's American Indian/Alaska Native (AI/AN) populations. This has included creating partnerships with tribal colleges, conducting consultation on human remains repatriation and artifact management, and directly assisting AI/AN students with completion of college through mentorship and advocacy.

Dillon Middle School Teacher, Rami Williams!

October 6, Be the Change 406 Coalition hosted its first Gala Awards banquet to acknowledge youth leaders, area educators, and community champions. Timi Miles and Rami Williams were surprised to learn they were the inaugural year recipients of the Youth Impact Awards for Parkview Elementary and Dillon Middle School.

Principal, Greg Fitzgerald said Mrs. Miles embodies the statement "The best thing about being a teacher is that it matters. The hardest thing about being a teacher is that it matters every day."

Dillon Middle School Principal, Joel Rogers, exclaimed "Mr. Williams has touched the lives of 8,000 students in his 30 years of teaching, along with another 4,000 student athletes while coaching a variety of sports."
