Betty Jean Redfield Rampy

On Monday, July 31, 2023, Betty Jean Redfield Rampy of Twin Bridges, moved to her Heavenly home. Betty was a godly woman who loved the Lord with all her heart, and she loved God's Word. Though she was a humble, gentle woman, Betty was nonetheless a powerful prayer warrior and only heaven knows what a wonderful and eternal impact all her many years of faithful praying have had on her family, her friends, and the world at large.

Betty was born April 21, 1929, in San Jose, CA to Ralph and Clara Redfield. They moved to the Redfield Ranch south of Twin Bridges when she was four years old.

Growing up, she was active in 4-H and showed a Jersey calf and got grand champion and grand champion showmanship twice in her teen years.

Except for her Sophomore year spent in Springfield, OR, Betty spent the rest of her school days attending Twin Bridges High School. She was editor of the yearbook, The Silver Ledge. She was the 2nd Redfield to graduate from Twin Bridges High School in May of 1947.

In fall of 1947, Betty went to Emporia, Kansas, to attend the College of Emporia. She spent one year studying physical education, hoping to become a P.E. teacher. One of Betty's treasured memories to this day from her college stay, in which she still has the faded paper clipping titled:

A Real Ranch Girl; the article told of a real ranch girl from Emporia Kansas going to ride in the Emporia Fair. However, when she was introduced, they certified her action-packed appearance introducing her as the real Ranch Girl from Montana. Betty placed third.

In the summer of 1948, she went to Ennis to the Jumping Horse Ranch to help at the ranch. It was here that Betty met a red-headed cowboy by the name of Lee Rampy. Lee worked for the Jumping Horse Ranch as a cowboy and tended to cows at the cow camp.

Betty moved back to the Redfield Ranch at the end of summer while Lee stayed working in Ennis. The winter of 1948-49, they became snowed in and couldn't travel to see one another. They wrote many love letters to one another that winter.

They were married on June 26, 1949, in Bozeman. They made their first home in Ennis at the Jumping Horse Ranch and spent two summers at the cow camp. Betty would accompany Lee on rides to check on the cattle.

They made their permanent home in Dillon after Lee became employed by Pfizer Talc company. Betty was a stay-at-home mom to their two children Karen and Ralph and worked part-time as a bookkeeper for Dillon Motor Supply.

In 1970, they bought 60 acres south of Twin Bridges, about a mile and half from the Redfield homestead, where Betty resided until her passing. Lee and Betty were married 72 1/2 years when Lee passed away in February 2022.

Ag Producers, Irrigators, And Anglers Hold Roundtable Discussion With Governor Gianforte

Jeremy Crawford • Southwestern Montana News

Wednesday August 2 Governor Gianforte along with members of the Big Hole Watershed Committee, Fish Wildlife and Parks, Trout Unlimited, Biologist, and the angling community gathered in Wise River to host a roundtable discussion on the declining fish populations in the Big Hole River, Beaverhead, and Ruby.

Trout populations have been declining steadily in these rivers since 2011. This has raised concerns with the anglers as well as other outdoor enthusiasts. The roundtable discussion was held to introduce those who will be working on the problem as well as those who need to have a voice in this as fingers have been pointed on social media.

Wednesday's discussion started off with Dr. Al Zale, giving a quick introduction of his background and what studies they are looking at doing that could cause the declining fish populations in these waters.

"We have a lot to learn and find out. That's what my students and I will be doing, we've been doing that in collaboration with other faculty there at MSU, and then also working closely with FWP," Dr. Zale said.

Next was Big Hole Lodge founder's Craig and Wade Fellin discussing their concerns on the number of steps they have taken with themselves and how a collaboration is needed to get to the bottom of the problem.

Wade Fellin talked about the catching of fish they described as zombie trout. These fish are in the process of dying and have developed strange burns and or discoloration on them. They are asked to keep these fish and turn them over to be tested and studied but the fish are shipped back to Pennsylvania, and this takes time to get the results back.

The Big Hole Watershed Committee spoke of the research they have been doing for twenty plus years. The data they have presented in the past seemed to fall on deaf ears on a federal level. But they have also looked at ways to help conserve water when the snowpack is around as well as ways to help with the monitoring of the river and helping fix issues with water loss.

Jim Hagenbarth, rancher and founding member of the committee gave a brief history of his family who helped settle the valley. He stated, "We know a lot about this river, it is our life." He also went on to talk about ways other areas have improved water quality along with water preservation. "It is not about preserving the land. It is about making it better."

The meeting saw a large turnout with well over 100 people from ag producers, anglers, and irrigators present to voice their concerns.

Video of the full meeting can be found here <https://youtu.be/Y411xL-albo>

100 Deadliest Days: A Reminder to Stay Safe and Vigilant in Your Summer Travels

For many Montanans, Memorial Day weekend kicks off the start of summer travel, culminating with Labor Day weekend. Unfortunately, these summer months can also be some of the deadliest on Montana's roads due to increased motor vehicle crashes. This period is known nationally as the "100 Deadliest Days of Summer," and has historically represented an increase in crashes and crash fatalities on our roadways due to greater traffic volumes and clear travel conditions that lower drivers' guards. Before you make plans to travel this summer, commit to safe, lawful behavior and remain vigilant in sharing Montana's roadways with all system users. Never operate a motor vehicle while impaired. If you're driving a vehicle, buckle up before you go and insist your friends and family do the same. Using your seat belt is your best defense against serious injury or death in the event you're in a crash. This is a Vision Zero Message from the Montana Department of Transportation. ROGER SIEMENS

By "Swede" Troedsson

The PBS TV documentary about the 1961 Higgins Ridge Fire in Idaho prompted me to write about Roger Siemens.

Roger and I trained together in 1959 in Missoula as smokejumpers. He went on to jump for four seasons. He was one of the 20 jumpers rescued by helicopter from the Higgins Ridge Fire. He told me that his first ride on a helicopter was on the cargo rack of that rescue helicopter.

Roger was a native of Iowa and graduated with a degree in wildlife biology from Missoula.

His career with the USFS included positions on the Custer, Bitterroot, Beaverhead, Gallatin and Deerlodge National Forests. Following a period as the District Ranger on the Jefferson District, Roger retired in 1994 as the Recreation Specialist on the Beaverhead NF. He and his wife Rita resided in Silver Star, Montana, after his retirement.

As a retiree, Roger and his wife owned R&R Resources. They would assist local ranchers on predator and rattlesnake control. He loved to hunt coyotes, and was an expert in rattlesnake handling. He was also very enthusiastic about sharing his knowledge about snakes with others, and he frequently visited school classrooms and other organizations to present his live rattlesnake demonstrations.

The University of Montana Western Environmental Science Department would host guest speakers at their On The Rocks programs, which were scheduled throughout the school year. I suggested they invite Roger to give his rattlesnake presentation, and the faculty accepted my suggestion.

Using live rattlesnakes Roger gave a fascinating program to a packed audience in the largest lecture classroom of Block Hall. He asked me to fill a plastic bag inside a leather purse with hot water. Dangling this warm object in front of the snake prompted it to strike at the bag, demonstrating how heat-sensitive pits help it aim its strikes.

I mentioned to Roger that I wondered what the audience reaction would be if at the conclusion of his program, as he was packing up his snakes, he would look around with a worried look on his face and mention he was missing Charlie, his most short tempered snake. He grinned, and said he wasn't going there.

Roger died in December, 2021 of a heart attack while hunting coyotes. He was 82 years old.
