Bighorn River fishing access sites partially closed due to flooding

Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks has implemented partial site closures at Manuel Lisa, General Custer, Grant Marsh and Arapooish fishing access sites due to flooding. Heavy precipitation in the Bighorn Basin has led to increased flows on the Bighorn River. Water at these sites has inundated roadways and parking areas.

Due to these conditions, motorized access is temporarily prohibited at all four sites. Walk-in access is still allowed at this time, but visitors must ensure they do not obstruct roadways or other access points when parking. Visitors are encouraged to use caution at these sites because of the quickly changing river conditions.

The sites will reopen to vehicle access as soon as conditions allow.

For a full list of current FWP site closures and restrictions, visit: <https://myfwp.mt.gov/fwpPub/allRestrictions>

The Soldier

Bryce Angell

While sitting in the airport, I glanced up to look around.

That's when I saw him take a seat. A GI duty-bound.

The soldier sat there almost catatonic in his chair.

He did not say a word. His eyes were fixed hard in a stare.

His black hair trimmed back short; the uniform was neatly pressed.

He looked sharper than a preacher all decked out in Sunday best.
So, I mustered up the courage, then I offered my handshake.

The soldier gripped my hand. For sure this man was no cupcake.
I thanked him for his service, his defense of liberty. He said,

"Our country needs good men. It might as well be me."

He said his aged grandpa, who had just turned ninety-five, had flown a plane in World War II, barely made it home alive.

His grandpa was his mentor. I'd say hero says it best.

The young man now turned soldier standing out from all the rest.
He said each time he left his home his heart would break to bits.

Then told me he had two more years before he'd call it quits.

So, I asked him 'bout his family. Has a wife and two young sons.

He said his boys think Daddy is away out shooting guns.

When a lady with the microphone then called the soldier's name.

He said, "I better get on board." He thanked me just the same.

He rose up from his chair. We stood there looking face to face.

That day I'd met a soldier who deserved our God's pure grace.

I watched him board the airplane. Nearly took my breath away, just knowing that this selfless man represents the USA.

What kind of man will risk his life to keep us safe and free, who doesn't flaunt his good deeds or claim celebrity.

Our soldiers, men or women, sure could use a prayer or two.

If you haven't bent a knee then for the soldier, try bending two.

For those who've served our country and to soldiers who were slain. Let's not forget our veterans. They did not serve in vain!

AG Knudsen's Consumer Protection Round Up AG Knudsen recognizes World Elder Abuse Awareness

Attorney General Austin Knudsen and Division of Criminal Investigation Administrator Bryan Lockerby joined Stockman Bank on World Elder Abuse Awareness Day, to remind Montana seniors to be aware and take precautions as bad actors commonly prey on the elderly population and discuss the Department of Justice's efforts to crack down on elder abuse and spread awareness of the crime.

The DOJ's Division of Criminal Investigation oversees three sections that work to protect Montana's elders. The Medicaid Fraud Control Unit provides direct assistance to criminally investigate elder abuse and exploitation within health care facilities, the Office of Consumer Protection protects seniors from financial exploitation, and the Elder Justice Unit helps to combat financial exploitation, abuse, and other crimes committed against Montana's older population.
