Claire V. (Marchesseault) Owen

On October 17, Claire Owen, quietly and courageously slipped beyond the veil to claim our Maker's promise of everlasting life

A reception will be held in Claire V. (Marchesseault) Owen's honor at the Sweetwater Café at 24 S. Idaho St, Dillon, MT on Monday, the 24th of October at 5:00 pm.

George H Nelson

George H Nelson was born on Jan. 31, 1937, to parents Harry and Susie Nelson. He had three brothers — Louie, Howard, and Robert — and one sister, Virginia (Ginger Brue). George grew up in Livingston, Montana, at the heart of a loving family. He was always active in athletics, and his passion for basketball kindled early. After a distinguished career at Park County High School in Livingston, he brought his basketball show to Dillon's Western Montana College — and didn't slow down a bit.

George earned all-conference honors for three straight seasons. He played on basketball teams that either won conference titles or tied for them. The Bulldogs made regular trips to the national tournament during his playing days. As a senior, he was voted the league's most valuable player. His four years on the court remain the most successful span in Western's basketball history, and in 1981, he was inducted into the first Bulldog Athletic Hall of Fame class.

George earned a Bachelor of Science in Education from Western in 1960. After serving six years in the Army National Guard and simultaneously teaching and coaching in Conrad, Rudyard, and Shelby, he returned to Western to pursue his Master's in Education. He helped coach the 1967 Montana Western baseball team to victory in the Frontier Conference Championship while earning his master's. In 2021, Western inducted him into its Hall of Fame along with the team.

After graduation, George served as athletic director and head coach of all sports at Belgrade High School. His seven-year, star-studded coaching career there included achieving a 60-11 overall football record, six district titles, three divisional trophies, and a victory in the 1973 Class B State Championship. He was named Class B Coach of the Year by the Montana Coaches' Association for his football prowess in 1972 and 1973, and for his basketball expertise in 1973 and 1974.

He returned to Western in 1974 as head football coach. That same year, he was selected as the head coach for the Shrine Football Game. His six-year Bulldog coaching career included a 1977 Frontier Conference Championship and a Frontier Conference Coach of the Year award. During his tenure as head football coach, George served one term as president of the Frontier Conference and one term as vice-president of the Montana Education Association unit at Western. In 2013, he was inducted into the University of Montana Western Hall of Fame for coaching the 1977 football team.

George retired from coaching in 1980 and worked as the director of the Western Montana College Alumni Association until 1986. Under his leadership, the association created the Western Montana College Athletic Hall of Fame. The final notch on George's Western resume was his post as director of student teaching and placement. He served in that position until his retirement in 1996.

The friendships George made during his years of coaching and teaching were deep and meaningful. In the same years he formed lasting bonds with his mentors, players, and peers, he also built a family. George married Ellen McCracken on May 29, 1963. They were blessed with two children, Randal and Linda, and five granddaughters: Kalli, Kelsey, Alexandra, Madison, and Mackenzie. Ellen was the love of George's life for nearly 60 years, and their children and grandchildren added a dash of spice to those days together.

Of course, anyone who knew George could see he had a zest for life all his own. He was a perennial class clown, always ready with a prank, pun, or witty comment. As Ellen puts it, "George was born to enjoy life — and he made sure everybody nearby enjoyed it with him." When he wasn't finding humor in unlikely places, George stayed busy exploring the back roads of Montana, feeding moose and deer from the deck of his hand-built cabin in Polaris, and cheering on his children and grandchildren at their many sporting events. Through them, he shared his passion for athletics with future generations.

George passed away on Sunday, Oct. 16, at his home in Dillon. He led a long, loving, and accomplished life of 85 years. He is survived by his brother, Robert, his wife, Ellen, and their cherished children and grandchildren. Friends of the family are invited to celebrate George's life at a memorial at 1 p.m. on Tuesday, Oct. 25, at Our Savior's Lutheran Church in Dillon. In lieu of flowers, the family will welcome contributions for a memorial fund, which will be gifted to Western in George's honor.

Secretary Christi Jacobsen, Land Board increase public access with Big Snowy Mountains WMA
Montana Secretary of State Christi Jacobsen was one of four members of the Montana Land Board to approve the state's purchase of nearly 5,700 acres at the base of the Big Snowy Mountains this week. The acquisition will provide improved public access to nearly 100,000 acres, granting more opportunities for hunting, fishing, and recreation.
The land will also remain available for cattle grazing after the Montana Fish, Wildlife, and Parks (FWP) proposed a covenant in the vesting deed at the request of Governor Greg Gianforte.
"Montanans will now have additional opportunities to access more of our beautiful state," said Secretary Jacobsen. "It's also important that Montana ranchers continue to have grazing options, and the Big Snowy acquisition will benefit both Montana agriculture and public recreation."
Secretary Jacobsen and the Land Board approved the purchase Monday, creating the Big Snowy Mountains Wildlife Management Area north of Ryegate in Golden Valley County. The property is "winter range and year-round habitat for elk, mule deer, and pronghorn, as well as habitat for black bear, white-tailed deer, and other native species," according to Montana FWP.
Once the transaction is complete, FWP will prepare the property for access before its official opening to the public.

TRUCK TRAILER FIRE

Jeremy Crawford, Southwestern Montana News

The Dillon Volunteer Fire department was called out late Wednesday night to a trailer fire on southbound I-15. A truck pulling a trailer hauling reclaimed lumber had caught on fire. The trailer had a wheel bearing go out, heat up and set the wood ablaze. The fire department was able to keep the fire contained to the trailer and stop it from spreading. Traffic was stopped in the southbound lane for about 15 minutes while they got the fire under control.

Partnership to promote hunter behavior It's up to us. Respect access. Protect the hunt

In Montana, good relationships between hunters and landowners are integral to our opportunities, lead to proper wildlife management and ensure that our hunting traditions continue.

Landowners play an important role in sustaining healthy wildlife populations, contributing to our economy and communities by creating jobs, and providing valuable habitat and treasured open spaces. But the relationship between hunters and landowners can start to fray when just a few hunters abuse the privilege of hunting on private land.

To promote the importance of hunter ethics and improved hunter behavior, FWP is partnering with other conservation and agriculture organizations to "protect the hunt."

The campaign is focused on hunter responsibility and respect for private land and the access landowners provide. The slogan is: It's up to us. Respect access. Protect the hunt.

"Through programs like Block Management, Montana ranch families provide free public hunting experiences across the state. We ask sportsmen to protect access by respecting the places they hunt and holding one another accountable," said Jim Steinbeisser, Montana Stockgrowers Association President.

"While hunters in Montana enjoy a wealth of hunting opportunity on our public lands, private lands in the state offer irreplaceable hunting access and vital habitat for our public wildlife. But access to private lands is a privilege that can be swiftly taken away from us," said Backcountry Hunters & Anglers Montana Coordinator Kevin Farron.

While excellent hunter behavior might be the norm in Montana, poor behavior, like not following landowner rules, trespassing, abusing access privileges, littering, and a host of other offenses, can lead to a decline in access opportunities. In fact, many hunters don't know that not following rules for a block management area can result in a citation for hunting without landowner permission.

Improving hunter and landowner relationships by promoting hunting ethics will enhance the critical relationships between hunters and landowners and allow us to better manage wildlife.

Along with an outreach campaign, hunters and landowners can visit the FWP website for more information on hunting ethics, working with landowners, and to link to all the partners involved.
