Alice Trowbridge

It is with great sadness, we announce the passing of Alice Trowbridge on September 26, 2023. Our family has lost our matriarch. Alice was born on June 5, 1933 to John and Catherine Hren in Dillon, Mt. She attended the Dillon Schools and graduated from Beaverhead County High School. She took accordion lessons from Nellie Poole for many years and played in a multitude of recitals and the school band. She also played the accordion in a dance band that traveled to numerous venues to perform. She attended Columbus School of Nursing, of which she graduated from in 1954. After graduation, she married Lyman Newton and moved to Bermuda where he was stationed with the military. In Bermuda, their first daughter Bernadette was born. She was able to work in a variety of fields within nursing as they moved due to military rotations. They eventually settled back in Dillon, where she spent 10 years working as an office nurse for Wendel Poundstone, and it was there that there the second daughter Connie was born. They divorced in April, 1964, and she married Keith Trowbridge in September, 1965. She eventually became School District #10 clerk and school nurse, a position she occupied for the next 22 years until she retired in January, 1994. At that time, she devoted herself to family and gardening, spending much time in Butte babysitting and attending all the events her grandsons, Colt and Dylan Everly, were involved in. Alice also enjoyed traveling and touring Europe with her daughter, Bernadette, and her husband, James, as well as other numerous trips with the Peterson's and Everly's.

The boys remember Grandma Alice as always being there for them, whether it was remembering all of their friends' names, even those she never met, cooking desserts (she was a fantastic cook and went out of her way to cook up special requests for her grandsons), or to smoothing things over for them when they broke things or put a hockey puck through the wall. Colt and Dylan felt she had never ending patience with them and always took their side even when they were being hellion grandchildren. She spent many hours and many miles following her grandson sports teams and thought they did a great job even during tough losses. The nurse in her wished they would do things less dangerous like reading, music or golf, but she supported all their endeavors. She put a lot of effort in getting to know their friends, as she was interested in everything they did.

Alice was interested and invested in the lives of those she cared about, always making the effort to stay connected, and being the glue connecting everyone. Alice kept a calendar where she wrote down what things all the family members were doing and even if they were mundane things, she was interested. She called her daughters every day, and they will miss these daily phone chats.

Alice was preceded in death by her parents and husband of 56 years, Keith Trowbridge.

She is survived by daughters Bernadette (James) Peterson and Connie (Bob) Everly and grandsons Colt and Dylan Everly.

The family would like to thank Honeybee Hospice and Dr. Sandra McIntyre who made it possible for our beloved mother to remain in her home. Memorials may be made to a charity of the donor choice or an animal shelter as Alice had such a fondness for animals and so loved her granddogs—Monte, Seeley, Luca and Sherpa.

UMW Professor Publishes Research on Glacier Retreat in the Pioneer Mountains During the Last Ice Age

Dr. Spruce W. Schoenemann from the University of Montana Western's Environmental Sciences Department recently published his work in the journal of Quaternary Science Reviews on glacier retreat in the Pioneer Mountains.

The research paper titled "A cosmogenic ^{10}Be (Beryllium 10) moraine chronology of arid, alpine Late Pleistocene glaciation in the Pioneer Mountains of Montana, USA" is a peer-reviewed publication authored by Schoenemann and others that explores when glaciers in the Pioneer Mountains reached their maximum size during the Late Pleistocene period and why they retreated.

To research this, Schoenemann and UMW students, Mana Bryant and Will Larson, collected samples from 35 boulders on terminal moraines (deposit areas located on the edge of glaciers). They then used cosmogenic ^{10}Be exposure dating to determine when the glacial ice first retreated, exposing the ice-covered boulders and recording the timing of maximum extent of Late Pleistocene alpine glaciers in the Pioneer Mountains.

Cosmogenic ^{10}Be exposure dating is a powerful scientific technique used by geologists and geomorphologists to determine the age of geological and landform features on Earth's surface. This method relies on the presence of a rare isotope of beryllium called beryllium-10 (^{10}Be), which is produced when high-energy cosmic rays from outer space interact with certain atoms in Earth's atmosphere and rocks.

The Pioneer Mountains, located south of the Cordilleran and Laurentide Ice Sheets (LIS), are strategically positioned to record glacier responses to changing climate conditions. The presence of the nearby LIS had a profound impact on the region's climate, with dry, cold, katabatic winds descending from the ice sheet during the Last Glacial Maximum (LGM). As the LIS began to melt, the formation of pro-glacial meltwater lakes likely altered local precipitation patterns, introducing additional moisture to the region.

The findings of this study challenge previous assumptions about glacier retreat timing. While some regions in the northwestern United States exhibited earlier deglaciation, the Pioneer Mountains, along with the northwestern Yellowstone glacial system and the northern Montana ice cap, tell a different story. Here, glacier retreat commenced around 18,000 years ago during the local Last Glacial Maximum. This synchronicity suggests that the proximity to the LIS margin played a crucial role in maintaining the glaciers' full extent for a longer period.

UMW, situated in the geologically rich landscape of Southwest Montana, offers a unique environment for projects like this. Dr. Schoenemann's expertise and commitment to research have provided students at UMW with exceptional opportunities that rival those offered by larger institutions. As alumnus Will Larson notes, "UMW stands out for projects of this caliber, thanks to our access to a geological wonderland in Southwest Montana and the guidance of experienced professors like Dr. Schoenemann, who empower Western students with unparalleled research prospects."

Reflecting on her involvement, alumna Mana Bryant shared, "Participating in this undergraduate project has been an extraordinary experience that has significantly honed my academic skills—a skill set that I will carry with me throughout my life."

"This project really was the epitome of authentic practice in the discipline of glacial geology; where the students had the opportunity to map the landforms, gather samples, crush and sieve them, and then process and extract the 10Be in a world-class lab in Vermont, synthesize the data, and provide a robust interpretation of the ages. All of which has contributed new knowledge and insight to the paleoglacier science community in the western U.S.," said Schoenemann.

To read Dr. Schoenemann's research in its entirety, visit <https://tinyurl.com/45mpuuv9>. For additional information, please email spruce.schoenemann@umwestern.edu.

Dr. Schoenemann will be giving a presentation on this topic at the "On the Rocks" seminar on October 4, 2023. The presentation will take place in UMW's Block Hall room 311 at 3:45 p.m.

Ten Minute Play Festival Opens October 16 at Montana Western

The University of Montana Western's Theatre Department is excited to announce the 21st Annual Ten Minute Play Festival to be held October 16-18 as part of the Bank of Commerce (BOC) Performing Arts Series.

The 21st annual Ten Minute Play Festival will be held in Montana Western's Small Auditorium in Main Hall 314. Showings start on October 16 and end on October 18. The evening showtimes will start at 7:30 p.m. on Monday and Tuesday and the matinee showings will start at 1:00 p.m. on Tuesday and Wednesday.

This popular and exciting event shines a spotlight on students, faculty, staff, and community members. This year's theme will be "Lights, Camera, Action!" and will feature student-produced short films. The production will be facilitated by Stephen Alan Seder and the students from two theatre courses: "Introduction to Acting" and "Play Production and Introduction to Directing."

To purchase tickets, please visit the BOC Performing Arts Series Box Office webpage (www.umwestern.edu/bank-of-commerce-performing-arts-series/box-office/). Tickets are $15 for general admission, $10 for senior, youth, and military, and free for UMW students who present their Bulldog Cards.

As Montana's largest Ag bank, we understand the financial needs of our state's farms and ranches.

If your financial planning calls for deferred payment contracts, ask our agricultural bankers about Stockman Exchange and how this valuable service can benefit your Ag operation. Plus, you will have peace of mind knowing Stockman, and its 70 years of stability, are standing behind your contract.

Consult an attorney or tax accountant to discuss the effects of deferred payment contracts.
