Proud Veteran

Bryce Angell

The gray-haired man of ninety-seven didn't stand so tall. But the soul inside this country's son was the greatest of them all.

He stood for right, no matter who or what got in his way. He loved his country and his God up to his dying day.

When duty called, at just eighteen, the Navy welcomed him. His time aboard a merchant ship was often pretty grim.

My father never talked of war; he kept it all inside. But the way he treated veterans showed that he had served with pride.

One day, when I was young, and we were hauling loads of hay, we saw a Navy boy in blue hitchhiking on our way.

My father sat behind the wheel. Said, "Let's pick up that young man. He's prob'ly headed home. I'd like to help him if we can.

"Our load is strapped down tight. It ain't about to shift around. A few more miles won't kill us and we'll help him get homebound.

"We don't give every hitchhiker a ride in this old truck. But if he's wearing uniform, we'll always be his luck."

The young man hopped up in the truck and thanked us for the ride. He said, "I'm headed home to make my sweetheart my new bride."

My dad insisted that we stop and get a bite to eat. The sailor didn't argue when my father said, "My treat."

We ordered out at Thriftway Drug. Ate our burgers on the hay. And then Dad drove the sailor home, some fifty miles away.

My father was a sailor on the USS Tangier. When getting leave they'd always hitchhike whether far or near.

But to help a lone hitchhiker, for some drivers, was too bold. Too often men in uniform were stuck out on the road.

So my father made a promise, if he lived through World War II, he'd never pass a hitchhiker who wore the Navy blue.

When my son signed to the Navy with four years of service due, my dad was proud his grandson chose to serve the Navy too.

Whenever Stars and Stripes marched by, Dad stood and gave respect. I'm proud to be this veteran's son. It ain't no brag, just fact.

Head Cross Country & Track Coach Steps Down

Jeremy Crawford, Southwestern Montana News

Dillon Zitzer reached out to let the public know he has resigned as the head coach for the UMW Cross Country team.

His resignation letter is as follows:

To Whom it May Concern, I, Dylan Zitzer, resign my duties as head cross country and track coach effective June 26th, 2023. I want to thank Ryan Nourse for hiring me and giving me the privilege of coaching in my home town for the past eight years. I'm incredibly thankful to all of the athletes' I've had the opportunity to work with during my time here. Their hard work, dedication, and pursuit of excellence has been incredibly special. It's been a good run and I'm very grateful for the successes that we've had, but I'm looking forward to moving in a new direction. Sincerely, Dylan Zitzer.

'68th Legislature veto polling results available on Secretary of State's website'

Secretary of State Christi Jacobsen announced on Friday that veto polling results from the 68th Legislative Session are available on the Secretary of State Office's website.

The Secretary of State's Office is tasked with polling legislators on bills vetoed by the governor when the legislature is not in session if the bill was approved by two-thirds of the members voting on the final vote on the bill. Once the Secretary of State's Office receives the bill and the governor's veto message, the polling process begins.

In all, 20 bills qualified for polling of Montana's 150 legislators, including 11 line-item vetoes in House Bill 5. A total of 4,500 ballots were prepared by the Secretary of State's Office and delivered to legislators.

"Thank you to our staff involved in the veto polling process these past two months," said Secretary Jacobsen. "It was a great team effort."

58 New Officers Graduate from the Montana Law Enforcement Academy

Fifty-eight new officers who will serve in 37 agencies across the state graduated today from the Montana Law Enforcement Academy (MLEA) within the Montana Department of Justice. MLEA provides basic and advanced training for state, county, city, and tribal law enforcement officers throughout the state.

Attorney General Austin Knudsen was in attendance to congratulate and address the graduates.

"Montana's law enforcement officers face many dangers stemming from an increase in crime, illicit drugs, deliberate attacks, and other perils most of us can't even imagine," Attorney General Knudsen said. "Today's graduates have stepped up to protect our communities, but they need the continued support of Montanans. As attorney general, supporting law enforcement and upholding public safety will remain two of my priorities."

COORDINATION

By "Swede" Troedsson

In May, 1988, I was dispatched to Duluth, Minnesota, to assist the Superior National Forest in their aviation program during a busy early fire season. At the time I was the Forest Aviation Officer on the Beaverhead National Forest, in Montana.

Early on, I was asked to investigate an incident where Canadian aircraft got mixed in with our aircraft over a fire on the Grand Marias Ranger District. The fire was near the Canadian border and was threatening a logging camp in Canada.

Because the retardant for the fire was being flown out of Duluth, I decided to drive out to the airport and visit with one of the air tanker pilots. At the airport, an air tanker pilot informed me that, during their retardant drop operations, Canadian water scooping aircraft and helicopters had entered the air space over the fire unannounced.

I then followed up by driving out to Grand Marias, located on the north shore of Lake Superior, to visit with the District Ranger. I was informed the Ranger was a woman.

Upon arriving at the Ranger Station, the receptionist directed me to the Ranger's office. Upon arriving at her office, I stuck my head in the door. She looked up from her desk and asked if she could help me. I said "Oh, sorry, I was looking for the Ranger." She blurted out "I AM the Ranger!". I laughed, and she knew that I knew. I complemented her, and she took the jab in good humor. We had a good visit.

The Ranger informed me that a Type 2 fire suppression team had arrived to take over management of the fire suppression activities. A meeting was held to brief the team. The Canadians had not been invited even though they had as many resources on the fire as we did. The Canadians even constructed an unapproved helicopter landing area in the Boundary Waters Canoe Area Wilderness! Prior to the team leaving the fire, a close out meeting was held to review the current fire behavior and suppression activities. The Canadians were not invited.

The incident was a shame on us. Not a shame on the Canadians.

When I returned to Duluth, I found out a Temporary Flight

Restriction (TFR) had not been filed with the FAA to prevent unauthorized aircraft from flying over the fire. I reviewed the Forest Aviation Management Plan, the Boundary Waters Canoe Area Wilderness Management Plan, and the Forest Safety Plan. None included a coordinating radio frequency for Canadian aircraft!

Before returning to Montana I wrote a letter to the Superior National Forest recommending that the various plans include a coordinating aircraft radio frequency. I also recommended that, when Canadian fire-fighting resources entered the United States that a local Resource Adviser be assigned to them, and that a TFR be filed early on over large fires.

I also sent a copy of my letter to the Provincial Headwaters in Ottawa. The next year, I ran into a Minnesota team on a fire near John Day, OR. They informed me they had learned from my letter.

FWP launches new public portal to report sightings of sick or dead fish

As part of the department's response to declining trout populations in the Jefferson Basin, Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks today launched a new web portal to collect information from members of the public who see sick or dead fish.

The new portal, sickfish.mt.gov, enables Montanans and visitors to our state to report a description of sick or dead fish, including details on the location. Participants are encouraged to upload a photo to assist FWP biologists.

Though FWP is interested in this information statewide, the department is particularly interested in reports from southwest Montana, where trout numbers on the Big Hole, Beaverhead, and Ruby rivers have declined dramatically during the past 10 years.

FWP seeks comment on draft environmental assessment of elk management plan

A draft environmental assessment (EA) of the 2023 Draft Elk Management Plan is now available for public review and comment.

The draft EA is available on FWP's website at fwp.mt.gov/public-notices/news/2023/jun/0630-2023-draft-elk-management-plan-ea. The deadline for comments is July 31.

Emergency closure at Holmgren Fishing Access Site
Clean-up crews will use site as staging area

Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks has implemented an emergency closure at Holmgren Fishing Access Site (FAS) on the Yellowstone River between Columbus and Reed Point that began June 30, at 12 p.m. All public access at the site is prohibited. The closure will remain in effect until further notice.

On June 24, a train derailed and a railroad bridge collapsed into the Yellowstone River at Twin Bridges Road near Reed Point. Ten railcars derailed into the river, six carrying asphalt, three carrying molten sulfur, and one carrying scrap metal. Product from these railcars was released into the river. As of 12 p.m. on June 30, two sulfur cars and one scrap metal car remain in the river.

Assessment and clean-up crew members for the spilled material will be using Holmgren FAS as a worksite and staging area for their efforts, creating unsafe conditions for public use.

FWP's emergency closure of the Yellowstone River 1 mile upstream of the Twin Bridges Road railroad bridge to 2.5 miles downstream of the bridge remain in effect until further notice.

For non-motorized river users, Indian Fort FAS is the last take-out opportunity before the closed area. Signs informing the public of the closure are posted at access points. River and access site closures are subject to change based on condition assessments and needs of emergency response agencies.

Itch-Kep-Pe Park in Columbus, operated by the City of Columbus, is open for public use.

Riverside Park in Laurel, operated by the City of Laurel, will also be staging response and clean-up crews. Public access will still be allowed at this site, but the public is advised that clean-up crews will be on-site.

To report observed asphalt material, submit information to: rpderailment@mtrail.com.

To report an oiled animal, call the Oiled Wildlife Care Network (OWCN) Response Hotline at 888-ASK-OWCN (888-275-6926) and provide the animal's location, time last seen and your contact information.
