Bowles Creek Fire

Bowles Creek Fire is 3 miles west of Skalkaho Pass in the Bowles Creek drainage. Start Date: 7/20/2023 Cause: Lightning in the Beaverhead-Deerlodge National Forest and Bitterroot National Forest.

A Type 3 Incident Management Team (Northern Rockies Team 8) took control of the fire at 6:00 a.m. this morning. Last evening's reconnaissance flight and ground resources have estimated the fire area currently at 1,300 acres. Firefighting crews and resources from both Forests continue to establish "indirect" (away from the active fire edge) firelines, utilizing natural barriers and the existing road and trails systems.

An incoming cold front could drive southwesterly winds 20-35 mph, with possible gusts of 45 mph. these critical wind speeds can increase fire behavior.

Dude Horse's View

Bryce Angell

This dude ranch is much nicer than most ranches I have seen.
The cowboys feed us hay and oats, yet keep us mighty lean.
I heard one cowboy say, "A horse whose stomach's fat and round, will let the saddle slip on down. The dude will hit the ground."
Well, stayin' in this corral is what I'd like to do today.
But haulin' all these city dudes is how I earn my stay.
Today I'll prob'y get a dude whose sippin' on the sauce.
He'll be hollerin' out his cowboy drawl then wave and say,
"Hi Hoss."
He'll be tryin' to impress his gal. She'll laugh at all his jokes.
I wish they'd give me earplugs. I would tune out all these folks.
I'd rather have a dude who'll sit the saddle nice and quiet.
And maybe if I'm lucky he'll be workin' on his diet.
Well there's a city dude I swear he's bigger than a tree.
And chompin' down a doughnut. Now he has his eye on me.
He's wearing Justin cowboy boots. Is that a Stetson hat?
His shiny brand new belt buckle is pinchin' up the fat.
He points in my direction. Says, "I'd like to ride that horse."
The cowboy says, "He's kinda rank. He might be your remorse."
The city dude walked over and then stood at my left side.
He looked a little nervous. Said, "I'm up for this horse ride."
I'll lay my ears straight back and then I'll snort and show my teeth!
That fella needs to know that very soon I'll be his grief.
He tries to get a foothold but the stirrup's up too high. I'll keep my wits about me then I'll fool him on the sly.
He climbs up on the rail fence and then tries to make a leap. I do the side step, just in time. I really have quick feet.
He hits all fours and bites the dirt. Oh what a dusty cloud! The cowboys come a runnin'. I'm surrounded by a crowd.
I could be in some trouble. Hope the city dude won't sue. 'Cuz the next job waitin' for me is a tube of Elmer's Glue.
Two friendly dudes soon help him and he climbs up on my back. I guess the fun is over and we're gettin' back on track.
So why am I expected to haul this biggest hunk of flesh? It's the life of every dude horse and for that I must confess.
Let's get this horse ride over and we'll finish out the course! It's just another day for me, a dumb and old dude horse.

Woman killed in bear encounter near West Yellowstone

A woman was killed in an encounter with a bear Saturday on the Buttermilk Trail near the town of West Yellowstone.

About 8 a.m. Saturday, game wardens with Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks were notified that a hiker had found a woman deceased on the trail, about 8 miles west of West Yellowstone. FWP wardens and bear specialists, along with staff from other agencies, found that the woman had wounds consistent with a bear attack. They also found tracks from an adult grizzly bear and at least one cub near the site. They did not see any bears or signs of a day bed or animal carcass during the investigation.

The Custer Gallatin National Forest implemented an emergency closure of the area as a safety precaution. FWP bear specialists and game wardens notified residents and visitors nearby of the bear activity and the U.S. Forest Service closure. They then began conducting capture operations due to the incident's proximity to residences, campgrounds and a high-use OHV trail system. No bears have been captured to date. FWP staff also searched the area from an aircraft and did not locate any bears.

The hiker was believed to be alone during the encounter, and no bear spray or firearms were found at the scene. The incident is still under joint investigation by FWP and the U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service. FWP staff express sincere condolences to the family and friends of the hiker who was killed.

4th Annual Dillon History Days

Jeremy Crawford, Southwestern Montana News

Dillon Montana Community Foundations 4th Annual Dillon History Days was this weekend. This year was the first year the Dillon Montana Community Foundation got to hold History Days with no setbacks. In the previous years they faced COVID restrictions, and last year they were forced to deal with the water line project delays that took place on Idaho Street.

This year the festivities kicked off on Friday afternoon with the Teddy Bear Picnic hosted by the Bookstore along with the ride the rails train display at the Beaverhead County Museum. KDBM/KBEV set up shop on Idaho street and hosted feel-good Friday from a remote location allowing listeners to stop by and make a request.

Later on, in the evening event goers gathered at The Depot Theater to listen to history facts and trivia of the 1970's and then hear Phillip Page sing old cowboy tunes as well as talk about history of the old west.

On Saturday, July 22 Idaho street was busy with pop up vendors running down the street, and local businesses holding Crazy Day sales as well. DJ Adam spun toons of the 70's and The Horsepower Roundup lined Center Street.

At the Frontier Event Center locals showcased their many talents as the very first What's Your Talent, talent show took place. Judges watched more than twenty performances before handing out the top three prizes. First place went to Phillip Page, winner of $100. Second place went to Amanda Burgstrum. Third place went to Grace and Matthew Jones. A huge thank you goes out to Lynn Waggoner-Patton for all the hard work she put into making this show a possibility.

Also happening on Saturday was the cribbage tournament at the Elks lodge, the Carma Tyler Blowing Smoke BBQ Cook Off, Games at the Depot Park, and Drafts in Dillon. Later on, Saturdays festivities were wrapped up at the Frontier Event Center with what's your talent winner Phillip Page kicking things off followed by Julea Rae, and Joel Longie with Levi Blom finishing out the night.

Sunday's schedule started off

Women's Resource Center Hosts Red Sand Project

Community Art Installation to Raise Awareness about Trafficking

The Women's Resource Center invites the community to participate in the Red Sand Project Monday, July 31, from 12-1 pm. This one-hour program to raise awareness about human trafficking and exploitation includes an introduction by WRC Advocate Izzi Simonsen and a hands-on community art installation created by filling the cracks of the sidewalk with red sand.

The Red Sand Project was launched in 2014 after artist Molly Gochman realized the depth to which human trafficking and exploitation continue to exist. Globally it is estimated that 50 million individuals are being trafficked or living in modern slavery, an estimated $150 billion industry. Molly understood that to find a solution, increasing public awareness and engagement was essential.

The Red Sand Approach is symbolic, with the grains of sand representing the individuals who fall through the cracks of our social, economic and political systems. Even the cracks of our own personal consciousness.

Since 2014, the Red Sand Project has been done in all 50 states and in 70 countries, with more than one million participants.The project is a way for a community to come together, and connect and raise awareness. The simple act of placing sand in a crack may seem inconsequential, but small actions build on each other to make transformational change.

The Women's Resource Center was drawn to this project by the short film "We Ride With Her." Staff will attend a community viewing of the film Tuesday, August 1, in Lame Deer, MT. The film follows the all-female Indigenous motorcycle group, Medicine Wheel Riders, who ride to end the crisis of missing and murdered Indigenous women.

As the mission of the Women's Resource Center is to provide services to individuals affected by domestic and sexual violence, it is critical to our organization to not only provide services to those affected by human trafficking but to also increase awareness and engagement regarding missing and murdered Indigenous women across Montana, an issue that too often falls through the cracks of our consciousness

This free event will be at the Women's Resource Center, 236 E. Reeder Street, in Dillon. For more information, contact the Women's Resource Center at (406) 683-6106.
