WHY WE OOOH AND AAH ON THE FOURTH OF JULY

by Tom Purcell

It's been way too long since I lit a sparkler as the sun goes down on the Fourth of July.

I've enjoyed many day-long celebrations with friends and family on the Fourth in many different ways, but they usually end with a gathering on a hill or a parking lot where we have an excellent view of the fireworks staged by one of several local communities.

When I was a kid, we usually went to the parking lot at South Hills Village mall in Bethel Park.

We'd unload the car and set up our makeshift picnic area with beverages, snacks and lawn chairs.

As we eagerly waited for the sky to fall dark so the fireworks could start, the adults would help us kids light our sparklers.

We'd marvel at their blinding beauty — until we heard the first "woof!" of fireworks being launched.

We'd ooh and aaah like a children's chorus as the magnificent colors filled the sky.

And then we'd brace ourselves for the grand finale — the massive unleashing of colors and concussive sounds that filled the air with smoke and the sweet smell of sulfur and culminated in loud clapping, cheering and honking.

Afterwards, as we waited in the car in the parking-lot traffic, a great melancholy would set in.

We realized that our wonderful day had met its end and we'd have to wait another long year before we could enjoy the experience all over again.

July 4th was never just any old holiday celebration to me.

I didn't fully understand it then, as I do now, but on the Fourth we really were celebrating our many freedoms and the many blessings that millions of people in countries around the world never get to experience on a daily basis.

We are free to peaceably assemble and protest or support ideas we disagree or agree with.

We are free to speak our mind candidly, without fear that our government is going to toss us into jail.

We have the freedom to come and go as we please — the freedom to quit our jobs and risk it all to start a company and become our own boss.

That is what Eddie Gabor's dad did many years ago when he came to America from Hungary.

Eddie Gabor was my grandmother's long-time companion. She'd lost her husband years before and had her share of loneliness until she met Eddie at church.

Eddie's father had come here seeking a better life for himself and his family, as millions still seek to do. He took the first job he could get — janitor.

He eventually started his own cleaning business and ended up employing scores of people and servicing the largest skyscrapers in downtown Pittsburgh.

Eddie Gabor's father built himself a beautiful stone home high on a hill in the suburbs on the edge of a park that has one of the area's most spectacular Fourth of July fireworks displays.

It was also the home where, for 20 years, my extended family would gather on Independence Day to watch the fireworks — because Eddie's father was able to achieve his American dream there.

I'm not sure yet where I'll be oohing and aahing the fireworks this 4th, but one thing is certain: Our country's current problems notwithstanding, I'll make sure to thank God for the many blessings we continue to enjoy.

I'll be sure to light a sparkler or two.

AG Knudsen statement on SCOTUS victory against EPA

As a result of a lawsuit brought by Montana Attorney General Austin Knudsen and other state attorneys general, the U.S. Supreme Court has limited the power of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) to issue sweeping dictates that attempt to reorder entire economic sectors and regulate wide swaths of everyday life.

In West Virginia, et al. v. Environmental Protection Agency, et al., the Court held 6-to-3 that the EPA's plan to pick and choose favored energy sources, command generators and manufacturers to cross-subsidize competitors, or effectively shut down certain plant operations altogether was overly broad and an illegal overreach of power.

"A decision of such magnitude and consequence rests with Congress itself, or an agency acting pursuant to a clear delegation from that representative body," Chief Justice Roberts wrote in the majority opinion.

"This ruling affirms what Montanans have known all along: the Biden administration's attempt to weaponize the Clean Air Act was an abuse of the EPA's authority," Attorney General Knudsen said. "I will continue to fight his green agenda to shut down American energy development."

FWP to lift recreational closure on Yellowstone River near Livingston

Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks, in consultation with Park County and Park Electric Cooperative, will reopen a section of the Yellowstone River near Livingston. The closure will be lifted at 12:01 a.m. on Thursday, June 30.

The river closure extended from Highway 89 Bridge Fishing Access Site to Sheep Mountain Fishing Access Site.

The Highway 89 Bridge and Sheep Mountain fishing access sites, along with several others, remain closed due to sediment and debris deposits, damaged infrastructure, and site erosion from recent flooding. FWP is working to reopen closed areas as soon as conditions allow. FWP maintenance crews have repaired and reopened several sites over the past week.

Recreationists can avoid accidents and injury to themselves and others by observing all safety closures and avoiding areas with high flows. For a current list of closed sites, please visit go.usa.gov/xJ7DY.
