Beaverhead Search and Rescue News

Submitted by Mel Rice-Public Relations

On the 27th of January, several SAR members from the Beaverhead Search and Rescue, Ruby Valley, and Madison SAR units worked together on an avalanche training scenario. The training took place in Alder Gulch outside of Virginia City.

The two day training began with a refresher on avalanches Friday evening, January 26. Topics discussed during the refresher were: avalanche fundamentals, anatomy of an avalanche, pre-trip, traveling into avalanche terrain, arriving on an avalanche scene, and searching with beacons and probe poles. On Saturday, January 27, the training involved hands on experience setting up a true to life scenario using the ICS system, AIR Ops, Division Field command, SAR team structure. Teams were deployed to an avalanche search area. Practical experience was gained using search procedures and protocol with avalanche beacons, probe poles, and shovels.

Other scene management tools used were: hypothermia management, packaging patients, and transporting patients from remote locations to a helicopter LZ (landing zone). With the help of the helicopter crew experience was gained in how to load patients onto a Life Flight Helicopter. The helicopter flight crew also gave instructions on helicopter approach and safe loading protocol. While search teams practiced search techniques on the ground, civil air patrol flew overhead acting as a communication repeater out of the remote back country.

Members of your Beaverhead Search and Rescue participating in the training event were: Adam Norlander, Evan Helle, Weston Helle, Alex Dunn, Jamie Trivette, Joe Reyes, and Mark Smith. The BVHD SAR unit wants to remind everyone the avalanche potential is very high with the new snows that we have received in the last 3 weeks. Please be extremely careful while in the back country and make sure you have all the proper equipment for the activity you are participating in. "In the Business of Saving Lives", your Beaverhead Search and Rescue.

Stolen Solitude

Bryce Angell

I rolled out of my sleeping bag, still fighting sleepy haze. Then turned ten hungry horses out. I watched them as they grazed.

In my sixteenth year I guided at our Bechler Meadows Camp. The nights were cold. October frost turned dry grass into damp.

So, I hopped up on ole Stretch's back to keep my cold feet dry. I could hear the cook a cussin' 'bout the fish he had to fry.

I pulled my Stetson past my ears. The fall air nipped a bite. Then I looked out on the river, not a fisherman in sight.

The Bechler flowed so quietly with sounds all to her own. And one thing was for certain. We were out there all alone.

My father's rule of hard and fast was, first the horses eat. And when they ate a belly full, you've earned a cook tent seat.

With the horses fed and watered, it meant breakfast time for me. The mountain air with eggs and bacon smelled so heavenly.

The hotcakes made of sourdough with butter gobbled on top, were drowned with maple syrup till the cook told me to stop.

I shoveled in my breakfast, fast enough to barely taste. Then picked out five sound horses and I saddled them in haste.

Our fishermen were ready. They all wore their waders well. But to climb up in the saddle was another story to tell.

We rode next to the Bechler with its color clearest blue. Then they'd fish their way back to our camp in time for dinner stew.

I made a point of telling them, "The Bechler's still unknown. I hope you don't get lonely 'cuz the river's all your own."

The memory of that day was 55 short years ago. The Bechler's been discovered. It's the place for all to go.

Last fall we saddled up and rode the meadow for a day. We witnessed scores of hikers. They were hellbent on their way.

My face showed disappointment from the masses, I was told. What brought the hordes, the multitudes? Did someone holler, "Gold!"

As Edens are discovered we are going to feel the hurt. The droves will keep consuming. God ain't makin' no more dirt.

The world will deem it progress of the wonders up for bid. I call her Bechler Meadows and I wish she could have hid.

Secretary Christi Jacobsen: 'More than 20 candidate filings processed this week'

Secretary of State Christi Jacobsen says candidates filing for the offices of Governor and Attorney General highlighted the week of candidate filing in the Secretary of State's Office. Another candidate also emerged for the Montana Supreme Court Chief Justice race.

Twenty-one new candidate filings were processed by the Secretary of State's Office this week, bringing the total to 296 candidate filings processed for 173 different offices. In addition to the Gubernatorial, Attorney General, and Chief Justice candidates mentioned above, filings were processed this week for U.S. Representative (District No. 2), Public Service Commission, State Legislature, and District Court Judge.

To date, 10 filings have been processed for Montana's three federal races – United States Senator and two U.S. Representative seats. On Thursday, Ming Cabrera became the fifth candidate to file for the state's District 2 congressional race. Only one candidate filing has been processed for the District 1 race, as incumbent Ryan Zinke seeks another term.

Two candidate filings have been processed for the state's Attorney General position after current AG Austin Knudsen officially filed for re-election on Thursday, joining Ben Alke as a candidate for the race. The State Superintendent of Public Instruction race also has two candidates, while the offices for Governor, Secretary of State, and State Auditor each have a lone candidate.

Earlier in the week, Cory Swanson filed for the Supreme Court Chief Justice position, joining Jeremiah Lynch in the race. Dan Wilson and Katherine Bidegaray each filed for the Supreme Court's Justice No. 3 position on the opening day of candidate filing, January 11.

Incumbent Bowen Greenwood has filed for re-election for the Clerk of the Supreme Court position.

A total of 227 candidate filings have been processed for the Montana Legislature – 47 for the Montana Senate and 180 for the House. Thirteen of the 25 Senate races currently have two or more candidates, while 56 of the 100 House races have multiple candidates as of Friday afternoon. Senate Districts 21 and 44, along with House Districts 68 and 88, currently lead the way with four candidate filings each.

Five candidate filings have been processed for the Public Service Commission (PSC) with three of those for the District 3 seat. District 2

Smith River permit drawing results available Super Permit chances still on sale through March 22

Did you draw a Smith River Permit? Check the permit lottery results now on FWP's website.

Successful applicants will be also notified via email. Links within the email will allow permit holders to download and print their float permit, as well as access important and detailed information regarding their upcoming Smith River float.

Permits are required to float the iconic 59-mile stretch of the Smith River, which is celebrated for its spectacular scenery, remote location and excellent trout fishing.

The number of applications received this year was down slightly, with 12,452 applicants (14,518 in 2023). A total of 978 float permits were awarded for launch dates between April 1 and Aug. 15. Montana residents drew 867 float permits, while nonresidents drew 111. In years with average winter snowpack and spring-summer precipitation, the Smith River is typically floatable from mid-April to mid-July.

For applicants who were unsuccessful in the regular permit drawing, Smith River Super Permit chances are available through March 22 for $5 each. One Super Permit winner will be allowed to launch on any date of their choosing. Chances may be purchased online at FWP's website. The Super Permit drawing will be held on March 26.

Floater may also call the Smith River reservation and information line at 406-454-5861 beginning Monday, March 4, to request any remaining launch dates or cancelled permits. The call line will be open Monday through Friday, from 8 a.m. to noon.

Floater should be aware of the following items this year:

- Pit toilets will no longer be provided in 2024, and floaters are required to pack out human waste.
- Floater registration will occur via phone, two days in advance of each scheduled launch date. In addition, the river rangers will assign a one-hour time interval for each float group to approach the boat ramp to launch.
- Camp Baker is a day-use only site, with no overnight camping allowed, except for the period of Sept. 1 through Nov. 30.

For more information about Smith River State Park visit: fwp.mt.gov/stateparks/smith-river.

Sweeney Breaks Single-Game Scoring Record
And Surpasses 1,000 Career Points in Win Over
Battlin' Bears

The Montana Western women's basketball team (16-12, 8-7) closed out the regular season this afternoon with a road win over the Rocky Mountain College Battlin' Bears (15-12, 4-11) by a final score of 86-73.

Jordan Sweeney broke her previous career-high in a game and the Montana Western single-game scoring record after she scored 43 points in the game. The previous record of 40 points was set by Brianna King back in the 2017-18 season against Menlo College.

"Jordan was an unstoppable force for us today. But it was a full team effort win. Our ladies did a great job moving the ball and found advantages" Head Coach Britt Cooper said.

With her total, she breaks 1,000 career points in the win, a total that she surpasses in just her second year with the Bulldogs. She joins teammate Shainy Mack this season who previously surpassed 1,000 career points earlier this year.

How it Happened: A jumper for Sweeney got the contest started before Rocky would jump out to a 9-6 lead in the first four minutes of the ball game. Maddy Moy found the bucket on three straight attempts and got Western back out in front to push them out to a 17-13 lead heading into the second quarter.

Sweeney continued to lead the Bulldogs, rattling off five three-pointers in the second quarter and putting the Bulldogs out to a 44-32 lead at the half.

It was Sweeney again who kept the Bulldogs out in front, hitting 6-6 from the free throw line and creating enough space to take a 66-54 lead into the fourth.

Payton Hagy's three-pointer stretched the UMW lead out to 13 points with 8:14 remaining in the game. Despite the surge, Rocky found success behind a quick 5-0 run and cut the lead back to eight.

Sweeney hit her sixth three of the contest and Keke Davis followed with a layup, giving Western another 13-point lead into the final four minutes of the ball game.

The Battlin' Bears gave it their best shot, but were unable to grab enough momentum to swing the score in their favor. Western took the win by a final score of 86-73.
