Grandpa's Angel

Bryce Angell

"Do you believe in angels?" My grandpa once asked me.

I told him that my mother was as close as one could be.

I was only ten years old then and didn't have a clue. But I hoped there were some angels, maybe one that Grandpa knew.My grandpa's eyes shone bright as stars. His thoughts were days of old. I was 'bout to hear a story, one that he had never told.Grandpa said he'd seen an angel many years ago and made a promise to himself, he'd be that angel's beau.

I wasn't sure just what he meant. "You knew she'd be your wife?"

I'm never getting married. Don't need women in my life.

"And girls don't look like angels. They don't have wings to fly."

The thought of having girlfriends? Yuk! I guess I'd rather die."

Grandpa said, "It's only natural for a boy to feel this way. Do you think that girls are sissies and just have paper dolls for play?"

Then he said, "Don't worry, boy. Your angel will appear."

By then you'll see it my way, and you won't have boyish fear."

I listened so intently as my grandpa spoke to me,

'cuz I felt a little leery 'bout this angel I would see.

Grandpa's voice got quiet. "She'll take you by surprise."

You prob'ly won't know what to say and won't believe your eyes.

"The first time that she smiles at you, you'll know just what I mean."

For sure she'll be your angel. The one you've not foreseen."

Then grandpa said, "My angel is the best part of my life."

She's been with me for sixty years and never caused me strife."

With a twinkle in his eye, he said, "Throughout these many years,

I could snuggle up to Grandma, and she never boxed my ears."

Grandpa's story ended and he wandered off a bit.

He clasped my grandma's hand and found a place for them to sit.

I loved it when I saw my grandpa hold my grandma's hand.

It taught me 'bout two peoples' love. It helped me understand.

And when I saw my angel, I knew I'd be her beau.

But Grandpa got it wrong 'cuz when she smiled, I said, "Hello!"

Legislative Update

from Representative Tom Welch January 15, 2023

We are two weeks into a busy 68th Montana Legislative Session. We have over 4500 Bill drafts in possible play with 444 Bills already moving thru the process. As I have in past Sessions, I serve on the House Taxation Committee again as Vice Chair and also on the House Health and Human Services Committee. To date, I have introduced five Bills with all of them having had House Committee hearings. Four of the five have also now passed the House floor and are headed to the Senate for consideration. My introduced Bills to date include HB 24 Revise Tax Credit Schedule, HB 25 Repeal Gray Water Property Abatement, HB 129 Revise Fees for Special Mobile Equipment, HB 138 Generally Revise Montana Bank Laws and HB 139 Generally Revise Laws Related to Mutual Savings and Loan Associations. All of these Bills passed their respective House Committees and the House Floor on unanimous or nearly unanimous votes.

This week I will be bringing to the House Floor two Bills from Governor Gianforte's package of Bills. These are HB 221 Revise Income Tax Rates for Net-Long Term Capital Gains and HB 222 which Provides Rebates of Property Taxes Paid on A Principal Resident. I appreciate that Governor Gianforte has asked me to sponsor and carry these critical Bills as we work to wisely manage the State's excess funds. As expected, there is no end to the ideas as to how best to address our surplus-much of which is one-time funds. Many Legislators, including myself are emphasizing that we need to be deliberate and transparent throughout this process yet get dollars and tax relief in one form or another to Montanans as quickly as possible. You will hear much more about this in the coming weeks. Among the highlights of my first two weeks at the Legislature was that the three Beaverhead County High School students who applied to work as Pages at the Legislature were selected to do so. The first week Laura Martin and Andrew Egan joined me at the Legislature while Olivette Copple was here this past week. I was pleased and honored to have sponsored these outstanding students. This Program allows a select group of Juniors and Senior from Montana High Schools to spend a week in Helena. While here, they not only assist Legislators and staff with day-to-day operations but also have the opportunity to view the inner workings of a Legislative Session as well as meet with State leaders such as Governor Gianforte and Attorney General Knudsen.

I look forward to updating you periodically as we work thru the remaining weeks of our Legislative Session. I can be reached at - tom.welch@legmt.com THANKS!

Senator Welborn's Weekly Review

The 68th Montana Legislature is officially underway, and we just finished up our second week of business. I'm happy to see Senate Republicans, and some Democrats alike, getting to work on enacting common sense policy for our state.

The last time the Legislature met, we successfully passed a conservative & balanced budget, cut taxes for individuals and businesses, secured our Second Amendment rights, invested in public access to our public lands, promoted high speed broadband, and further secured our elections. We also put a constitutional amendment on the ballot to ensure Montanans' electronic communications are protected from government intrusion, which voters overwhelmingly adopted in November's election.

Although, we took strides moving our State forward, there is always work to do, let's start with hunting, wildlife management, and landowner relations. We recently had the first hearing on a bill that will double the annual cap on money that private landowners can receive for allowing public hunters onto their properties via the Block Management Program. Senate Bill 58, introduced by Senator Steve Hinebaugh, a Republican from Glendive, will sustain and improve hunters' access to many prime hunting grounds located on private property, while benefiting landowners who participate in block management. The bill is a win for taxpayers because block management is funded by hunters, not general taxpayers. It's also a win for conservation because it allows the state to more effectively manage our wildlife. SB 58 drew universal support in its first committee hearing.

Since the last legislative session, three major things have happened that will impact the current session in monumental ways. The first is that Montana now has a record budget surplus in the neighborhood of $2 billion. The second is that Montana's housing market went from very hot in certain areas to completely unaffordable and unsustainable across much of the state. The third is that voters elected a supermajority of Republicans to the Legislature, something that had never happened before.

All of this means we're entering what we expect to be another historic legislative session. Top of mind for me is providing financial relief to Montanans who are suffering from current inflation and the high cost of living. Perhaps the "worst kept secret," as Governor Gianforte has put it, is that we're going to cut taxes again. With our massive budget surplus, we're looking to pay down the state's debt to get rid of those existing taxpayer obligations. We're also working on the specifics of returning hundreds of millions of dollars back to Montana resident taxpayers, whether it be in direct rebates, tax credits, or backfilling programs, and funding projects that will keep tax increases and future spending at a minimum. What ever mix we come up, will be a benefit to you, the tax payer.

I'm also working with a bi-partisan group of fellow lawmakers, and a broad group of stakeholders on a long term funding source for both habitat enhancement work and conservation district funding. Most likely looking at a mix of budget surplus, existing habitat program dollars or perhaps marijuana tax dollars to stabilize these programs that are vitally important to rural Montana, over the long haul.

We're also working with the governor on a massive Red Tape Relief project to get rid of unnecessary government regulations that stifle businesses and prevent Montanans from achieving their full potential. On the housing front, we're again working in conjunction with the governor on a suite of legislative options to make housing more affordable and attainable.

I expect to see more state constitutional amendments on the ballot for voters to consider. It takes 100 out of 150 legislators to propose an amendment, and a majority of voters in the next election to actually amend the state's constitution. Both of those are big hurdles to meet, meaning that amendments need to be clear and have broad support. I most likely won't be supporting most, if of any of these proposed constitutional changes being proposed, our constitution is for most part working very well as it is, and change sometimes comes with unintended consequences.

The Legislature will consider hundreds of additional proposals in the coming months. Every member is there to represent their specific constituents and every lawmaker has their own individual goals and priorities. But the ones I've mentioned here are the big ones for the people I represent, and also the ones I expect to define this legislative session.

The Legislature is the most transparent and most accessible branch of Montana's government. It's also the branch that's closest to you, the people. Please Testify on bills you care about, whether in person at the Capitol or remotely via Zoom. Make your voice heard by logging in to www.leg.mt.gov

Or simply shoot me a text or and email, letting me know what is important to you. Jeff.welborn@legmt.gov

Thanks for your time, and please check back again next week, for more from the 68th Legislative Session., Senator Jeff Welborn, Montana's 36th District
