Bird hunters should be aware of highly pathogenic avian influenza in wild birds

Highly pathogenic avian influenza (HPAI) virus was first detected in wild birds and domestic poultry in Montana in spring 2022. While HPAI cases in wild birds did decline over the summer, there are detections of new cases in parts of the U.S., including Montana again this fall. HPAI viruses are extremely infectious and fatal to poultry and some species of wild birds.

Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks is continuing to monitor the situation by testing wild birds that display symptoms consistent with HPAI infection. Some waterfowl species carry and transmit the virus without developing symptoms. Other wild bird species are highly susceptible and are likely to die from infection. In Montana, various duck species are most likely to carry the virus without symptoms, while geese and raptors have been the most common wild birds to die from the virus. The virus is also highly fatal to domestic poultry, including chickens, ducks and turkeys.

Human infections with bird flu viruses are rare but can occur, usually after close contact with infected birds. The current risk to the general public from bird flu viruses is low; however, it is important to remember that risk depends on exposure, and people with more exposure might have a greater risk of infection. Although the CDC considers risk of HPAI spread to humans to be very low, Montanans should take precautions when handling harvested game birds or any sick or dead bird they find. Whenever possible, avoid contact with sick or dead wildlife. Even if a bird is not suspected to have died from a contagious disease, gloves should always be worn if a dead animal must be handled for disposal.

Raptors are susceptible to HPAI and are typically exposed via eating infected birds. The general recommendation for falconers is to avoid hunting and/or feeding wild birds, particularly waterfowl, during the outbreak. Enhanced biosecurity practices with enhanced cleaning and limiting contact with wild birds or birds from other facilities is also warranted. Sick falcons should be promptly reported to a veterinarian and be quarantined from other birds in the facility.

Bird hunters should follow these simple precautions when processing or handling wild game:

- Do not harvest or handle wild birds that are obviously sick or found dead.
- Wear disposable latex or rubber gloves while cleaning game or cleaning bird feeders.
- Clean game birds outdoors in a well-ventilated area.
- Do not eat, drink or smoke while cleaning game.
- Avoid contact between people, equipment and materials that have been in contact with wild birds and backyard poultry flocks to avoid bringing the virus back to your flock.
- Wash hands with soap and water or alcohol wipes

- immediately after handling game or cleaning bird feeders.
- Wash tools and work surfaces used to clean game birds with soap and water, then disinfect with a 10 percent solution of chlorine bleach—one part chlorine bleach to 10 parts water.
- Separate raw meat, and anything it touches, from cooked or ready-to-eat foods to avoid contamination.
- Cook game meat thoroughly to an internal temperature of at least 165°F.
- Poultry owners should maintain separation between wild birds and domestic poultry. Bird feeders should not be kept near poultry and should be cleaned regularly with a 10 percent bleach solution. Disposable gloves should be worn when cleaning bird feeders.

My Ag Teacher

Bryce Angell

Transitioning from junior high to high school weren't no treat.

For a country boy who despised sitting all day in a seat.

So, my father told me, "Sign up for the Agriculture class.

There'll be days out in the field and that will get you off your rear."

The year was 1969, or somewhere there about.

The class would teach me confidence. A man can't be without.

The teacher called the roll he'd pulled out of his leather bag.

Said, "This class is Agriculture but we just call it "Ag."

The Ag instructor looked to be a solid six foot three.

Intimidation was the word for me at five foot three.

He had a reputation with the paddle on the wall. And I've watched a quivering lip come from the toughest of them all.

I weren't the brightest student to have walked the halls at school.

But I soon deduced the paddle came from trouble acting cool.

That year I kept my nose clean and the paddle off my butt.

And I learned the FFA would build me up, not in a rut.

In my second year of Ag and at the end of class one day.

My Ag instructor asked me, "Got a project on the way?"

I told him that I promised Dad, I'd build a new squeeze chute.

The project would require some skills and confidence to boot.

If I took on this whole project, all alone, I'd soon be lost.

Now the project would have two of us, me and my cousin Ross.

We honed up on our welding, learned some fabricating skill.

But class time cutting into shop proved little more than thrill.

As seniors we spent every day, two hours in the shop.

The time worked on the squeeze chute kept us busy, on the hop.

We welded every piece in place. Then ground the bad welds down. One student asked if they'd been welded by a circus clown.

We'd weld the iron, then grind it down to look better than before.

We sprayed two coats of red they said would last ten years or more.

Our project was complete. I never thought was possible.

Our Ag instructor taught us how to reach into our soul.

I walked away with confidence on graduation day.

The Ag program and FFA proved worthy all the way.

FWP to host CWD sampling trainings in southwestern Montana

Free events will provide hands-on training for hunters

Staff with Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks will host three events this month to train hunters how to collect samples from their harvested animals for chronic wasting disease testing.

These events will include information on how to collect and submit testing samples, how to properly dispose of animal carcasses, and other information hunters should know about CWD management in Montana. Hunters are welcome but not required to bring their own harvested animals and tools for collecting samples, if available. Such tools include gloves, a knife, forceps or similar tools.

The first training will be held in the large parking lot at FWP's Butte Area Resource Office, 1820 Meadowlark Lane, on Thursday, Oct. 19, from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m.

The second training will be at FWP's Dillon office, 730 N. Montana St., on Tuesday, Oct. 24, from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m.

The third event will be on Tuesday, Oct. 31, at FWP's Dillon office, 730 N. Montana St., from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. In addition to CWD training for hunters, trick-or-treaters are welcome.

CWD is a fatal disease that infects members of the deer family, including elk, moose, mule deer and white-tailed deer. CWD testing is free, and there are multiple options for submitting samples.

FWP and the Montana Department of Public Health and Human Services strongly recommend that hunters receive a negative CWD test result before taking their harvested deer, elk or moose to a meat processor or food bank.

For more information on CWD management and resources for hunters, visit fwp.mt.gov/CWD.

Bulldog Football Defeats Battlin' Bears on Homecoming, Harrell Breaks Tackle for Loss Record

The Montana Western football team (5-1, 3-1) defeated the Rocky Mountain College Battlin' Bears (3-4, 1-4) by a score of 27-20 this afternoon on Vigilante Field.

Bulldog defensive lineman Tanner Harrell broke the Montana Western career tackle for loss record (37.5) after he recorded a total of two in the game and 1.5 sacks. He now has a career total of 38 and will continue to add to the total on the season. "Poorly done and disappointing that we would come out and play so poorly after such a good win at Montana Tech last week," Head Coach Ryan Nourse said. "If we were playing Monopoly, we got a get out of jail free card. We will use that and we have got a mountain to climb next week and make some really good improvements so we can get back to playing a cleaner, directed, and focused game."

How it Happened: The Battlin' Bears were the first to put points on the scoreboard, hitting back-to-back field goals on their first two drives. RMC kicker Austin Drake put it through the uprights from both the 34 and the 35-yard line. The Bulldog offense saw little success in the first quarter, putting just 36 yards of total offense together. At the start of the second quarter, Bulldog kicker John Mears hit a field goal of his own for the Bulldogs with 9:10 remaining in the half. Down 6-3, Bulldog runningback Jake Humphrey broke out a 35-yard rush to put the Bulldogs in favorable field position. A few plays following, Michael Palandri threw a 13-yard touchdown pass to Eli Nourse for the first touchdown of the game to push the Bulldogs to a 10-6 lead with 3:36 left in the first half. On the following drive, Bulldog defensive back Aiden Prado picked off Battlin' Bears quarterback Graedyn Buell to bring the UMW offense back on the field. The pair of Palandri and Humphrey rushed for 34 yards on back-to-back plays, putting the Bulldogs on the Rocky 15-yard line. The scoring drive was capped off by a touchdown rush from Humphrey to take a 17-6 lead into the half.

Despite an unsuccessful first drive of the second half, the Bulldog defense forced RMC to punt following a big sack from Tanner Harrell on third down to fuel a UMW scoring drive. Mears would hit his second field goal of the game on a 34-yard kick. Up 20-6 heading into the fourth, the Bulldog defense stopped Rocky Mountain short of a touchdown on the 1-yard line and forced a turnover on fourth down. With 8:02 left in the game, Bulldog runningback Pete Gibson broke out a 61-yard touchdown rush to push the Bulldogs up 27-6. On the following drive, Rocky capitalized on a 31-yard touchdown pass to Joseph Dwyer to close the gap to 27-13. The Battlin' Bears followed up on the next Bulldog offensive drive with a forced UMW fumble. They then marched down the field to score on a 24-yard pass to Dwyer with 1:55 left in the game. Holding a slim 27-20 lead with under two minutes to play, the Bulldogs claimed a pair of first downs to seal the victory behind a pass to Nourse and a rush from Palandri.

- Cost less
- Cover your drugs
- You can also get
- An estimate of your out-of-pocket costs

If you have limited income and resources, you may qualify for Extra Help to pay your prescription drug costs.

Get free, personalized insurance counseling by calling your State Health Insurance Assistance Program (SHIP) 1-800-551-3191 or 406-782-5555
