Carol Ann Severson Cypher

Carol Ann Severson Cypher passed away surrounded by family on Thursday, March 9, 2023. She was born at home near Phelps, Wisconsin to Arnold and Edith (Caskey) Severson on June 25, 1927. She was the first of eight children and delivered by her grandmother Agnes. Carol grew up a quarter mile from her Caskey grandparents on the shores of Lac Vieux Desert. She spent many happy hours at their home surrounded by aunts and uncles who called her "Toots." She loved exploring the Wisconsin woods and often accompanied her dad on his hunting, fishing, and trapping expeditions.

Carol worked at local resorts until graduation when she traveled to Powell, Wyoming to visit her aunt and uncle. She decided to stay and worked at a local dry cleaner. Terry Cypher saw her through the window and asked a friend to introduce them.

That first meeting resulted in a 60+ year marriage. They spent their early years in Bozeman, Circle, and Bridger, Montana before settling in Dillon. They passed their shared love of the outdoors to their three sons Dave, Jere, and Dan. As a family, they hiked, hunted, fished, and snowmobiled.

Together, Carol and Terry gardened, played Bridge, traveled, and were dedicated members of Grace United Methodist Church. Carol demonstrated her Christian faith through acts of service. She volunteered with God's Kitchen, Parkview Acres Nursing Home, Mick Corr's rehabilitation, and her church. In 1988, she received the Jefferson Award for public service. She embodied the qualities of grace, generosity, and true kindness.

Carol's greatest blessing was spending time with her family. She would often say, "I have a wonderful family."

She is survived by her three sons; Dave (Bonnie), Jere, Dan (Marty); nine grandchildren, Aarynn (Corrie Heath), Mark, April, Sierra (Tom) Undine, Kyle (Lauren), Garrett (Thérèse) Cypher-Plissart, Meredith (Rick) Binder, Ryan (Jessica), Samantha; eight great-grandchildren; and two sisters, Betty Hansen, and Joan (Perry) Renberg, and sister-in-law Nancy Severson. She was preceded in death by her husband Terry; daughter-in-law Molly; her siblings Agnus 'Bobbie' Rosner, Mabel (Ken) Darton, John Severson, Zada (Bill) Falk, Joy Severson; and brother-in-law David Hansen.

A family service will be held this summer. In lieu of flowers, please donate to a charity of your choice.

Walt's Leprechaun

Bryce Angell

Walt slid down off the bar stool. Could he make it to his horse? Old Joe would take him from Jim's Bar and keep him on his course. But now Joe seemed a little off. Was it terror in his eyes? Or was he just a might confused? He was in for one surprise.

It was dark around the corner, hardly visible to view. Something moved and stepped on out. Walt's eyes got wide and grew.

A tiny man dressed all in green. A vision one would seize. His fitted coat came to his waist. His pants just to his knees.

His shoes were pointed at the toes, with socks stretched to the top.

His face was worn and gnarled beneath a frizzy, red-haired mop. Above his hair, a derby hat. His teeth clenched on a pipe. He smelled of Guinness liquor. Every breath was whiskey ripe.

The little guy then spoke right up. "O'Shamus is my name. I come from Ireland far away. I hold a bit of fame."

"Some call me by O'Shamus. Most call me Leprechaun. And I can read your thoughts right now. You'd prob'ly like me gone."

O'Shamus walked toward old Joe. But Joe weren't holdin' still. He blew a snort and took off runnin' headin' for the hills.

O'Shamus said, "I'm sorry Walt. Looks like your horse is gone. Let's go back in and have a drink. He won't be back till dawn."

Now the leprechaun was full of fun. He showed what he did best. He found some guys to sing along, got drinks for all the rest.

His fav'rite song was "Danny Boy" and sang with all his heart. He ended up with "Galway Bay" then said, "It's time we part."

Walt liked the little leprechaun and wished that he would stay. But the leprechaun had disappeared, left Walt the bill to pay.

The bar-keep said "You've got no dough? I'll take your horse and saddle." Walt cried, "That little leprechaun has worn me to a frazzle."

Night was now near daylight. Walt was wonderin' what to do. When he saw old Joe come trottin' in about as good as new.

He settled with the bar-keep, and he kept his good horse Joe, but lost his saddle and his boots. He'd never felt so low.

So if you spy a leprechaun take time and pause to think. Just turn around and walk away and find yourself a shrink.

Senator Jeff Welborn's Weekly Report

After three days off last week for a transmittal break, the Montana Legislature is back in the State Capitol to kick off the second half of our 68th session.

While I was back in SW Montana for transmittal break, I had a chance to attend the George Grant Trout Unlimited Banquet, and visit with Labor Union Leaders in Butte, which is in the Northern most part of my Senate District. I also had a chance to discuss Grizzly Bear and Wolf management with ranchers the Madison and Ruby Valleys, I spoke at the Beaverhead GOP Lincoln-Reagan dinner in Dillon, and talked water policy changes with local ranchers, thanks to all for taking the time to discuss issues important to you.

Now moving on to the second half of the session, Thursday was a fairly slow start to the final 45 days, as the Senate held only a brief floor session. The House returned to the floor on Friday. Moving forward, the action is going to pick up quickly.

Out of 1,413 bills introduced at the Legislature so far, it appears about a quarter, or well over 300 general bills, failed to clear their first chamber before the transmittal deadline, meaning they're likely dead. However, bills that appropriate money or raise or lower state revenues don't have to pass through their first house until the 67th legislative day, which is about a month from now.

The only committee meeting on Thursday was the full House Appropriations Committee, which is continuing work on House Bill 2, the main state budget bill. During the meeting, lawmakers discussed the Montana Department of Public Health and Human Services budget, by far the biggest section of HB 2.

We as a group of appropriations and finance sub-committee chairs and vice chairs met as a group on Saturday morning, to discuss details of each agency budget, with the Governor's office of budget planning, ahead of HB 2 being voted on, first in the House, before it moves too the Senate for our deliberations.

Committee leaders expect to take action on HB 2 next week, to get it finalized before it gets a hearing on the House floor.

Also up for discussion in the second half of the session will be proposals to amend the Montana Constitution, which share the later transmittal deadline. Six proposed amendments are currently introduced and active in the Legislature, including proposals to establish a right to hunt and trap using "current means and methods," add "constitutional carry" to the document's right to bear arms, and revise the Montana Board of Regents' authority in response to recent court cases that limited how the Legislature could set laws affecting state college campuses. Several other amendment proposals are ready to be submitted.

Any proposal to amend the Constitution must receive support from 100 lawmakers – two-thirds of the Legislature – to be put on the next general election ballot. If all 102 members of the Republican supermajority vote together, they can put an amendment in front of voters. To date, I haven't signed onto, nor agreed to support any changes to our Constitution.

The proposed constitutional change that would embed Montanans right to hunt, fish and trap into our constitution, has raised both support and concerns from many of you. Let me be clear, I support hunting, fishing trapping, and all of our outdoor heritage as much as anyone, but I feel this proposal sets dangerous precedent, here are questions raised in my mind;

From a private property rights perspective, If you don't let someone hunt on your land, can they then take you to court? Or if you're out hunting with family, and shoot an elk that someone else has been stalking, can they have you arrested for interfering with their right to hunt? Or how about non- residents, under equal protection clause of Montana's constitution, could they then be entitled to same tags that we as Montanas can procure over the counter, in the same manner, for same price and without being in a drawing?

Worse yet, could residents and non-residents alike take game or fish, out of season should it become a right?

Due to all of these unanswered questions, and lack of case law to give us perspective, I feel hunting, fishing and trapping should remain a privilege, but not a right. One that you keep by following the law, or lose when you don't.

In closing, the Legislature also has to sort out the many policy bills that did move forward before transmittal. They include a flurry of bills dealing with zoning and housing availability, proposals to change election rules and judicial procedures and bills for establishing charter schools in the state. I will do my best to keep an keep an eye on these issues and more, as we move into the last two plus months of the 68th session.
