Fishing restrictions enacted for several southwest-Montana rivers due to high temps

Daily "hoot-owl" fishing restrictions are being implemented for the East Gallatin, Jefferson and lower Big Hole rivers to reduce fish stress and mortality during high water temperatures. The restrictions will begin at 2 p.m. Wednesday, July 27.

Hoot-owl fishing restrictions prohibit fishing each day between 2 p.m. and midnight. This applies to:

- The East Gallatin River from the confluence with the West Gallatin River at Nixon Bridge upstream to Penwell Bridge Road

- The entire Jefferson River

- The lower Big Hole River from the confluence with the Beaverhead River upstream to Tony Schoonen Fishing Access Site

Water temperatures in these areas have exceeded 73 degrees for three consecutive days, meeting criteria for the restrictions. The restrictions will remain in place until water temperatures allow for lifting the restrictions or until Sept. 15.

Fishing restrictions, such as hoot-owl restrictions and full closures, are designed to protect fish that become more susceptible to disease and mortality when conditions, such as low flows and high water temperatures, combine with other stressors, including catch-and-release fishing. Restrictions may be put in place for other waterbodies as warm temperatures continue in the coming weeks. Anglers can find a statewide list of current restrictions at fwp.mt.gov/news/current-closures-restrictions.

All stress to fish at this time of year is cumulative, and anglers should consider fishing in cooler waters during times of low flows and high water temperatures in rivers. Anglers can help reduce stress for fish by following these practices when catching and releasing fish, though fish mortality may still occur:

- Fish during the coolest times of day, where permitted.
- Land the fish quickly.
- Wet your hands before handling the fish.
- Keep the fish in water as much as possible.
- Remove the hook gently. Using artificial lures with single and barbless hooks can make hook removal faster and easier.
- If the fish is hooked deeply, you may have to cut the line at the fish's mouth or consider keeping it if regulations allow.
- Let the fish recover before releasing it.

YELLOW JACKETS

By "Swede" Troedsson

In 1957 I was employed as a timber aide for the summer on the Skykomish Ranger District in WA.

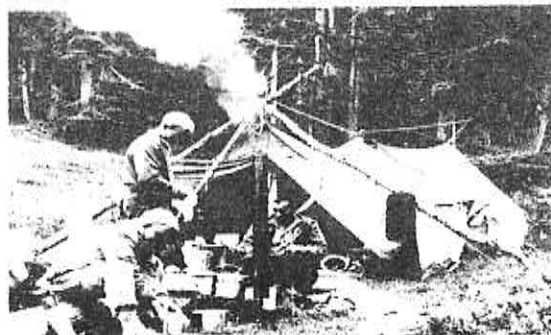

I was part of a four man crew preparing a large timber sale. We were camped in the proposed timber sale area. The forest floor was dry from lack of recent rains. Every day we would stumble into yellow jacket nests.

One day, Forester Bob Norton and I were chaining out (measuring) section lines in order to find section and quarter corners. We would sign the corners in order to protect the corners during road construction and logging operations. Using the recorded distances between the corners we would use a two chain (132 ft) metal measuring tape to find the corners. Bob was the lead chainman, following his compass and walking along the section line between corners. I was the rear chainman. When Bob would reach the end of two chains, a brass tab at the end of the chain could be felt going through my hand. This would indicate to me that he had progressed two chains, and I would stop him by shouting out "CHAIN!" Bob would stop so I could walk up to his location in order to start the next two chain measurement.

On one of the measurements, I could feel the chain start to accelerate thorough my hand. The brass tab zipped through my hand, and the end of the chain disappeared. I kept shouting "CHAIN! CHAIN!" so Bob would stop. The next time I saw Bob he was upslope above me, hopping, shouting, and frantically beating on his leg with his hard hat, while still holding onto the chain. A yellow jacket was crawling up his leg inside his pant leg. He was attempting to kill it before it reached more sensitive areas.

After killing the yellow jacket before harm was done, Bob joined me, still dragging the chain. I was sitting down and laughing so hard tears were rolling down my cheeks.

One of our crew, Jim Reynolds, was very allergic to bee stings. In order to avoid a medical crisis, Jim was dismissed from the cruise camp and sent back to the ranger station.

Attorney General Knudsen sues Biden administration over threat to hold school lunches hostage to its transgender agenda

Montana Attorney General Austin Knudsen and 21 other state attorneys general filed a lawsuit today against the Biden administration's new guidance that threatens to withhold federal nutritional assistance for schools and programs that receive federal nutritional assistance.

In May, USDA's Food and Nutrition Services issued unlawful guidance that "discrimination on the basis of sex" in Title IX and the Food and Nutrition Act includes sexual orientation and gender identity. If schools or programs don't comply, the guidance threatens their funding used to provide meals for students.

"Holding school lunches for needy kids hostage is reprehensible," Attorney General Knudsen said. "We're fighting to protect these programs and stop the Biden administration from forcing its radical gender ideology onto Montana schools."

USDA's guidance is unlawful because it was issued without providing the State and other stakeholders the opportunity for input as required by the Administrative Procedures Act (APA) and it is premised on an obvious misreading and misapplication of the Supreme Court's holding in Bostock v. Clayton County. Justices clearly stated in the Bostock opinion that it was limited to only Title VII.

Additionally, the guidance imposes new and unlawful regulations on state agencies and operators receiving funds through USDA that will cause regulatory chaos threatening nutritional services for children.

Nearly 30 million school children rely on the National School Lunch Program services each day for breakfast, lunch, or both. In Montana, the National School Lunch Program serves 80,000 students per day. Approximately 100,000 public and non-profit private schools and residential childcare institutions receive federal funding to provide subsidized free or reduced-price meals for qualifying children.

Last month, Attorney General Knudsen was part of a 26-state coalition that called on President Biden to withdraw the USDA's guidance.

TEMPORARY CHILD CARE ASSISTANCE FOR CERTAIN HEALTH CARE WORKERS

Good news! The one-time only child care assistance for certain healthcare has expanded the list of eligible positions. Applications are now open. Funding is limited and applications are processed on a first come first serve basis.

Am I an eligible healthcare worker?

• At least one parent in the household must provide direct care services to patients or clients in one of the following health care sector categories:

- o Health care,
- o Behavioral health,
- o Disability services, or

o Long-term care settings to include home and community-based services, assisted living, skilled nursing, or home health (see attached list).

What are other requirements for this program?

- Family must live in Montana.
- Family income at or below 250% Federal Poverty Level (FPL).
- Children must be a U.S. citizen or qualified alien.
- Children must be under 12 years old to be eligible for paid child care.
- Parents with children under 18 must comply with child support if there is an absent parent
- Child care must be provided by a child care provider licensed/registered by the State of Montana.

What are the benefits of this program?

- A family will only have up to a $100 monthly copayment.
- A family is eligible for 12 months.
- A child care provider will be paid the full authorized amount, regardless of attendance. This ensures a child will have a child care slot with the provider.

Visit childcare.mt.gov or contact your local Child Care Resource and Referral agency to apply
