Indigenous Peoples of Southwest Montana

Jeremy Crawford, Southwestern Montana News

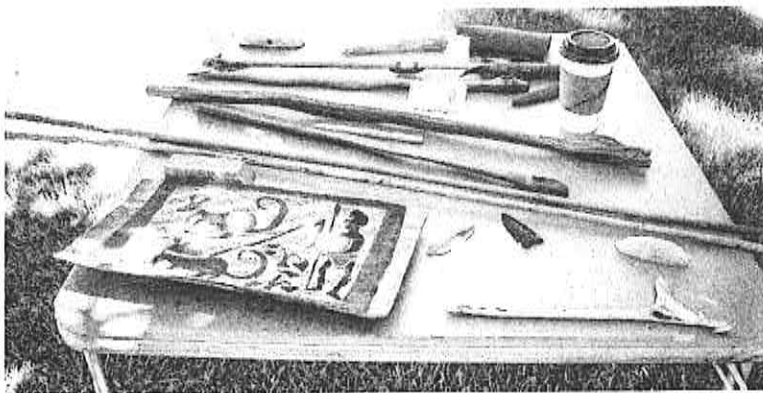

The Beaverhead County Museum in Dillon, MT, has a new exhibit entitled Indigenous Peoples of Southwest Montana. To celebrate the occasion they held a day to show off the exhibit as well as activities to help people understand the period of time the museum exhibit covers.

On Friday night they held a private viewing and trip to the Wheat Bison Jump, followed by a presentation by local author and Archeologist Carl M. Davis and a presentation on the new display by curator Ron Loge.

On Saturday you could take a short bus trip to the buffalo jump and learn how the Indigenous people used them to hunt and kill animals. At the museum you could learn first hand on the tanning of hides. The use of a primitive weapon called an atlatl, one could sample bison tongue as well as beaver tail and many other informative events.

If you would like to see the new display as well as take a tour of the Beaverhead County Museum you can either call them at 406-683-5027 or stop by at 15 S. Montana Street.

Car-Ona car show

Jeremy Crawford, Southwestern Montana News

With the Dillon Jaycees demolition derby being held Saturday one would think the only cars you would see around town would have been those preparing for Saturdays entertainment. But if you take a drive past the Den your eyes will be treated to a different type of car.

Car enthusiasts gathered at The Dens parking lot to show off their pride and joy at the Car-Ona car show.

Jaycee Demo Derby Results

The Jaycee Demo Derby Results should be available for tomorrow's paper. Great weather brought out a large crowd.

comments on a draft environmental assessment for a proposed nine-year habitat management program on Fleecer Mountain Wildlife

Attorney General Knudsen leads coalition against Biden administration's attempt to redefine sex on Title IX's anniversary

Montana Attorney General Austin Knudsen and 17 other state attorneys general are calling on the Biden administration to back off the U.S. Department of Education's proposed rule issued today demolishing protections for women contained in federal law and "making a mockery of Title IX's fundamental organization principle—basic biology."

"The Biden Administration's insistence on redefining 'sex' in Title IX ignores science. In so doing, it will walk back decades of progress for women in sports," the coalition, led by Attorney General Knudsen and Indiana Attorney General Todd Rokita, wrote today in a letter to U.S. Education Secretary Miguel Cardona.

Since Title IX was enacted 50 years ago, one of its greatest successes has been in providing women the benefits of enhanced athletic participation, leading to an explosion in the participation of girls and women in sports. In 2021, 3.4 million girls played high school sports and 219,000 women played NCAA sports. The Biden Administration's Title IX revisions, however, will end sex-based protections for biological women in sports which threatens the safety of female athletes.

"Your proposed rule merely pretends to reserve the issue of biological males participating in women's sports for a separate rulemaking. This wolf comes as wolf: defining the term 'sex' to include gender identity will destroy women's sports," the coalition of attorneys general wrote. "Because the Biden Administration's attempt to change the focus and meaning of Title IX is an attack on the rights of girls and women and will make them less safe and cause them to lose vital opportunities, we will fight your proposed changes to Title IX with every available tool in our arsenal."

The newly proposed rule also guts the Trump administration's historic 2020 rulemaking that codified sexual harassment regulations into law for the first time ever. The Trump-era rule guarantees victims and accused students strong, clear, procedural rights in a predictable, transparent process designed to reach reliable outcomes, and provides essential provisions protecting free speech, academic freedom, and religious liberty.

"Beyond the gender identity issue, the Department has failed to offer sufficient justification as to why the Title IX regulations require revision," the attorneys general wrote. "Your newly proposed rule guts the historic 2020 Rule. And it does so for no reason other than some apparent need to pander to your far-left constituencies."

The attorneys general also reiterated their April request for Assistant Secretary Catherine Lhamon to recuse herself from the Title IX rulemaking process given her past statements and record. Lhamon played a crucial role in creating President Obama's Title IX catastrophe that resulted in hundreds of successful lawsuits against schools for denying basic due process and widespread criticism from across the ideological spectrum.

In addition to Attorneys General Knudsen and Rokita, attorneys general from Alabama, Alaska, Arkansas, Georgia, Idaho, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Texas, Utah, and West Virginia joined the letter.

Small section of Yellowstone River closed due to damaged power lines

Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks, in consultation with Park County and Park Electric Cooperative, has closed a small section of the Yellowstone River near Livingston to all recreation due to overhanging power lines that were damaged by recent flooding.

The river closure extends a total of about 3 miles, from Highway 89 Bridge Fishing Access Site to Sheep Mountain Fishing Access Site. These two sites and several others remain closed while repairs continue.

This section of the river will reopen as soon as conditions allow safe floating.

Some fishing access sites that were impacted by flooding have reopened. However, several sites remain closed due to sediment and debris deposits, damaged infrastructure, and site erosion. FWP is working to reopen closed areas as soon as conditions allow. For a current list of closed sites, please visit go.usa.gov/xJ7DY.
