ARE YOU DISTRESSED BY DISTRESSED CLOTHING?

Tyrades! by Danny Tyree

My family will soon take advantage of our state's tax-free weekend for clothing and school supplies, but none of our hard-earned money will go for distressed clothing.

Coincidentally, none of the money we spend at the food court will purchase pre-chewed burritos. Call us rebels.

Silly me, I had assumed that America's fascination with faded/torn/threadbare clothing would be a passing fad; but it seems to have settled in as the New Abnormal, along with backwards baseball caps, droopy pants and calling an inaccurate weathercaster "literally Hitler."

Sure, I save worn-out jeans and sneakers for lawnmowing purposes and respect hand-me-downs as a time-honored tradition; but I refuse to slobber over intentionally imperfect merchandise. Not even for the patriotic aspects: "America: where anyone can grow up to look like a ragamuffin."

When I was 14 years old and working at my uncle's junkyard, my clothing often sustained holes from battery acid. During my 18 years working in a warehouse, my garments underwent every indignity known to man. These were regrettable mishaps, but they were also badges of honor.

Perhaps you remember the 1980s Smith Barney investment firm commercial with distinguished actor John Houseman declaring, "Smith Barney: They make money the old-fashioned way. They earn it."

Most of the people "keepin' it real" by pretending to be hoboes haven't earned it. Sorry if I sound like a grumpy old man, but it's frustrating to think that I may someday find myself explaining to the police, "No, officer, I swear I didn't sic my dog on the kids who wouldn't get off my lawn. They already looked like that."

I sometimes discover too late that one of my favorite garments has a frayed collar or conspicuous ink spot, but some distressed garments on the market go above and beyond the call of duty. They've been sliced, diced and experienced Robert Oppenheimer detonating something on them.

A vintage bargain from Goodwill is understandable, but the prices on some coveted garments make me think "relaxed fit." No, not as in "relaxed fit waistband." I mean "relaxed fit cranium." These people's brains have "done fell out."

I realize rebellious consumers feel that purchasing distressed clothing is a way of Sticking It to the Man. The abundant rips certainly make it easy to tell The Man from The Woman.

The tattered look helps lonely people identify with rockstars, except for the part about rockstars getting royalty checks instead of daddy subsidizing a minimum-wage job.

The disheveled style helps compassionate elitists identify with the working man – or at least the working seven-year-old Asian orphan who stains the fabric.

People cruising around for distressed garments have more than too much time on their hands. They also have money burning a hole in their pocket. ("Yay! The money burned a hole in the pocket! Now let's see if it will burn a hole in the crotch, too!")

Many people customize/accessorize their distressed garments (and I have a grudging admiration for their creativity), but there are also fashion professionals who consider themselves to be Designers. Just realize they set a low bar. A ferret in a burlap bag could be a designer in these instances.

Sigh I just hope the frontload-your-problems mentality remains confined to clothing. We don't need healthy individuals telling a doctor, "I want a second opinion, Doc! That quack refused to give me crows' feet, osteoporosis and receding gums!"

Sagebrush and Snowdrifts 4-H News

By:Secret Petersen

The Sagebrush and Snowdrifts 4-H club met on July 23 at Rocky Mountain supply at 1:00 p.m for their project tour. The club first went to Secret Petersen's house and she told them about her projects which were photography, baking, arts and crafts, and archery. She showed us pictures that she had taken on her camera and then also showed us some of her drawings. She also explained what she would like to enter into the fair. The club then went to where the Weldons had their pigs. Each of them explained about their pigs diet and how old they were and how much the supplies they used to make their pigs pen cost. They also told us the names of their pigs. We then went to the Weldon's house Where Ellie Weldon told us about her chicken and what types of breeds they had and what color of the eggs that each breed laid. Liam Marlowe then showed us his Market lambs that were being held at the Weldon's. He explained to us what type of breed his lambs were and how much they weighed, and who he had bought them from. He told us which lamb he was going to enter into the fair and he also told us how old each of them were. The Weldons then invited us into their home so that we could get away from the heat and for them to tell us more about their projects and what they were going to enter into the fair. John Weldon told us about his baking project and that he was going to enter a journal of recipes that he liked. He also talked about what he entered into the foods festival. Ellie Weldon then told us that she was going to enter a poster that involves helping to stop plastic pollution for her arts and crafts project. Jacob Weldon then told us about his project which was electricity. He explained about what can cause a fuse to blow in a light. The club then went to the Wilson's house where Gavin Wilson told us about his Dog project and how he had trained his dog, Luna to do tricks such as walking up a ramp and taught her how to lay down, sit, and how to stay. He explained how they taught and rewarded her with cheerios as treats. Then Gavin's little sister, Evie, Played a few songs on the Piano that she had written herself. After going to the Wilson's house the club went to Cornell Park where we waded in the river and then had a lunch of roasted hotdogs and Marshmallows. The next meeting will be on August 7 at 7:00 p.m at the 4-H building.

Veteran's Corner. Update #213

Greetings to those of you who read my SW MT Veteran update articles. The weather has gotten considerably hotter and people's lawns are suffering. Its important to not get dehydrated or take the chance of getting heat stroke by not wearing protective clothing or drinking an adequate amount of water.

Veteran Update News:

- The big VA news is that there's been a shake-up at Fort Harrison and the Montana VA Director Dr. Judy Hayman is being replaced after complaints led to an internal investigation that has led to her being replaced. I had a number of dealings with her and found her to be friendly and well liked by the people who worked for her. Hopefully the short comings, the investigation found, will be corrected and her replacement will be a respected leader.
- Interesting statistics from the US Bureau's 2021 American Community Survey. There are 16.5 million Veterans living in the US, as of that year, compared to 26.4 million in 2000 The drop was primarily due to aging of veterans who served in major military campaigns like WWII, Korea and Vietnam. Veterans constitute 6.4% of the US population and in Montana it's 9.4 % of the state population. Montana is the 3rd largest in the US with 80,953 veterans. The largest share at 33.4%, served in the Viet Nam era. 17.9% enlisted in September 2001 or later and 14% served in the WWII era.
- Our Veterans in SW Montana continue to be active community and veteran volunteers. The volunteer Veteran Honor Guards are seen at different events to post the colors, be in parades and to preside at funerals for veterans who have passed on. Sadly that is a fact of life and at our SW MT Veterans Home it's common to see our veteran residents breath their last. The positive act that these volunteers due for the deceased veteran and his/her family is to be there and conduct this final ceremony before burial. It's a privilege, as any one of these participating Veteran Honor Guard members will tell you.
- I heard a spot on the radio about the SW Montana Veteran Food Pantry in Deer Lodge. Any veteran of Deer Lodge and surrounding communities, that needs food, can go there and various types of food are available. It is located at 505 Main St., Deer Lodge, Mt.. They are also happy to accept food/ meat/etc. donations which they give to veteran's in need. It's a great program completely run by volunteers.
