Montana State Crime Lab recognized as a top-performing forensic laboratory

For the second year in a row, the Montana Department of Justice's Forensic Science Division (FSD) has been recognized as a top-performing forensic laboratory, earning the FORESIGHT Maximus Award from the American Society of Crime Laboratory Directors (ASCLD).

Commonly referred to as the State Crime Lab, FSD houses the state's forensic science laboratories and medical examiner system. It is one of just 13 forensic laboratories in the world to earn the award for operating at 90% or better of peak efficiency based on Foresight business metrics.

"The state crime lab provides invaluable forensic analysis to law enforcement across Montana. Their work is integral to investigating crimes, finding those responsible, and holding them accountable," Attorney General Knudsen said. "With crime rising and illegal drugs continuing to flow into our state, that work is more important than ever."

"These top performing laboratories are an inspiration for other forensic laboratories to evaluate their own labs and seek ways to improve efficiency and productivity without compromising quality and accountability. The award winners set the benchmarks we should all strive to achieve in days of lean budgets and increasing caseloads," ASCLD President Laura Sudkamp said in a press release.

The Forensic Science Division is integral to the Department of Justice's mission to fight crime in Montana and get dangerous criminals off the streets. The division provides accurate, objective, and timely forensic analysis in support of the criminal justice community across the state. The State Crime Lab houses the medical examiner, toxicology, chemical analysis, firearms/toolmarks, latent prints, DNA/serology, quality assurance, and evidence sections.

The lab has been accredited since 2005 and the medical examiners office became accredited by the National Association of Medical Examiners last year.

World's Best Elk Callers to Compete for $45,000 in Cash, Gear

The Rocky Mountain Elk Foundation will host the 32nd annual RMEF World Elk Calling Championships, presented by Sportsman's Warehouse, at the RMEF Elk Camp & Mountain Festival on July 22-23, 2022, in Park City, Utah. Participants will face off for the opportunity to win more than $45,000 in cash, hunting gear and other prizes.

The field will be seeded based on past performance with bracketed, head-to-head competition in all divisions–professional, men's, women's, voice, youth and pee wee. When narrowed down to the final eight competitors, the format will switch to double-elimination in the pro, men's and women's divisions while voice, youth and pee wee will remain single elimination from start to finish.

A number of past champions expected to compete include 10-time individual winner Corey Jacobsen as well as daughter Jessi, 2021 women's champion, and defending professional division winner Cody McCarthy while defending men's champ Tony Gilbertson will jump up a level to compete in the pro division.

Devoted public lands advocate, elk hunter and RMEF life member Randy Newberg will again serve as emcee.

There are no entry fees and the competition is open to any qualifying person. Go here to view the rules and register. All contestants must pre-register by Wednesday, July 13, 2022 at 5 p.m. (MDT). Admission at the Canyons Village is free to the public both days.

In addition to presenting sponsor Sportsman's Warehouse, other sponsors include Bow Spider, Browning, Eberlestock, Gerber, Hoyt, Leupold, Montana Decoy, Nosler, Schnee's, Swagger and Traeger.

Boaters can help protect Montana from aquatic invasive species

9,800 watercraft inspected so far this year

Memorial Day weekend is the unofficial start to summer in Montana, and all aquatic invasive species inspection stations are now open on major routes of travel in the state. As boaters venture out to our rivers and lakes, please keep in mind the rules aimed at protecting our waters and preventing the spread of aquatic invasive species.

- Be sure to always clean, drain and dry your boat and stop at inspection stations this holiday weekend.
- All boats must stop at all open watercraft inspection stations they encounter. Failure to stop at inspection stations could result in a fine of up to $500.
- Non-residents transporting watercraft into Montana must purchase a Vessel AIS Prevention Pass before launching. The fee is $30 for motorized and $10 for nonmotorized watercraft. The pass is valid until Dec. 31.

Inspection is required before launch IF: the boat is entering the state, crossing west over the Continental Divide or entering the Flathead Basin.

More than 9,800 watercraft have been inspected so far this year, 16 of which were mussel-fouled. FWP works closely with other state AIS programs when mussel-fouled boats are destined for other states.

When a mussel-fouled boat is intercepted, Montana inspectors typically clean it, lock it to the trailer to prohibit launching and contact the destination state so they can arrange for follow-up and, if needed, a full decontamination when it reaches its destination.

Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks and partner agencies operate more than 25 road-side watercraft inspection stations across the state. Typically, boat inspections are brief and include a short interview and check to make sure watercraft are not transporting mud, water, plants, or invasive organisms. Larger or more complex boats may require additional time for an inspection.

To find a watercraft inspection station or to learn more, go to CleanDrainDryMT.com or call the FWP Aquatic Invasive Species Bureau at 406-444-2440.
