Innovative Program Launched to Reduce Wildlife-Vehicle Conflicts

Montana Wildlife & Transportation Partnership Addressing Growing Concerns Through Program

A new planning tool was announced Wednesday by the Montana Wildlife and Transportation Partnership (MWTP or Partnership), aimed to help local groups identify areas of greatest need for decreasing wildlife-vehicle collisions (WVCs) and improving wildlife movement across our state highways.

The Montana Wildlife and Transportation Partnership is a collaborative group of representatives from the Montana Department of Transportation (MDT), Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks (FWP), and Montanans for Safe Wildlife Passage (MSWP). Formed in 2019, the Partnership recognized that reducing WVCs means finding ways to accommodate wildlife movement across highways. As a result, the Partnership developed a statewide project application process for the public to propose collaborative, stand-alone wildlife accommodation projects within the state's highway infrastructure.

"Montanans care deeply about protecting our natural resources and keeping one another safe," MDT Director, Malcolm Long, said. "After years of planning, MWTP celebrates a new opportunity to further public-private partnerships that reduce wildlife and transportation conflicts and improve wildlife connectivity in Montana."

Without action, this problem isn't going away. Montana has one of the nation's highest incidences of wildlife-vehicle collisions per capita. Each year, MDT maintenance crews collect more than 6,000 wildlife animal carcasses, and more than 10 percent of all crashes in Montana result from wildlife collisions. Nationally, WVCs kill more than one million large mammals, cause hundreds of human fatalities, and lead to more than 26,000 injuries, all at an annual cost of nearly $11 billion nationwide.

"The best solutions for wildlife vehicle conflicts are found at the local level with all the stakeholders engaged," said FWP Director Hank Worsech. "This tool provides the kind of information needed for those solutions to come forward."

To draw out these solutions, the Planning Tool can identify one- to two-mile state highway segments that may be candidates for wildlife accommodation projects upon further analysis. It has been built on various data sources that have been compiled, weighed, and ranked, representing five key criteria for identifying areas of need across the state.

The Planning Tool supports the larger Project Program, which addresses the need for transportation projects dedicated to accommodating wildlife with the collaborative engagement of stakeholders, including leveraging capacity and capital investment.

Collaboration will be essential to focus public-private resources as groups prepare applications for the Project Program. The first application cycle will be open from May 1 to May 31. Readying projects for application will require coordination, time, and investment, which is why the tool and Project Program guidance documents are being launched three months prior to ensure those interested have ample opportunities to review resources before applying.

The next application cycle is expected to be open from Nov. 1 to Nov. 30. MWTP will have one or two application cycles per year for the foreseeable future. Once an application is received, the MWTP will evaluate project proposals and select stand-alone wildlife accommodation projects that reduce WVCs and improve safe wildlife passage across Montana highways. The MWTP will then support selected applicants through the study and potential development phases.

The MWTP expects proposed projects to demonstrate collaboration between landowners, the public, non-profit and non-governmental organizations, sporting groups, philanthropic interests, public agencies, local governments, community groups, and/or Tribal governments.

The project selection process integrates information from the Planning Tool with other evaluation criteria and considerations, such as community support, surrounding land use, and engineering feasibility, to rate project proposals.

To demonstrate the tool and explain more about the application process, members of the MWTP will host a live webinar in mid-April. The exact date will be determined in the coming weeks. Those interested in attending can visit the project webpage, https://www.mdt.mt.gov/pubinvolve/mwt/, to learn more about the Partnership, the Planning Tool, and the Project Program, and be directed to the upcoming webinar.

(Who are we and what do we do?)

Who Are We ...

Bike Walk Southwest Montana (BWSWMT) is a Non-Profit Public Charity Service Organization licensed by the IRS in 2018 to operate as a Tax-exempt Non-profit in Southwest Montana. The BWSWMT motto is "Active Living is a Lifestyle"©. BWSWMT operates solely on donated time of volunteers without payment and solely on donated cash. We do not charge for any service(s). All donations are returned directly or indirectly to the Dillon I Beaverhead community.

What We Do ....

BWSWMT supports and gives aide to local, regional and international bicyclists and walkers travelling through SW Montana. Most travelers follow a variety of traditional Trans-American bicycle and walking routes and many create special routes meeting their interests and abilities. Most bicyclists and walkers travelling through Beaverhead County come to the BWSWMT camp to rest and use as a homebase while visiting the local area. In 2022,Google Maps identified the camp as one of the top 10 places for walkers and bicyclists to visit. The majority of visitors arrive in early April and several are known to arrive in late October. On the average the camp hosts 400+ camping visitations of walkers and bicyclists each year.

Throughout the year, BWSWMT also supports several projects and programs such as: minor bicycle related repairs, a bicycle refurbishing I repair program, a bicycle give-away program to those in need, a give-away helmet program, a rescue service for walkers and bicyclists in distress, a maintenance I repair program for the Rx Trails at the hospital, YMCA park and at Chris Craft Park. And for those wanting to be part of a group outing, BWSWMT hosts several regional walking and/or bicycling group outings throughout the year. BWSWMT is also currently working with a subcommittee to construct two pickleball courts at the camp.

The BWSWMT camp is open to public year-round with prior check-in. Dogs are allowed as long as they are leashed, and the dog poop is cleaned up by the dog owner-o

BWSWMT is on Google Maps at: https://www.bikewalkswmontana.org/, the web at https://www.bikewalkswmontana.org/ and Facebook as Bike Walk Southwest

Beaverhead County Health Survey - Voice Your Opinion About Local Healthcare

Community members in Beaverhead County and surrounding areas may soon be receiving a Community Health Needs Assessment survey in their mailbox. This survey will be sent to a random sample of homes and will help Barrett Hospital & HealthCare and Beaverhead County Public Health Department identify healthcare and health services needed in the community.

The assessment asks for input on items ranging from local health resources, barriers to care, and gaps in services to trends regarding health and healthy lifestyles. Citizens can voice their opinion by completing the survey they receive in their mailbox and returning the completed survey by March 31.

This project, administered by the Montana Office of Rural Health will assist the organizations in an analysis of local community needs, use of local healthcare services, and overall community health. This process was developed to maintain quality healthcare to serve the continuing and future needs of the community.

"It's important to be in line with what is happening in our community so we can be working for the betterment of our community," explained Barrett Hospital & HealthCare's Chief Executive Officer, Taylor Rose. "This assessment aligns us with other local community groups so we can work collaboratively to make sure we're supporting our community's needs in every way possible."

An accompanying goal of the Community Health Needs Assessment survey is to keep healthcare dollars within the local community. While the vast majority of healthcare can be provided locally, rural citizens often drive miles and miles to large medical centers for care, spending money on healthcare and non-health care purchases that could be spent locally. It is estimated that within a typical rural community, millions of dollars of revenue are lost in this way.

About Barrett Hospital & HealthCare:

Established in 1922, Barrett Hospital & HealthCare is a non-profit Critical Access Hospital (CAH) and medical clinic provider in Dillon, Montana. Based on The Chartis Center's Rural Hospital

Performance Index, the National Rural Health Association (NRHA) has recognized Barrett Hospital & HealthCare as a Top 20 CAH five times, including in 2022. For more information, visit www.barretthospital.org

BUCKLE UP!

By "Swede"Troedsson

In the early 1980's I was dispatched as a volunteer ambulance EMT. We left Dillon, Montana early on a winter afternoon, headed for a vehicle accident in the vicinity of the High Bridge. The High Bridge crosses the Beaverhead River on I-15 about 15 miles south of Dillon.

A woman driver's car spun off the iced-over bridge deck. Her car rolled to the bottom of the slope below the bridge. The woman was ejected from her car. She was seriously injured.

Highway Patrolman Harold Forsman was on the scene when we arrived. As we were picking up the woman to load her in the ambulance, we heard another vehicle crash above us. That other vehicle, driven by a woman, spun off the bridge, rolled over once in mid-air, and landed upright about 50 feet from us! We could see the woman swaying side to side in her car seat as the car suspension system settled town.

The woman was buckled up. She was uninjured!

To me one of the greatest incentives to buckle up is looking outside the window and seeing mile after mile of barb wire fences paralleling the highways and county roads in Montana.

One evening we responded to a vehicle accident on a highway north of Dillon. The driver failed to negotiate the curve at the bottom of Apex Hill, located about 15 miles north of Dillon. He wrecked, and was ejected from his car. He was sieved through a barbed wire fence.

It was not a pretty sight.

Help wildlife survive winter by giving them space Recreationists can help protect critical habitat

Winter and spring are stressful times for wildlife as they must rely on fat reserves and limited nutrition to survive. This can make encounters with people especially detrimental to wildlife as the stress of these encounters can deplete an animal's energy reserves.

The best thing people can do to help wildlife survive is give them plenty of space. This helps animals retain the energy they need to make it through this season of cold temperatures and limited forage.

This need is illustrated in an area of the Spanish Peaks near Big Sky. Bighorn sheep spend the winter months in Deer Creek and Asbestos Creek, which are becoming more frequently visited destinations for backcountry skiing. Backcountry skiing in this area puts recreationists amid critical habitat for a struggling population of bighorn sheep.

Cold temperatures and heavy snowfall have brought excellent opportunities for recreationists, but they've also made this winter exceptionally difficult for wildlife. As people across the state head outside to enjoy skiing, looking for antler sheds and other forms of winter recreation, here are some steps they can take to help wildlife:

Avoid recreating in areas with wintering wildlife. If you plan to ski in the Spanish Peaks, be aware that Asbestos Creek and Deer Creek are essential winter habitat for bighorn sheep.

Abide by seasonal closures on wildlife management areas. Public access is closed in winter for many wildlife management areas to provide habitat security. These closures are strictly enforced.

If you encounter wildlife, especially ungulates, give them plenty of space and consider recreating elsewhere. Animals may seem like they don't mind your presence, but stress from these encounters is harmful.

Always keep pets under control.

Never feed wildlife. Artificially feeding wildlife can cause digestive failure for animals and is illegal.

As people keep their distance from wildlife, they protect an important part of what makes Montana's outdoors so extraordinary. To learn more, visit fwp.mt.gov.
