LEARN HOW TO RELAX WHEN FACED WITH STRESS.

You can't always walk away from a stressful situation. Instead, get in the habit of taking 5-10 seconds to scan your body for tension from the top of your head to your toes. Relax all your muscles along the way. Do that throughout the day so it becomes second nature. Be kind to yourself.

Montana Elk Habitat Protected, Open to Public Access

The Rocky Mountain Elk Foundation and U.S. Forest Service worked with a willing landowner to conserve two private inholdings of wildlife habitat and conveyed them to the Lolo National Forest. The 1,040-acre transaction took place just west of Lolo, a small western Montana town about 10 miles south of Missoula.

The transaction opens public access to the 1,040 acres and secures new access points to several thousand acres of surrounding public lands. In doing so, it alleviates challenges for hunters and others because of the area's checkboard ownership pattern.

"This project secures the last remaining and intact wildlife movement zone across the north end of the Bitterroot Valley between the Bitterroot Mountain Range and Selway-Bitterroot Wilderness to the south and west, the Sapphire Mountain Range to the east and the Northern Continental Divide Ecosystem to the north," said Blake Henning, RMEF chief conservation officer.

In addition to providing prime wildlife habitat in the form of forested conifers, aspen and other vegetation, the two parcels feature key riparian habitat since more than one mile of Bear Creek, Camp Creek and Sleeman Creek, all headwater streams and tributaries of Lolo Creek below, cross the property. The transaction protects these spawning and rearing areas for native westslope cutthroat trout and other fish species.

The properties are within or adjacent to important segments of the Lewis and Clark and Nez Perce (Nee Me Poo) National Historical Trails. The properties are also adjacent to portions of the Lolo Trail National Historical Landmark, which is listed on the National Register of Historic Places.

Thanks to its wildlife, habitat, public access, recreational, cultural and historical features and benefits, the project received critical funding from the Land and Water Conservation Fund.

RMEF has a long, successful history over several decades working with the Yanke family and its timber companies to provide many conservation benefits in Montana. In 2000, the parties collaborated to protect and open access to the 32,000-acre Watershed Project near Anaconda resulting in the creation of the Mt. Haggin Wildlife Management Area, one of the state's largest WMAs. At the time, it marked one of the biggest projects in RMEF history.

Montana Western Bulldogs

The Montana Western Bulldogs upset the No. 18 Battlin' Bears of Rocky Mountain College in overtime, 73-70.

The Bulldogs had a 22-point first quarter, leading Rocky by three; Montana Western out-rebounded Rocky 11 to five. The Battlin' Bears responded with an 18-point second quarter, while the Bulldogs only added 11 to the board. At the half, Rocky led 37-33.

With seconds left to play and the Bulldogs down by two, 62-60, Mack put up a no-good 3-pointer, but Denning grabbed the offensive rebound. The Bulldogs dished the ball to Brynley Fitzgerald down low, and Fitzgerald tied up the game with a contested layup.

In overtime, Rocky quickly drained a shot from the arc. The Bulldogs responded with an and-one layup by Fitzgerald and a banked 3-pointer from Denning. Fitzgerald added another 3-pointer and free throw to the board, while Sydney Sheridan also added a free throw.

Bbulldog men finish the week 2-0 with a win over Rocky 81 - 65.
