Southwestern Montana News Moves To New Location

Jeremy Crawford, Southwestern Montana News

For the past four years Southwestern Montana News has been making its mark with fast, up to the minute breaking news for the region. The goal has always been the same: to make free news available at the touch of a computer or phone screen. Sure, there have been hurdles along the way. A global pandemic, construction projects on Idaho street, the never-ending noise in our office building.

We are excited to announce that we have moved into a very professional, welcoming new location! If the noise or rowdiness of our prior location scared you off before, there's no need to fear. Those issues have been remedied and we would love to show you what's in store for the future of our business.

Our endeavors have come to fruition, and we know that is because of our readers and followers. But to put things in perspective, we literally could not have done this without our advertisers and sponsors. The ones who saw our potential when we just had the glimmer of ideas. Brenda from Womack's Printing, Debbie from the Bookstore, Ron Carroll, Judy Siring, and many others have not only helped secure a way to keep our doors open, but their belief in what we do, as well as their constant support either through mentoring or being a sponsor and advertiser, has attributed to our positive change in this community.

We will provide you with news, event highlights, and community spotlights for years to come. For those businesses we have yet to work with, we hope you enjoy what we do for this community and look forward to connecting with you. The only way this community will thrive is through positivity and working together!

Feel free to drop in at our new location at 23 North Idaho Suite 1! We're never too busy to make your dreams a reality.

Rough Trail Ride

Bryce Angell

The ringer on my telephone went off at 6am. I crawled out of my sleeping bag and joined the other men.

I shoveled down one hotcake and two slightly burned fried eggs. While the younger riders gobbled down enough to fill both legs.

Mother Nature made her call. I hurried to the john. I should have hurried faster. It was me they waited on.

The anxious cowboys saddled up and looked around for me. They threw the saddle on my horse and cinched it to the tee.

Before we set the seat, one humble cowboy offered prayer. He asked for safety for us all from the One who lives up there.

We rode the canyon's edge. An easy ride from where I sat. But the trail turned down, now steeper than the,"Crown of Jasper's hat."

I climbed down off the saddle. The trail was slippery, rocky tile. Then led my saddle horse on down a goat trail's final mile.

The bottom of the canyon was a breathless site to see. Yet I couldn't help but wonder what climbing out would be for me.

My wondering was short lived. The trail climbed straight up to the sky. Again I'd lead the horse. Prob'ly have a heart attack and die.

My good friend then suggested, "Grab on tight the horse's tail. And try to be spry on your feet. You'll get there without fail."

So I grabbed the tightest hold and felt I flew up to the top. Not even sure my feet touched down. Sure weren't no bunny hop!

The canyon crest was welcome but I paid a hefty price. "Cuz the nagging hitch in my git-along was squeezing like a vice.

We chose a trail in hopes to get back early to our truck. The trail led back to where we parked. I'd say 'twas more than luck.

My back was so dang sore but I had lived with it for years. Was it time to give up riding? The worst of all my fears.

That night I gave my wife a call. She had a nice surprise. She said she'd bought a saddle horse, "Just try it on for size."

Well the saddle horse had handlebars and round fat tires to boot. And most of all a battery, to give that extra scoot.

I named the so-called horse E-bike. A gift from my dear wife. Yet in a hepped up dither for this new chapter of my life.

'Collaboration between Election Administrators and Secretary of State': State, local election officials praise partnership

Montana Secretary of State Christi Jacobsen said it was an honor for the Secretary of State's Office to provide updates on the partnership between state and local election officials during this week's State Administration and Veterans' Affairs (SAVA) interim committee.

The Secretary of State's Office highlighted the recent Election Administrator Certification training event in Helena. The Montana Election Team – more than 140 election workers from across the state – attended the three-day event.

Secretary Jacobsen recognized election administrators and their staff and shared her appreciation following the training.County election officials echoed that sentiment, praising the Secretary of State's Office in a survey conducted after the event.

Several of the survey responses repeated Secretary Jacobsen in her welcome remarks to the conference, highlighting the partnership between Montana's state and local election officials.

"The collaboration between (Election Administrators) and the Secretary of State's Office (is what I enjoyed most)," said one county election official. "It feels more like everyone is on the same page than it has in years."

Election Team"I really felt the SOS was trying to help us realize that we are doing a good job and our jobs are important," added another. "Thank you."

"(What I enjoyed most) was the camaraderie with other EAs and the SOS election staff," wrote another.

Planning is already under way for the 2026 Election Administrator Certification training event as both state and local officials look forward to raising the bar even higher and making it even better.
