AG Knudsen warns Montanans of scams following severe flooding

Attorney General Austin Knudsen is encouraging Montanans to take precautions and be aware of scammers looking to take advantage of those beginning to repair their homes and businesses following the state's recent flooding. It is highly likely that with the severe flooding many Montanans experienced recently will come fraudulent contractors posing as professionals looking to make a quick buck off the misfortune of others.

He's also warning would-be scammers: The Department of Justice's Division of Criminal Investigation investigates cases of suspected scams which can carry serious punishment for the perpetrator, including prison time. For example, a man was sentenced to a total of 160 years (65 years inmate status followed by 95 years of probation) last year for his multi-county contractor schemes in Montana.

"As homeowners and business owners begin to repair their properties following recent flooding, fraudsters will undoubtedly use this as an opportunity to prey on unsuspecting Montanans. Please, do your homework to avoid scams," Attorney General Knudsen said. "Scammers who take advantage of Montanans will be investigated, prosecuted, and face the possibility of prison time."

Prior to finding a contractor or beginning any work, Montanans should contact their home insurance company. For more information on finding a qualified contractor visit the Montana Department of Justice website at https://dojmt.gov/consumer/choosing-a-contractor/.

To avoid becoming the victim of a contractor scam, the Montana Department of Justice's Office of Consumer Protection suggests:

- Researching your project: know what the job involves and prepare a detailed list of the work to be done and the types and costs of materials that should be used;
- Getting the names of several contractors: friends and neighbors who have undertaken similar projects, trade associations, and hardware, building supply and home improvement stores may be good sources of reputable contractors;
- Checking references: try to get at least three references from actual customers, not just people who know the contractor personally;
- Getting written bids on your job: get at least two or three written bids for your project; never accept a verbal estimate; and
- Comparing bids: check carefully to be sure each bid includes everything you want; remember, less reputable contractors may cut corners to lower their bids.

To report a scam, contact the DOJ's Office of

During times of natural disasters, scammers will also pretend to be from the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA). FEMA provides these reminders to avoid an impersonator:

• Federal and local disaster workers do not solicit or accept money. Don't trust anyone who offers financial help and then asks for money or personal information.

• Do not disclose information to any unsolicited telephone calls and e-mails from individuals claiming to be FEMA or federal employees. FEMA will not contact you unless you have called FEMA first or applied for assistance.

• FEMA representatives will ask for social security and bank account numbers when you apply and may ask for it again, after you apply. Be cautious when giving this information to others who ask for it. Scam artists may pose as government officials, aid workers, or insurance company employees.

• Ask to see ID badges. ALL FEMA representatives carry an identification badge with a photograph. A FEMA shirt or jacket is not proof of identity.

For more information on FEMA programs and potential FEMA scams visit https://www.fema.gov/assistance/individual/program. The Department of Natural Resources and Conservation (DNRC) also has programs related to natural disasters – find more information at http://dnrc.mt.gov/divisions/water/operations/floodplain-management/disaster-and-recovery.

Montana Trail Stewardship Grant Program announces 2022 awards

Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks announced today that 32 trail organizations, communities and various land-managing agencies throughout Montana will receive Montana Trail Stewardship Grant Program (TSP) grant awards for their projects in 2022.

Thirty-seven TSP applications were received this year from a variety of eligible applicants, including federal and state agencies, towns, cities, counties, private clubs and nonprofit organizations.

The Montana Trail Stewardship Grant Program current awards total approximately $1,476,865.10 in state funds. TSP grant funds are allocated to projects based on meeting TSP eligibility requirements, application scoring, State Trails Advisory Committee (STAC) discussion and recommendations and funding availability.

FWP administers TSP awards, a program funded through a portion of Montana's light motor vehicle registration fee and from the taxation of recreational marijuana. The program provides grant funding for trail and trail-related projects across the state. Eligible projects include development and rehabilitation work on urban, rural, and backcountry trails; construction of community trails; and snowmobile and cross-country ski trail maintenance and grooming operations.

A list of the successful 2022 Montana Trail Stewardship Grant Program grant recipients is available at https://fwp.mt.gov/aboutfwp/grant-programs/trail-stewardship; click on "2022 Grant Application Cycle."

For more information, contact Tom Lang, Montana Trail Stewardship Grant Program Manager, tom.lang@mt.gov.

THE NEED TO VACATE THIS SUMMER

by Tom Purcell

I sure could use a vacation about now — but I have no plans to take one this summer.

That's the breaks for self-employed people like me who do not enjoy paid-vacation benefits. When I do not work, I do not get paid.

However, nearly one in four American workers are not taking a summer vacation, either — in part because we're the only advanced economy in the world that doesn't mandate employer-paid vacations for them.

This is the time each year when I envy my friends in vacation-rich countries around the world.

In Kuwait, according to Far and Wide, employees receive 30 days of paid vacation. When including days off for religious holidays, employees can enjoy up to 64 days of paid leave — 13 weeks off a year.

In France, the government mandates every employee get at least five weeks of paid vacation. French workers average 37 days of vacation a year — and 22 paid holidays on top of that.

Austria requires employers to give their workers 25 days off and 30 days off to those who have worked 25 years or more.

The Austrians also require one of the great job perks of all time: Employees can clock out at 3 p.m. on Fridays rather than suffer on until 5 or 5:30 as we Americans do.

Compare these generous time-off policies to America, where employees average about 15 vacation days a year.

We Americans really can't complain. We're world famous for being a nation of workaholics, even in good times.

In tough economic times such as now, when costs are soaring and the buying power of our paychecks is shrinking, we have to work even harder to keep revenues coming in.

We don't like our government telling us or our employers how we ought to conduct our business or how many vacation days employers must provide.

Our style has been, for the most part, to favor freedom over mandates of any kind.

Goodness knows our government has been so busy handing out goodies to citizens, it's just a matter of time before the freedom lovers are overrun by the benefit lovers.

It will be a sad day if that ever happens. We'll have a perpetually anemic economy, and all of us will have to struggle more to find the job opportunities that'll bring us happiness and wealth. That said, we Americans could learn a thing or two from our vacationing friends around the world.

"Vacating" from the stresses, responsibilities and worries of our daily lives is great for our health.

We know we should take off work and go somewhere with our loved ones or friends and completely get lost for a week at a beach or lake.

We know we should find more time to sit at an outdoor restaurant as the sun goes down, enjoying good wine, conversation and the delicious foods we never have time to prepare. We know we should step off the earth just for a little while, laugh heartily and sleep until we are fully rested.

Vacating, or vacation, is good for each of us — and America. It restores our equilibrium and helps us become more productive, civil and poised when we return to our daily lives.

Ah, heck, I've talked myself into it.

I'm going to plan a trip to the ocean this summer and let its powerful waves wash my daily worries away — for a day or two, anyway.

Lewis & Clark Caverns State Park presents speakers, guided hikes and more this month

More exciting events are happening this month at Lewis & Clark Caverns State Park.

A full list of this summer's events at the Caverns can be found online at fwp.mt.gov/stateparks/lewis-and-clark-caverns.

July 8 through 10

Lewis & Clark Caverns State Park's summer speaker series will welcome Amanda Hagerty on Friday, July 8, at 8 p.m. at the campground amphitheater. Hagerty will speak about the greater Yellowstone area.

On Saturday, July 9, at 8 p.m., park ranger Ramona Radonich will present "Goodness Snakes Alive!" at the campground amphitheater. In this program, visitors will learn about the prairie rattlesnake, which is native to the Lewis and Clark Caverns State Park ecosystem. Visitors will discover what makes these reptiles rattle, how to avoid being bitten, and what to do if you are ever bitten by a rattlesnake. By understanding rattlesnakes, we can develop a healthy respect for these amazing reptiles that will help keep us safe in rattlesnake country.

On Sunday, July 10, Radonich will lead "Birds of a Feather", a birdwatching hike through the park. The group will meet at the main visitor center at 10 a.m. for a brief talk, then they'll head out to look for birds. These flying wonders are filling the skies at Lewis & Clark Caverns State Park with their colors and songs. Binoculars will be provided for those who don't have any.

July 16 and 17

On Saturday, July 16, at 8 p.m., Radonich will present "Night Skies at Lewis & Clark Caverns" at the campground amphitheater. Radonich will guide you through the constellations and tell the stories behind the stars you see when you look up at the night sky. Among the wonders you'll meet is a star that turned on the lights to open the 1933 Chicago World's Fair, as well as the famous "double-double".

On Sunday, July 17, Radonich will present "Flower Power", an in-depth discovery of what's really happening behind the glamor of flowers. Many people look at flowers and see beautiful colors and intricate designs. But the delicate-looking flower is really a powerful structure that creates optimal conditions to ensure the survival of its offspring. The group will meet at the main visitor center at 10 a.m. for a brief talk, then head out on a trail to hunt for wildflowers.

FWP seeks comment on several proposals for August 25 commission meeting

Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks is seeking public comment on several proposals slated to go to the Fish and Wildlife Commission in August. Under the new commission process, FWP is taking public comment on these proposals now and will present the collected comments and proposals to the commission for their review and decisions on Aug. 25. Commissioners can offer amendments to the proposals as they see fit. The proposals and supporting documents, commissioner amendments and collected public comment will be available on the FWP website two weeks prior to the commission meeting.

The commission will make a final decision on these proposals at its Aug. 25 meeting. Here is a list of some of the proposals.

To comment and for more information on these proposals, go online to https://fwp.mt.gov/aboutfwp/commission/meeting

- Fall 2022–Winter 2023 Furbearer and Wolf Trapping and Hunting Seasons and Quotas
- Pheasant releases for recruiting and retaining hunters
- Cornell Park Fishing Access Site (FAS) Acquisition (Region 3)

In 2020, the commission approved FWP to analyze the acquisition and development of the Cornell Park Fishing Access Site on the Beaverhead River near Dillon. That process is complete and FWP is asking the commission to authorize the department to acquire the site.

- Sha Ron FAS Site MDT Recreation Permit (Region 2)
- Future Fisheries Improvement Projects, Summer 2022 funding cycle
- Nongame Tax Check-off Workplan
- Programmatic Approval of Long-term Leases of Priority Habitat
- Selection of Organizations to Auction 2023 Moose, Sheep, Goat, Mule Deer and Elk Licenses
- Amend ARM 12.11.6705 Extending Implementation Date of Madison River Commercial Use Cap

Unless otherwise specified in the proposals, comments will be accepted until Thursday, July 21, at 5 p.m. Comments will also be taken on proposals and any commissioner amendments at the Aug. 25 commission meeting.
