Linda Lou Bjorni Strupp

Linda Strupp passed on peacefully on December 13, 2023, with her partner, David Bandelier, by her side.

She was born in Dillon, MT to William and Mary (Fournier) Bjorni on July 2, 1953. The youngest of three siblings, she was raised on the family's Spring Creek Ranch on Horse Prairie, MT. After graduating from Beaverhead County High School in 1971, she attended beauty school in Bozeman, MT.

In 1974, she met and married Vinn Strupp from Leadore, ID. During their eight-year union, they worked on her family's ranch as well as neighboring ranches and welcomed Linda's only child, Amanda.

Linda and her daughter moved to Dillon in 1984 when she accepted a position as a CNA at Parkview Acres Care Center (now Pioneer Care and Rehab). In 1985, she had the opportunity to return to what she knew- ranch life- and spent the next four years in the employ of Bill and Floydena Garrison near Glen, MT as the ranch's cook. She returned to Parkview Acres in 1989 and spent the next 20 years working as a CNA and Home Healthcare provider.

On April 13, 1996, she gave a co-worker a chance by agreeing to a first date and spent the rest of her life with David by her side.

Linda's greatest pride and joy came from being a grandma. She played a large and loving role in her grandsons' lives and was deeply saddened by her deteriorating health not allowing for the same connection with her young granddaughters.

She is preceded in death by her parents, her sister (Sandra Bjorni Dawson) and niece (Dawn Michelle Dawson), her brother and sister-in-law (Bill and Genie Bjorni), and her nephews (Shawn Bjorni and Joe Bjorni). She is survived by her daughter, Amanda (Strupp) Nicholas, her grandchildren- Sam Colgrove, Ian George, Anne Nicholas, and Jane Nicholas, her dear cousin Ruth (Fournier) Pilgrim, and of course, David K. Bandelier and all his family that became part of hers.

Linda had an inner strength without measure. She had a boundless capacity- and tenacity- for unconditional love and self-sacrifice. She also had little patience for nonsense and was as stubborn as a mule. The world of those who loved her is smaller now, but forever enriched by having had her in it.

In lieu of flowers, the family humbly requests donations made payable to Brundage Funeral Home to help with final costs. A celebration of Linda's life will be held in early summer of 2024.

Polar Research Team Develops Virtual Field Experiences for Undergraduate Students

Dr. Spruce Schoenemann from the University of Montana Western Environmental Sciences Department and a team of climate and polar scientists have recently developed an innovative place-based curriculum for undergraduate students to participate in virtual field experiences in Greenland to expand learning opportunities in the polar sciences.

Scientific researchers have made leaps and bounds in recent years gathering new data and insights on climate change in the earth's polar regions, but there has been a lag in curriculum development for undergraduate students who are studying the geosciences and environmental sciences. Polar Places and Spaces (PolarPASS) have developed a science-based curriculum to help students learn about the scientific discovery process and to connect them with far-away places that they may not have the opportunity to visit in person.

"As polar scientists, we are engaged with fascinating research that has important connections and impacts for people all over the globe," said Dr. Twila Moon, lead principal investigator (PI) and deputy lead scientist and science communication liaison at the National Snow and Ice Data Center (NSIDC). "Yet there wasn't much curriculum to support polar learning with authentic data. The U.S. National Science Foundation recognized this need, and our team was thrilled to receive funding to help fill the gap. Deciding to use and test interactive environments and weave in GIS were key to pursuing the learning outcomes we were aiming for."

PolarPASS was developed by a team of professional educators and polar scientists from Western Washington University (WWU), the University of Montana Western (UMW), and NSIDC and the Cooperative Institute for Research in Environmental Sciences (CIRES) at the University of Colorado Boulder. It uses authentic geographic information system (GIS) data and 360-degree interactive environments to allow students to conduct "field research" of Greenland from anywhere in the world. The goals for the program are to bring real polar data into the classroom, strengthen students' knowledge of polar science and build student connections to polar places. The lesson plans were constructed with upper-level undergraduate students in mind.

"The motivation behind much of the curriculum design was to share our awe and appreciation for the Greenlandic landscape and culture with students who will likely never have the chance to experience such a unique place on their own," said Dr. Spruce Schoenemann, Environmental Sciences Professor at UMW and co-PI of the project. "The integration of polar data, maps and stunning visuals provide students with an authentic experience to observe the rapid changes occurring in our polar regions.”

“We are in an exciting era of rapid data generation and retrieval from the polar regions across multiple scales,” said Dr. Alia Khan, an affiliate research scientist at NSIDC, associate professor at WWU and co-PI of the project. “Bringing these data into the classroom allows students to gain hands-on experience with data analysis and geospatial data processing. They are developing skills that are sought after by employers upon graduation.”

The PolarPASS teaching materials feature two modules in which to immerse students in polar research, including “Exploring the Glacier Basin System” and “Long-term Spatial Transformations of the Glacier Basin System.” The lessons use immersive imagery and videos collected in the town of Kangerlussuaq, Greenland, and in glaciated environments nearby. The modules are being tested in a wide variety of classes and universities and they include supporting materials for instructors who have not previously used GIS or interactive environments. While there are no other modules planned at the moment, the PolarPASS team is open to collaborating with researchers interested in developing new lesson plans.

In addition to the scientific research process, the PolarPASS modules also focus on place-based education, seeking to connect students emotionally to polar places that they have not visited. According to a study conducted by the PolarPASS team and published in PLOS ONE in October 2023, people tend to develop a connection, or a sense of place, through lived experiences or travel. However, engaging with virtual environments, such as the 360-degree interactive environments the team developed for the PolarPASS modules, can increase a person’s connection to an area, even if they have not physically been there.

“These immersive experiences allow students to virtually visit Greenland and explore the glacial landscape, an experience many may never have,” said Dr. Anne Gold, lead author of the study, director of the CIRES Education & Outreach program and co-PI of the project. “Data collected from course participants show that they increase their sense of place and science content knowledge through their interaction with the course materials.”

PolarPASS is funded by the U.S. National Science Foundation via a grant from the Office of Polar Programs Polar Special Initiatives.

The winning artwork will be on display in the Capitol in Helena and announced by Gov. Greg Gianforte in late February.
 The 2024 migratory bird stamp will not be required to hunt migratory birds in Montana. To hunt migratory birds, hunters will need a current Montana migratory bird license and their federal duck stamp, the same as in years past.
 However, beginning in 2024 those who purchase a migratory bird license will receive a free collectable sticker showing the winning artwork, information about the Migratory Bird Wetland Program and information about how to make additional contributions. Purchasing a migratory bird license is a great way to support wetland habitat conservation. FWP will work with the Montana Outdoor Legacy Foundation and other partners to provide other ways to donate to wetlands conservation. More information on other donation opportunities will be available in early 2024.
 The 2024 Migratory Bird Stamp will help raise additional awareness of the importance of wetland habitat and the benefits to wildlife, landowners, and water quality. Wetlands are critical for many wildlife and aquatic species, as well providing critical ecosystem functions like flood control, groundwater recharge and water purification. FWP's Migratory Bird Wetland Program helps landowners and other conservation partners develop and fund projects that protect, conserve, enhance or create high-quality wetland habitat.

Put the Worry of Colon Cancer Behind You

Schedule your colonoscopy screening today.

Colon cancer can be a life altering disease. However, early screening can help to significantly increase the survival rate. A colonoscopy is still the best tool to help you detect, treat, beat, and even prevent colon cancer entirely. Schedule an appointment with your primary care provider to start the conversation about this potentially life-saving screening. It could be the best decision you'll ever make.

Call 406-683-1188 to schedule a pre-colonoscopy appointment with your Barrett Hospital & HealthCare provider, or visit barretthospital.org for more information.
