ARTISTS

By "Swede" Troedsson

Following my retirement from the U.S. Forest Service in 1994, I kept accepting wildland fire assignments as an Air Support Group Supervisor, which was in a critical supply shortage category. I was continually impressed with the artistic talents of some of the folks assigned to those fires.

In the mid-nineties I was dispatched to a fire near Medford, Oregon. On the fire helibase was a southwest Indian helitack crew. Two of the Indians were exceptional artists. During slack times they would pencil gorgeous sketches of native dancers. On completion of sketches, the artists would ball up the sketches and throw them in the wastebasket. When they left to fulfill a helicargo sling assignment, other helibase personnel would retrieve those discarded sketches.

Another assignment I had during this period was at a fire near Happy Camp, California, situated on the Klamath River. Dense afternoon smoke usually restricted helicopter flights to only about four hours each morning. During slack times, some of us would sit on the river bank and watch river otters hunt salmon.

Camp management had erected a triangular wooden structure made with 4X8 foot sheets of plywood which were covered with white butcher paper. Next to that plywood structure, a supply of colored felt tip pens were available for anyone who wished to sketch something during slack time following dinner.

A National Guard unit was assigned to the fire. Among them was a talented artist who sketched some entertaining pictures. One was of a soldier, with his back to the viewer, with burning trees in the background. A yellow stream went from the soldier to the fire. The soldier, looking over his shoulder, saying "Doing all we can to put out the fire." Another one of his sketches was of a turtle making love to a soldier's helmet. The helmet resembled the shape of the turtle and covered in camouflage similar in color to the turtle. A stream of little hearts rose from the turtle and its' tail was wagging.

Reference Point

In 1996 I was assigned to a fire near Tofte, on the Superior National Forest, Minnesota. In the Plans Section was an artist whose duties included drawing a new picture for the cover of the daily shift plan. Examples of his work are depicted:

Missouri Headwaters State Park

Early public input will inform draft development plan

Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks will host a scoping workshop in May to gather public input on potential improvements and additions to Missouri Headwaters State Park.

The workshop will be at the park's picnic area on Saturday, May 20, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Public comments gathered at the workshop will help inform the creation of a draft development plan later this year. Missouri Headwaters State Park is about 5 miles northeast of Three Forks on Trident Road. For more information visit fwp.mt.gov/stateparks/missouri-headwaters

FWP announces extended deadline for Open Fields enrollment period

Producers now have until April 28 to apply for Open Fields or other lease options administered through the Upland Game Bird Enhancement Program (UGBEP).

Funding for Open Fields is limited this year, and landowners interested in to the program should submit their applications early.

For more information and an application, visit FWP online at the Upland Game Bird Enhancement Program web page and then click "Open Fields Enrollment."

Attorney General Knudsen and DEA host first Montana family summit

Montana Attorney General Austin Knudsen, in partnership with the Drug Enforcement Administration's Rocky Mountain Field Division, hosted a Family Summit Wednesday in support of those who have lost loved ones to the drug poisoning and overdose epidemic.

If you are interested in information on how to get involved in future events you are encouraged to reach out to the DEA Rocky Mountain Field Division or complete the Advocates for Change form and submit it to familyoutreach@dea.gov.

DEA has resources available to help parents and caregivers talk to kids about the dangers of drug use. You can also visit the Get Smart About Drugs website.

If you or someone you know needs help with substance use or mental health disorders, please visit DEA's Recovery Resources page for a list of resources.

Title IX: It Has Always Just Been A Family Thing

Montana Western continues to honor the 50th Anniversary year of the passing of Title IX by sharing the stories and history of women's athletics at UMW. Today honors a unique story of the Momberg sisters who are current student-athletes at Montana Western and are both members of the Montana Western Women's Basketball Team.

Joelnell Momberg

"Basketball was always a big part of what we did. It was one of the few sports where we came from in Box Elder. Sports is very important because Box Elder is so tiny, there was not a lot of stuff to do. Gyms and basketball were the only things available for us, so we took advantage of that and decided that we wanted to further our basketball careers and Western gave us that opportunity.

It was also important to our stepdad who is basically like our dad. He was also our high school coach and we grew up around basketball. It was around us so much, but it was never forced upon us. We just liked to play it so much. It was also something that gave us more opportunities as we got to travel with AAU and we got to see new places and meet new people.

On the court, I think it is pretty fun to play with Kyla. We used to throw her on our basketball team, but she would never get in because she was younger, did not like it, and was not very good. In high school, we actually would push each other and argue on the court. We have matured a lot in that area. Now, we see each other and just kind of know where each other is at all of the time on the court. We do not fight as much on the court.

It is super important though to be here, especially for younger kids back home in Box Elder. There is not a high number of athletes that get the opportunity to go play at the college level and especially being able to do it with their sibling. It is important because we get to not necessarily be trailblazers, but we get to lead the way by showing a good example to kids back home, being a student-athlete, and excelling in that.

I transferred from the University of Montana and I really just like the program that Woolley has built and the culture that he has created here.

I am very thankful for my family and my siblings for all of their support with us being here. I am super thankful to our teammates for putting up with us. They help to keep us in check so we are not fighting as much.

Work really hard and no matter was opportunities that are given to you, you are always making the best of any situation that you are in. Continue to keep moving forward and keep working for what you want to do."

Kyla Momberg

"Basketball opened opportunities for us to be able to play and having an older brother who also played basketball helped us to follow in his footsteps. He would help us out so it has always just been a family thing.

When we were little, I honestly hated basketball in general and I hated playing with my sister. Because she loved it, I hated it. At first, I tried so many years to play on a team that would play against her. I wanted to go to one of her rival schools just to play against her. So, I thought I would end up at the Montana State University. Then she transferred and I thought well what am I going to do now?

Throughout the past year, I went from being the little sister who was always just the 'little sister' to wanting to be her teammate. I got talked into coming to Western for a visit and after that visit, I knew I was coming here. It worked out perfect and I think it was the best decision I have made. Some days I miss my mom so much, and I have Joelnell to go to here. Joelnell and I are actually like best friends now. I still go and stay with her and I will go and eat her dinner.

I am thankful to Coach Woolley and Coop. They do a lot behind the scenes that people do not see. I am very appreciative to them and all of our family and teammates for everything."
