My Father's Saddles

Bryce Angell

I stood next to my aged father, of ninety-seven years.
He looked around the saddle shop. His brown eyes shed some tears.
The saddle shop is where my father kept the tack and gear.
The smell of leather waifed a memory of a yesteryear.
It's where my father taught me more than leather goods repair.
I could hear his words of sound advice still hanging in the air.
He was parting with his saddles and was giving them to me.
The shop would be an empty room, so full of history.
He said, "Today I feel the darkness, but for you the sun will shine.
Mother Nature's got my number and she's run me out of time."
The saddles held a precious memory of my father's life.
Again, I felt as proud back when he gave me my first knife.
He reached, then gave a tug and pulled away a dusty tarp.
He knew the saddle's history, and his mind was razor-sharp.
He pointed to a saddle. Said, "While fighting off at war.
My father bought it for me, back in 1944."
He said, "The saddle ain't horse worthy, but it doesn't seem quite fair.
"There oughta be a use and could you find that use somewhere?
He pulled another saddle. Said, "Remember good ole Fred?
This was his favorite saddle. Now Fred is long since dead."
My father stretched then slid the final saddle off the rack.
A Heiser Denver saddle was the finest of the tack.
I don't believe I'd ever seen this saddle in the shop.
He said he'd used it years ago on a bucking saddle bronc.
A Heiser Denver high back saddle right before my eyes.
My father showed no interest but to me more than a prize.
So, I gave the saddles purpose. They're now in my workshop.
My grandkids sit the saddles and I pray they'll never stop.
I told my dad I'd put the saddles where the crowd would meet.
Now four of those old saddles are a brand new bar stool seat.
Each saddle shows the years of wear. You wonder, were they ever new? But they jog my memory of a man who was cowboy through and through.

Nonresident hunters can check their Alternates List status online

Nonresident hunters who registered to be placed on the Alternates List can now check their status on MyFWP: myfwp.mt.gov/fwpExtPortal/myDrawResult_input.action. Every year, Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks gets several unused nonresident combination licenses (big game, general elk and general deer combination licenses) returned by customers. FWP resells these returned license.

After registration for the list closed, the list was randomized. The hunter in the uppermost randomized position will be contacted to finalize the purchase of the license, and so on until the nonresident combo licenses are exhausted.

MyFWP also allows nonresident hunters to check their position on the list. Availability of these licenses generally increase between early fall and the opening of general hunting season in late October.

For more information, visit fwp.mt.gov/hunting/licensedraw/alternatesList.html.

FWP to use drought restriction criteria as in years past

Last year, the Fish and Wildlife Commission approved an amendment to the "hoot owl" rule that directs fishing restrictions during drought. The amendment allowed Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks to implement restrictions in designated reaches of Montana streams according to the Statewide Fisheries Management Plan.

The Statewide Fisheries Management Plan is scheduled to be finalized later this fall after public review and comment this summer. Given this timeline, hoot owl restrictions this summer will continue to be implemented as they were in past years. Hoot owl restrictions prohibit fishing between 2 p.m. and midnight on drought-impacted streams until conditions improve. There are four criteria FWP biologists consider for setting hoot owl restrictions:

species of interest are present in significant number temperature criteria have been met fishing pressure is high stream flow conditions

These restrictions are designed to protect fish that become more susceptible to stress, disease and mortality when low and warm water conditions exist.

Anglers can help reduce stress for fish by following these practices when catching and releasing fish, though fish mortality may still occur:

fish during the coolest times of day, where permitted land the fish quickly
keep the fish in water as much as possible remove the hook gently; using artificial lures with single and barbless hooks can make hook removal faster and easier let the fish recover before gently releasing it

Partial closure lifted at General Custer Access Site

A partial closure that was in place at General Custer Fishing Access Site (FAS) on the Bighorn River has been lifted. Motorized access is once again allowed at the site.

Partial closures are still in place for Manuel Lisa, Grant Marsh, and Arapooish FASes on the Bighorn River due to flood conditions. Walk-in access at these sites is still allowed, but motorized access is currently prohibited. .

For a full list on current FWP site closures and restrictions, visit: https://myfwp.mt.gov/fwpPub/allRestrictions

Vigilante Car Show

Jeremy Crawford, Southwestern Montana News

Summertime is the time for car shows and my favorite car show held every year is the Vigilante Car Show held in Virginia City.

Main street comes to life for this car show as car and motorcycle enthusiasts take over to show off their pride and joy. With cars spanning the decades of the automobile age there is something for everyone at this car show. Participants from across the state come to show off the vehicles they have put so much time and money into.

Many hoped to take one of the top three places but after talking to the many entries it became clear the most coveted prize of all is the people's choice award. This year's winners are.

1966 Ford bronco first place
1955 Chevy truck second
1937 Packard roadster third
1934 five window, coupe people's choice
