Kortnie Elizabeth Craddock

June 24, 1987 - February 14, 2022

Kortnie Elizabeth Craddock was born the second of three children on June 24, 1987 to Marc, and Polly Boe in the beautiful little town of Sheridan Montana. Kortnie found her love for animals at a young age, especially her horses Kato whom she trained herself, starting at the age of 9. She couldn't wait to share her love for horses with her children. She attended school in Sheridan from kindergarten to 2nd grade. Then the family moved closer to twin where she completed grades 3rd thru 5th. Kortnie then moved to Dillon with her mother where she attended school 6th thru high school. Kortnie loved to go on long drives, spending time with her friends and family, and she loved all kinds of music.

Kortnie met the love of her life Clark Craddock and the two of them became inseparable, doing everything together. They were married on Oct 10, 2010 and together they had 3 beautiful children Alexis (12), Payton (10), and Asher (9) of whom she is so proud, nothing meant more to her than their love, and happiness. They were the light of her life. And together they loved everything life had to offer from camping, horseback riding, snowmobiling to archery shoots, and numerous cats and dogs.

Kortnie, the day you left and gained your wings, my heart broke in two. I wish you could have stayed with me, but Heaven needed you. You left me with memories and my love for you is deeper still. No matter how much time goes by, I love you more, and always will. Kortnie you are a very special person, with kindness in your heart, and the love we had together grows stronger now we're apart. I know I cannot bring you back, although I wish it everyday, but a piece of me went with the day you went away.

Kortnie is preceded in death by her mother Polly Frye. She is survived by her husband Clark, and children Alexis, Payton, Asher, father Marc Boe brother Gabriel Boe, sister Megan Boe, and numerous Aunts and Uncles, nephews, nieces, and cousins.

A viewing will be held at 9 am on Monday 21st 2022 at K & L Mortuary. Graveside services will be held same day at 11 at the Sheridan Cemetery. Please join us after and share your favorite memory of Kortnie

DO YOU WANT YOUR RECEIPT?

Tyrades! by Danny Tyree

Yes, receipts do seem to breed like rabbits in my poor overstuffed-with-credit-cards-and-gift-cards-and-loyalty-cards-and-hastily-scribbled-notes wallet.

But that's my personal problem to sort through at home in my quieter moments.

That's why I'm deeply disturbed by the recent phenomenon of retail clerks putting me on the spot with some variation of "Do you want your receipt?" or "Would you like your receipt?" Snap judgment time!

I can understand "Would you prefer the receipt in the bag?" or "Would you rather have the receipt emailed?"; but the stark all-or-nothing question is extremely triggering.

Call me old school, but I like taking transactions for granted. Stop with the existential interrogations! What's next in the realm of impertinent retail inquiries? "Do you want the milk left in the jug?" "Would you prefer a fitting room with or without a latch?"

In my more mischievous moments, I'm tempted to eye the "Do you want your receipt?" clerk warily, whip out my phone and fake a conversation along the lines of "Snipers in place? We've got a hostage situation here."

What's driving this sudden change? Does it have something to do with our carbon footprints? If my accepting four square inches of waxy paper and storing it in a desk drawer is going to strangle a sea turtle somewhere, I apologize (and wonder how the wimpy little reptiles would handle an asteroid crash).

Besides, isn't it "too little, too late" (ecologically speaking) to talk a customer out of a receipt right before he gulps down his Slim Jim, hops in the cab of his monster truck and roars off to work clearcutting virgin forests?

Or maybe the reluctance to print a receipt is a cost-cutting measure. Hey, if you're teetering on the brink of insolvency like that, you'd better be extra-good to me, or I'll push you over the precipice. ("Yes, I want my receipt. Duplicates of my receipt! And a wad of napkins for my glove compartment. And some ketchup packets. I don't care if this is a furniture store – I want my ketchup packets!")

Or maybe the Stepford Clerks are dutifully following corporate directives to be extra helpful. Hey, if sparing me from the horrors of an overstuffed shirt pocket gives them the jollies, I can think of even more ways for them to find bliss. My shed needs decluttering this weekend, and how's about watering my plants while I'm on vacation?

Are customers expected to reciprocate when clerks make these grand gestures? ("Okay, I'll dance at your wedding, and I'll co-sign your loan, but I'll have to think about this kidney donation thing, Cindi with An I.")

Most receipts never see the light of day again, but it's short-sighted to relinquish your receipt when you could very well be haggling with Customer Service over returns of an ill-fitting garment or a non-functioning electronic gadget. ("I swear I bought this here. Please give me credit. Pretty please, with a cherry on top. No, I can't prove I paid for the cherry, either...")

Retailers aren't doing shoppers any favors when they cajole them into facing an income tax audit without a shoebox of receipts. ("I know I could've deducted my new printer if I had the receipts, but Zachary with a W made such a persuasive case.")

Back off, clerks! I grew up when "proof-of-purchase seals" meant something. You'll pry my receipts from my cold, Sugar Smacks-infused fingers.

FWP game wardens seek information on killed, abandoned waterfowl near Butte

Game wardens with Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks are seeking information on several waterfowl that were killed and abandoned near Butte.

Responding to a tip on Thursday, wardens found five dead Canada geese and one dead mallard drake along Roosevelt Drive south of Butte. The birds had been discarded about 200 yards off the road, and all the meat had been wasted.

Anyone with possible information about this case is encouraged to call the FWP violation reporting hotline at 1-800-TIP-MONT. Callers may be eligible for a cash reward of up to $1,000.

FW Commission approves 2022-23 hunting regulations Work continues on elk management efforts

At its Feb. 4 meeting, the Montana Fish and Wildlife Commission approved hunting regulations for the 2022 and 2023 hunting seasons with a significant focus on changes to elk hunting opportunities. All final regulations approved at the meeting will go into effect when the new license year begins on March 1. New regulation booklets for moose, sheep, mountain goat, bison, deer, elk and antelope will be available online this month and in print by mid-March. Hunters should make sure to read through the new regulations before applying for permits and licenses this spring. The first application deadline for deer and elk permits is April 1.

"Friday's commission meeting was the culmination of hard work by staff and an amazing amount of input from hunters, landowners, and outfitters across the state," said FWP Director Hank Worsech. "My hope was to engage the public on improving hunter access to elk and elk distribution across public and private land. And though some proposals were controversial, the commission and the department heard from more people than ever before with input and ideas on how to improve elk management. I think we have made progress and will focus now on implementing and monitoring the effectiveness of these regulation changes."

FWP continues to focus on improving elk management. This includes elk plan development, work ongoing with the Private Lands Public Wildlife Committee, and organizing the Elk Management Citizen Advisory Group which is currently seeking applicants.

Montana FWP releases decision notice for Smith River management plan updates

Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks has issued a final Decision Notice on a Nov. 10 Environmental Assessment (EA) that considered management updates to the 2009 Smith River State Park and Smith River Corridor Management Plan.

Comments on the EA were accepted from Nov. 10 through Dec. 15, 2021, and a total of 104 comments were received via email, mail and an online survey. To help foster awareness and education of planning issues, FWP also held two public informational sessions over Zoom on Dec. 1 and 7. Additionally, an 11-member Smith River Planning Advisory Committee (PAC) assisted FWP staff by providing important planning perspectives and feedback.

The process of updating the 2009 Smith River Management Plan began last summer with a focus on four primary management issues that were addressed in the EA:

1. Management of Camp Baker
2. Human waste management
3. Natural and cultural resource impacts
4. Floater opportunities

Rulemaking is needed to implement some of the management actions identified in the Decision Notice. FWP will propose two rule changes to the Parks and Recreation Board at its March 3, 2022, meeting: (a) permanently establishing Camp Baker as day-use-only from Dec. 1 through Aug. 31 and continuing floater sign-in initiated during the COVID-19 pandemic; and (b) requiring floaters to pack out human waste beginning with the 2023 float season using a department approved toilet system.

In the future, FWP will consider developing a set of management tools that could be utilized to address negative impacts on natural and cultural resources in the river corridor and at boat camps. During the 2022 float season, staff will monitor and evaluate conditions to assess where changes may be needed. On the topic of floater opportunities, FWP will explore the development of methods that could be used to increase opportunities for those who have not recently (or ever) floated the Smith River.

Information pertaining to the Parks and Recreation Board, including meeting details, can be found on the FWP website: <https://fwp.mt.gov/aboutfwp/parksandrecreationboard>.

Copies of the Decision Notice are available for public review on the FWP webpage: <https://fwp.mt.gov/stateparks/smith-river/management>. Please direct questions to Smith River State Park Manager Colin Maas at 406-454-5857 or cmaas@mt.gov.

Wolves Relisted, Scientific Wildlife Management Frustrated Again

The Rocky Mountain Elk Foundation strongly disagrees with a ruling by a federal judge in California to restore federal protections to gray wolf populations in the Lower 48. "Scientists, biologists and professional wildlife managers agree that wolf populations are stable and growing," said Kyle Weaver, RMEF president and CEO. "As such, they should remain under the umbrella of state management since state wildlife agencies successfully manage all other wildlife in line with the North American Wildlife Conservation Model through regulated hunting and trapping."

The science community under both the Obama and Trump administrations previously determined wolves to be a recovered species and removed populations from Endangered Species Act protections in 2011 and 2020. Yet both times, judges intervened to frustrate the process.

Wolf population estimates fly in the face of the latest ruling by U.S. District Judge Jeffrey White of Oakland. They are well above state management plan levels in Michigan, Minnesota and Wisconsin while topping all-time modern day levels in Oregon and Washington. Additionally, there are established wolf packs in California, Colorado and verified sightings in other states.

As a matter of information, there are also 7,000-11,000 wolves in Alaska and approximately 60,000 in Canada.

"The process is broken. Science speaks for itself and yet again and again we see that chronic, frivolous litigation continues and thwarts proven science-based, state-led wildlife management," added Weaver.

Radical environmental groups also called for the restoration of ESA protections in the Northern Rockies where estimated wolf populations are 900 percent above minimum recovery levels in Idaho, 700 percent above in Montana and more than 200 percent in Wyoming. The ruling, however, does not affect wolves in those states where populations remain under state management.
