Montana Western Students Receive Western Meadowlark Award

The Montana Wildlife Society has recognized a UMW Biology student for contributions to the field of wildlife management and conservation for the second year in a row. Joe Lamb, the 2024 recipient of the society's prestigious Western Meadowlark Award, and 2023 recipient, Hunter Bugni, have both been recognized for their leadership and academic achievements in the field of wildlife biology.

The Montana Wildlife Society is a professional organization dedicated to the conservation and management of wildlife and their habitats in the state of Montana.

The Western Meadowlark Award recognizes a student enrolled at one of the four-year Montana universities, with the exception of the University of Montana and Montana State University, who have made outstanding contributions to the field of wildlife management and conservation. Recipients of the Western Meadowlark Award are individuals who have demonstrated exceptional dedication, leadership, and achievement in their work to conserve and manage Montana's wildlife and their habitats.

Hunter Bugni

The 2023 recipient of the award, Hunter Bugni, is a top preforming student in every class he attends. UMW Professor of Biology, Dr. Michelle Anderson, would like to note his focus, discipline, and passion for wildlife biology that put him on a fast-track to complete his degree requirements. This, paired with interdisciplinary thinking, has led to internships working with Montana Fish, Wildlife, and Parks.

Joe Lamb

The 2024 awardee, Joe Lamb, has established himself as a very proficient and active student and researcher. Lamb has undertaken his own research, investigating local rattlesnake behavioral patterns in response to a changing climate. This work will help fill a gap in the current understanding of snake interactions and provide much needed insight into their behavior.

"Montana Western is an institution built around the foundation of experiential learning. Both Hunter and Joe have utilized this methodology by serving as group leaders, motivating and assisting fellow students in learning both in the classroom and in the field," said Dr. Richardson.

Vigilante Electric Gives Hot Air Balloon Rides

Jeremy Crawford
Southwestern Montana News

Vigilante Electric and Touchstone Energy offered free hot air balloon rides to customers early Friday morning. Customers were able to climb aboard and take a free tethered ride on the balloon. The balloon was tethered so customers would only be able to go up about 40 feet in the air to get a quick look around the town and then brought down. A great way to involve customers before Vigilante Electric hosted their annual meeting.

FORMATION

By "Swede" Troedsson

In latter part of 1955, just prior to my discharge from active duty in the U.S. Marine Corps, I returned from a weekend of liberty in San Francisco, finally getting to bed in my barrack at Camp Pendleton, California at 2:00 AM Monday morning. Reveille was at 0600. We were to get up and assemble on the parade ground shortly thereafter.

Many of us had returned from a wild weekend from wherever. So, we staggered out onto the parade ground in less than a happy mood. Many of us, having just returned from Korea, were "short timers" with little service time left. We were a pretty grumpy and "salty" bunch there at O-dark-thirty,

The weekend Duty Officer was a brand-new Second Lieutenant. There he proudly stood, under the parade ground street light, his new gold shoulder bars glinting as he waited to call us to attention.

The moment arrived, and he shouted the preparatory command "BATTALION!" to call us to attention. There was a pause as the command was repeated by the Company Commanders "COMPANY!", and then finally by the Platoon Commanders, "'TOON!".

Again there was a pause as the Duty Officer drew himself up to give the final command "ATTENTION!"

But, before he could give that command, somewhere from the rear of our formation, came the agonizing shout "WHAAAT?". Giggles of laughter rippled across the ranks! The Duty Oficer went ballistic. He demanded to know who said that. After receiving no response, he ordered that we were to run ten laps around the parade ground.

The formation made only half a lap and then everything disintegrated as all of us Marines charged back into our barracks.

The Duty Officer was left there standing alone on the parade ground knowing that he commanded very little respect from these men.

FWP gearing up for a new watercraft inspection station season

Several watercraft inspection stations begin operation in early March to check snowbird boat traffic returning from mussel-positive areas such as Lakes Mead and Havasu. Boat owners coming to Montana must have their vessel inspected for aquatic invasive species (AIS) at a Montana watercraft inspection station prior to launch.

The stations near Dillon, Ravalli and Anaconda will open this weekend. FWP works closely with partners for station operation and cotracts with the Beaverhead Conservation District for operation of the Dillon station and Confederated Salish and Kootenai Tribes for operation of the Ravalli station. Inspections will also be available at the FWP Region 1 office in Kalispell in March to help accommodate requirements for Mac Days.

Watercraft inspection stations are Montana's first line of defense to prevent the movement of AIS which can have devastating impacts on Montana waterways.

Boat owners should ensure their watercraft, trailers and gear are clean, drained and dry before transporting and need to be aware of Montana's inspection rules:

All watercraft coming into Montana from out of state must be inspected prior to launching.

All watercraft traveling west across the Continental Divide into the Columbia River Basin must be inspected prior to launching.

Anyone transporting watercraft must stop at all open watercraft inspection stations they encounter.

And all boaters are reminded to always clean drain and dry their boat, live wells, anchors, boots and gear when leaving the water.
