from Beaverhead County High School. Upon returning to the ranch she helped in the house or outside with the ranch work (which she preferred).

She married Richard (Dick) McNinch on June 11, 1947. They lived and worked on the Harkness family ranch along with Bonnie's parents and her brother, Bernard, and his wife, Shirley Jean.

Dick and Bonnie had two girls, Diana and Evelyn. Both girls grew up on the ranch knowing how to run all of the equipment or doing whatever needed to be done to keep the ranch operating.

Bonnie was a hard-working woman who didn't hesitate to take on a project if it needed to be done from putting a new roof on the barn to re-roofing the house. She even dug a basement under the old house to make room for a fuel oil furnace. She was tired of the mess from the wood stoves.

In 1993, the family ranch was sold and Dick and Bonnie moved to the outer limits of Lima where they retired and resided since. Bonnie wasn't happy to just sit and do nothing. She proceeded to create a lawn and planted many trees around the property, saying that she wanted privacy.

She was preceded in death by her husband, Dick, and her daughter, Diana. She is survived by her daughter, Evelyn (Chuck) Larsen, son-in-law, Dick Walrath, one niece and two nephews, four grandchildren, and four great-granddaughters. There are numerous great-nieces and great-nephews.

Bonnie will be missed greatly by everyone.

We call it Squirrel Meadows. What a perfect place to stay. It's nestled in the Tetons. Ain't no better place to play.

The road is long and dusty, but it's never overrun. That's where a dozen cowboys went to ride and have some fun.

We made camp at the old cabin. Breakfast came at near daylight. Eggs and bacon, buttered hotcakes filled your stomach nice and tight.

'Twas time to saddle up 'cuz we'd be riding most the day. We always hoped for safety so we asked someone to pray.

The South Boone trail to Berry Creek was overgrown and steep. The switch backs on the mountain kept us moving at a creep.

The horses gave their extra. You could smell the dried up sweat. So the cowboys rode back to their camp. But the day weren't over yet.

With the horses fed and watered, they'd kick off their cowboy duds. Then settle down to dinner with the thickest steaks and spuds.

I cut a hunk of tender meat and raised it to my mouth, when I saw a man approaching. He was riding from the south.

He rode in on a bicycle. I said, "Got a place to stay?" He said, "My name is Fletcher. I've been riding hard all day."

We told him, "Hop on down and you can stay here for the night. We hope you've got an appetite. You gotta have a bite."

Fletcher was as skinny as a toothpick on a string. I wondered how much food he'd eat, if even anything.

But Fletcher fooled the lot of us, with his hollowed out entrails. I think that lonely biker was dug out to his toenails.

He gobbled down the rarest steak. That biker sure could dine. I thought for just a minute that he had his eye on mine.

He polished off the cream style corn. I waved the spuds goodbye. Then he finished up his dinner with half a berry pie.

Well Fletcher's healthy appetite was something to admire. Each cowboy gave a belly laugh while circling round the fire.

We talked and joked into the night, then no one made a sound. The cowboy's thoughts were 'bout the day, a good time all around.

Open Enrollment for Health Insurance is Here, and It Matters to Beaverhead County

Many Montanans can find a plan for $10 or less per month.

November 1 marked the official open enrollment season for Montanans to shop for affordable health coverage plans on the Marketplace. With changes in federal laws, the average cost of a health care plan in Montana is $142 a month. However, a third of Montanans can get coverage for less than $10 per month, and more than 86% qualify for a tax credit to make their monthly premiums more affordable.

"Rural communities face challenges that contribute to persistent health disparities compared to urban areas, and part of that is the higher numbers of people without health insurance," said Olivia Riutta, Director of Population Health with the Montana Primary Care Association. "Getting quality affordable health insurance is critical, and since finding the right plan can be confusing, the Navigator team at the Montana Primary Care Association is ready to help."

Of the more than 50,000 Montanans who get their health insurance on the marketplace, more than 37,000 are from rural Montana. Enrollees come from every part of the workforce, but in the Montana Marketplace, one-fourth of working-age enrollees are either small business owners or self-employed.

Medicaid is also essential in rural Montana. In Beaverhead County, 2,131 residents, which is 23%, have Medicaid, Medicaid expansion, or Healthy Montana Kids as their health insurance. Statewide, 65% of Medicaid recipients in Montana live in rural Montana.

"For the cost of lunch, many Montanans can buy health insurance and the peace of mind knowing they can see the doctor without getting a huge medical bill," said Cindy Stergar, CEO of the Montana Primary Care Association.

The Montana Primary Care Association is a Navigator grantee serving the state of Montana. Through Cover Montana, Montanans can learn health insurance basics, fill out a calculator to see what they qualify for, and connect to an enrollment assister who can walk them through the application and enrollment process. Cover Montana Navigators can provide phone and virtual assistance statewide and in-person enrollment assistance in the following
