Real Montana Bluegrass Saturday, January 20th in Twin

Well Beaten Path will be playing a live show on Saturday January 20, 2024 from 6 to 9 PM at the Bokonon located at 106 South Main Street in Twin Bridges. The band hails from Southwest Montana and plays traditional bluegrass/country (e.g., Stanley brothers, Bill Monroe) and originals that will get your toes tapping and your body moving. The band features Jeff Trask on mandolin, Derrick Hofer on guitar, Aaron and Nan, the Parrett twins, on banjo and guitar, Jon Flynn on dobro, and Doc Harwell on bass. Admission is free, donations are welcome.

Secretary of State Christi Jacobsen shares November 2023 new business registrations

Montana Secretary of State Christi Jacobsen shared the number of new business registrations filed with the state in November 2023. According to the Montana Business Economic Report, roughly 4,400 new businesses were registered in Montana during the month of November.

For comparison, approximately 4,000 new businesses registered in November 2022.

Montana has had record new business registrations in each of the past two years, with more than 53,000 new businesses registering with the Secretary of State's Office last year. Through the first 11 months in 2023, some 54,000 new business registrations had been filed in Montana, meaning the state is on pace to again set a record in new business registrations.

"Montana businesses begin their journey by registering with our office and we're honored to serve them along the way," said Secretary Jacobsen. "In recent years, Montana has been ranked the No. 1 state to start a new small business, and our office has cut and eliminated a number of fees. We're proud to make it easier to do business in Montana, and pleased to serve our business community every day."

"Thank you for doing business in Montana," she continued.

Due to increased efficiencies in the Secretary of State's Office, Secretary Jacobsen has looked for ways to reduce red tape and eliminate government deterrents for Montana's business community. Since taking office, Secretary Jacobsen has cut registration fees in half for Montana businesses, waived several other fees, and 2024 Annual Report filing fees will be waived for all Montana businesses who file the report between January 1 and April 15, 2024.

Earlier this year, Secretary Jacobsen was honored by the Mountain States Policy Center (MSPC) for making it easier to do business in Montana. The MSPC presented Secretary Jacobsen with its "Elevation Award" at a banquet highlighting the top innovators, business leaders, or elected officials in Idaho, Montana, and Washington.

Attorney General Knudsen files lawsuit against Biden "net-zero" highway emissions rule

Montana Attorney General Austin Knudsen today filed a lawsuit challenging an unlawful Biden administration greenhouse gas emissions rule that would require states to reduce greenhouse gas emissions from vehicles on its roadways to help achieve President Biden's economy-wide goal of having "net-zero" emissions by 2050. The lawsuit is the 36th that Attorney General Knudsen has filed against the Biden administration.

The "National Performance Management Measures; Assessing Performance of the National Highway System, Greenhouse Gas Emissions Measure," which was promulgated by the Federal Highway Administration (FHWA) and the Department of Transportation (DOT) mandates states with National Highway System mileage to set declining targets for on-road CO2 emissions reduction – a mandate the agencies lack the authority to impose.

"This rule is another unlawful and overreaching regulation by the Biden Administration to force the President's radical green agenda onto Americans regardless of the costs," Attorney General Knudsen said. "This one-size-fits-all approach might work for the Washington, DC bureaucrats who cooked it up, but it won't work for Montana."

The rule will disproportionately harm states with more rural areas. According to federal data, the average Montana driver drove 14,640 miles in 2020, 2.5 times more than the average driver in Washington, DC.

The American Association of State Highway and Transportation Officials blasted the rule when it was proposed, saying the "targets are not broadly attainable and ignore the unique scenarios of each state." States like Montana that are both rural and growing in population would "likely have the largest challenge of all" in implementing the rule.

The ideas the agencies provided for states to decrease greenhouse gas emissions in accordance with the rule are impractical for rural states and would require Montanans to additional fees. These include congestion pricing, road pricing, ramp metering, increased coordination with transit and non-motorized improvements, paying fees to scrap low mileage heavy duty vehicles.

Additionally, and as acknowledged by the defendant agencies in the rule, the rule would make continued economic growth more challenging and require state transportation departments to expend significant resources to set the targets and report the data to the federal government.

The final rule is unlawful because it was promulgated in excess of the agencies' statutory authority, violates the Constitution by usurping the role of the Legislature and of the States, and is arbitrary and capricious. The lawsuit calls for the court to vacate the rule in its entirety and prohibit its enforcement.

Menlo's Buzzer Beating Three-Pointer Stuns Bulldogs

After a battle to the final buzzer, the Montana Western women's basketball team (6-5) fell on a buzzer beating three-pointer to the Menlo College (Calif.) Oaks 72-69 to close out the Cactus Classic.

Payton Hagy hit four three-pointers for a season-high.

How It Happened

Menlo got out early, racing to an 18-7 lead across the first seven minutes of the game. Jordan Sweeney made a contested layup and free throw for a three-point play, shaking the Bulldogs to life. She then followed up with another triple to cut it quickly to 18-13.

Payton Hagy drained a pair of threes to cap the first quarter scoring as UMW trailed 20-19 heading into the second frame.

Menlo's Alberte Frisch's jumper put the Oaks out three with 8:59 left in the half.

Maddy Moy hit a jumper from the corner off a no-look pass from Kyla Momberg and Hagy drained her third three of the game to flip the score in favor of the Bulldogs. Shainy Mack capped the 7-0 run with a layup for a 28-24 lead and six minutes to go.

The two teams continued to go head-to-head down the stretch and Menlo's Jordyn Rosette drained a three with just seconds remaining on the clock to trail UMW 37-36 at half.

Menlo was the first to find the hoop in the second half, capitalizing on one of two free throw opportunities to tie the game at 37.

UMW answered and rode a 6-0 run following a three from Mack that was coupled with a layup from Moy and a free throw from Kyla Momberg.

Mack hit once again from the arc, but the Oaks closed third quarter play with a layup to take a 58-57 lead over UMW into the final frame.

UMW's 8-2 scoring run ruled the first three minutes in the fourth. With the hot start came the slow fade as the Bulldog women were cold for much of the remainder of the game.

Down two with 25 seconds to play, Jordan Sweeney made a layup to tie the game. The Oak's bled the clock and Frisch hit a buzzer-beating three-pointer to push the Oaks over the top to win 72-69.

Notables

- As a team, UMW shot 38.2 percent compared to the Oaks who shot 40.0 percent.
- UMW turned the ball over just eight times in the matchup, while
