Montana Western Football has released its schedule for the 2023 season.

"We have a good mix of home and away, some new opportunities and a really challenging slate of games to look forward to." Head Football Coach Ryan Nourse said.

The Bulldogs will play ten games in total, including a road game with new Frontier Conference member and first-time opponent Arizona Christian University and a first-time opponent in Lewis and Clark College out of Oregon.

"2023 will be a tough schedule having both our rivalry games with Montana Tech and Carroll College on the road and travelling in weeks one and two to Eastern Oregon and College of Idaho. It will be a challenge, but one we will be up for." Nourse continued. "We also have some new exciting opportunities with this schedule; playing two teams that UMW has not played before, Lewis and Clark College at home and Arizona Christian University on the road."

THANK YOU

Thank you to everyone who was there for me during this incredibly difficult time losing my husband Joe Arbour. I don't know what I would have done without your help, comfort and calmness with all that needed to be done.

A big thank you to all the amazing people who donated to the Dillon Woodbank in Joe's honor. It means a lot to me and my family. You are truly a blessing.

Workforce & Training Community Forum

March 7th 2023

Accelerate Montana, the workforce development arm of the University of Montana, will be hosting community forums across the state beginning in February and running through the end of March. These forums are meant to bring awareness to the community to the overall AccelerateMT Workforce development programs as well as our incredible partnerships with training partners and workforce agencies.

The additional goal is to continue the conversation of community needs as it relates to Students, Employers, and Training availability. The plan is to host a 3-hour event with breakout sessions to reach various community groups. Educators, Employers, and then Student, parents, and the General community.

The 3-hour event intends to also feature information booths for partner agencies, such as Job Service, Reach Higher Montana, Career Futures, REO, etc.

Event Schedule

Main Room

- 4pm - 7pm Resource Fair information booths featuring partner Agencies

Breakout Room

- 4pm - 5pm Educators, Superintendents, Principles, counselors, CTE and Heathcare instructors from area High Schools. This session is intended to bring awareness of Rapid Training Programs as a viable option to future students. Specifically highlighting programs available through UM-Western
- 5pm - 6pm Employers, AccelerateMT is more than the Rapid Training program. This session is intended to bring awareness to the area employers the different ways AccererateMT can provide support.
- 6pm - 7pm Community - This session is intended to provide information about AccelerateMT and UM-Western Rapid Training Programs and the various financial resources available to community members to help fund training costs.

Event Location:

The University of Montana Western Campus
STC Great Room 710 S. Atlantic

Letter to the Editor

A misguided bill currently before the state legislature, listed as LC2215, states "Science instruction may not include subject matter that is not scientific fact." And so on.

This absurd, perhaps even potentially perilous, bill was introduced by Mr. Daniel Emrich (R-District 11). Passing it would severely hamstring Montana students and teachers. The approach to teaching required in the bill is profoundly outdated.

Noble Prize winner in chemistry, Thomas Cech, of CU Boulder wrote: We use whatever techniques are required to really delve into questions about how nature works. Techniques mean the processes of science.

Science is far more than a collection of "facts." Students should learn that science is primarily a process of investigative discovery, of inquiry, through properly controlled experiments and observations---processes. It is a way of knowing about natural-world phenomena and indeed the universe. Scientific "facts" may be modified as we learn more. They often don't particularly wear well.

Scientific research and observation generate data (evidence) for further exploration and the development of new hypotheses, principles, theories and yes, on rare occasions, even laws. For example: The laws of thermodynamics, Mendel's laws of inheritance and Newton's laws of motion. There are not many laws in science. Do they count as "facts"?

There are numerous scientific theories that this bill might require not to be taught.

A theory is not a guess or hunch but is constructed upon copious scientific evidence that has been constantly confirmed to develop a well-substantiated explanation of natural phenomena. Examples: All living organisms are composed of one or more cells, the atomic theory, the germ theory and the theory of evolution. Theories are based on ideas that can be tested. Scientists use several techniques to develop a theory.

The core of what students need to know about science is the process of scientific inquiry. This is how we develop the landscape of scientific knowledge and yes, of course, students benefit from learning the important aspects of a discipline. But teach only the "facts"—come on.

Memorizing and restating "facts" only would leave Montana students way behind in their knowledge and appreciation of science as a process. This bill shows a lack of understanding about teaching science and passing it could contribute to a dislike and distrust of science in general. This happens even now. For example, look at the all-too-common misunderstanding of science by denial and even fear of covid 19 vaccines. Our understanding of a virulent virus was modified in light of new evidence—a process. That continues.

With new data and interpretation, old ideas are replaced or supplemented by newer ones; that is, scientific knowledge is open to revision in light of new experimental or observational evidence. Students should understand science as a self-correcting, ever-evolving process of problem-solving (see the Nature of Science by the National Association of Science Teachers for sources and details).

Mr. Emerich, please let the students spend their time learning scientific methods, observing nature, and conducting experiments: not memorizing reputed "facts." Let them appreciate and enjoy science as a process. Make science classrooms, labs and field trips experiential. Kids enjoy active, hands-on exploration and learning that fosters a better understanding and appreciation of science. It works.
