Of Sun and Shield

The sun does not shine for a few trees and flowers, but for the wide world's joy." Henry Ward Beecher

Join artist Clare L Bailey at Wildwood Floral Creations Saturday, March 30th from 1-4 for the opening reception of her solo exhibition titled Of Sun and Shield.

Inspired by the flora and fauna of this area Clare's latest paintings lead us on a whimsical journey through gardens and along the river, with deer, owls, rabbits and foxes as our guides.

We catch glimpses of mourning-cloak butterflies, western tanagers and a pine siskin or two.

This exhibit is an ode to the beauty surrounding Dillon and a harbinger of the warm sunshine to come.

EVER HAVE A WORK SPOUSE?

Tyrades! by Danny Tyree

You probably have quite a few co-workers with whom you exchange chitchat, banter and superficial observations on current events.

("I fervently believe both Hamas and Putin could be nullified simply by … oooo…fresh Krispy Kremes! Never mind.")

And then there are the "work spouses." According to a 2006 survey, 32 percent of workers said they had an "office husband" or "office wife." (That's about one-third the number who viewed the HR department as their "office mother-in-law," but that's a column for another time.)

Researchers M. Chad McBride and Karla Mason Bergen defined work spouses as "a special platonic relationship with a work colleague characterized by a close emotional bond, high levels of disclosure and support and truth, honesty, loyalty and respect."

Work spouses develop without the baggage that can attach to your actual marriage. It's comforting to have someone who knows the pressures of the workplace culture and will always be in your corner – without chirping, "Hey, do you know what we can do with this corner?"

It's refreshing to share crazy hopes and dreams without hearing, "I hope you're not wearing that in the company picnic potato sack race!"

It's inspirational to witness the joy of someone who takes pride about a newly signed client or a finished-ahead-of-schedule project instead of what they left behind in the bathroom.

Mutually beneficial work relationships are something priceless, something to preserve. But there are several ways in which they can go awry.

For instance, they can stealthily evolve into something too closely resembling a traditional marriage.

Warning signs include: questions such as "Does this picket sign make my butt look big?"; mumbled responses such as "The quotation on the Smith contract was off by a factor of 10? An archbishop developed green spots from eating our new snack? Mmm hmm…that's nice, dear"; and arguments such as "That wasn't ME snoring during the Zoom meeting. That was YOU snoring during the Zoom meeting."

Work spouse relationships are also threatened when flirtation gets involved and forbidden sexual tension rears its head. (Its head adorned with long flowing hair that wafts in the breeze in slow-motion and … ahem…where was I?)

You're playing with fire when you find yourself venting a little too much about your real Significant Other's shortcomings. Hopefully, your work spouse can nip it in the bud. ("Your spouse doesn't understand you? Maybe if you quit cramming three Krispy Kremes into your mouth at one time, they could.")

Me? I don't technically have a work spouse relationship. Several ladies at work (including two whom I've worked with for 25 years) are great conversationalists and volunteer as sounding boards when I need advice on aging parents, homework-overwhelmed children or some such; but I try to ration my discussions and not overburden them. Their "in" trays must take priority. ("Invoices. Payroll. Hamas. Putin. And then after lunch…")

In closing, work spouses are a marvelous asset; but it can be awkward when your work spouse doesn't realize they are a work spouse. If you act clingy enough, they may take extreme measures to get a little "me time." Even if you work in a dangerous profession such as firefighter.

("We got all the family members, pets, toys, family heirlooms and major appliances out safely. But maybe I need to rush back into the inferno to check for Bigfoot. Or ghosts. Gotta save the ghosts. Yeah, that's the ticket!")

" Please stop calling this 'the breakroom' and no, there's not space for a water cooler."

CARNATION GARDEN

By "Swede" Troedsson

Shortly after I retired in 1994, I kept accepting dispatches by the Montana DNRC (Department of Natural Resources & Conservation) as an Air Support Group Supervisor, which ws considered to be a critical shortage category at that time.

That summer, I was dispatched to a state wildland fire on the Stillwater State Forest. The state forest headquarters is located in Olney, MT, about 15 miles northwest of Whitefish, Montana.

The first day I arrived on the fire, I visited the fire helibase, a temporary helicopter landing area which was located some distance east of the headquarters.

That evening, I attended the state lands fire overhead team meeting in Olney. I informed the team that there was quite a "carnation garden" (wads of toilet paper) growing around the helibase and recommended that porta potties be delivered to the helibase. It was my understanding that the helibase was located in a municipal watershed!

Those overhead were shocked! They were in the early stages of organizing logistics on the fire, and they hadn't even considered ordering porta potties for the helibase.

The next morning when I returned to the helibase, four porta potties had to be quickly moved off of the helicopter operations landing area so we could start allowing the helicopter operations to begin that day!

Future Fisheries Improvement Program grant deadline is May 15

Landowners, watershed groups and others have until May 15 to apply for summer Future Fisheries Improvement Program (FFIP) grants.

The goal of Fish, Wildlife & Parks' FFIP is to restore rivers, streams and lakes to improve Montana's wild fish habitat. Entities can receive funding for qualifying projects that benefit Montana's wild fish. Each project is assessed by an independent review panel and final funding decisions are made by the Fish and Wildlife Commission.

To learn more about FFIP and to download the grant application form, go to the FFIP website at fwp.mt.gov/ffip, email FWPFFIP@mt.gov or call the program manager at 406-444-2432.

Completed FFIP applications must be received on or before 11:59 p.m. on May 15 and should be sent electronically to FWPFFIP@mt.gov. Paper applications can be sent to Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks, Fisheries Habitat Bureau, P.O. Box 200701, Helena, MT 59620-0701.

Lewis & Clark Caverns State Park to host Earth Day trail repair event

Lewis & Clark Caverns State Park will host an event next month bringing together volunteers to repair trails and manage weeds at the park in connection with Earth Day.

The event will be held on Saturday, April 20. Volunteers who wish to participate should arrive at the campground pavilion near the lower visitor center at 8:15 a.m.

Volunteers and park staff will be repairing the park's damaged and winter-worn trails, as well as removing invasive weeds to keep the park healthy and easy to use. If volunteers have tools for moving dirt or removing weeds, it is recommended that they bring them. Volunteers should also bring gloves, sturdy shoes, clothing for outdoor work and a lunch. All trail work will be on foot.

Volunteers play a significant role in taking care of Lewis & Clark Caverns State Park and preparing the park for the upcoming summer season.

For more information on this event or to sign up, contact Katelin Carpenter at Katelin.carpenter@mt.gov. For information about the park, please click here or call 406-287-3541.

The Resurrection Celebration

(Pastor Ken Gilchrist, Big Sky Missionary Baptist Church)

Resurrection means to restore to life that from which life has previously departed. It primarily refers to the restoration of life to the physical bodies of mankind.

"Resurrection" is derived from a Greek word meaning "to stand up" and refers to dead bodies that are in the grave, that will hear the voice of Jesus Christ and come forth at the hour of resurrection.

The resurrection of Christ is a proven historical event in which Jesus was physically raised from the dead and reunited with His body. His resurrection reveals to us that we also will be physically resurrected.

The gospel of John 5:28-29 states that there will be a resurrection of the just (righteous) and a resurrection of the unjust (unrighteous). At this time every body will be reunited with its soul or spirit.

The resurrection of the just will be a glorious event in which everyone that has placed their faith in Jesus Christ as the personal Savior will receive glorified bodies. Everyone who has exercised this faith can and should be excited about this resurrection.

We all know that we have an appointment with death, which will not be canceled. As believers in Christ we have no reason to fear this event. The Apostle Paul states in 2 Corinthians 5:8, "We [believers in Christ] are confident...and willing rather to be absent from the body, and to be present with the Lord."

I challenge the reader to read Paul's numerous comparisons from creation to illustrate the difference between the body we have now and the body believers in Christ will have at the resurrection in 1 Corinthians 15:35-44. He notes in verse 44 that the body we receive in the resurrection will be a spiritual body as opposed to the natural body we have now. 1 Corinthians 15:52-55 reveals that it will be incorruptible and immortal, thus giving us the victory over death.

Unbelievers are among the unjust referred to in John 5:28-29. The resurrection for the unjust will be horrible. Revelation 20:12-15 states they will stand before God, who will judge them and cast them into the lake of fire because their names were not in the book of life.

The basis upon which the Christian hope of the resurrection is founded is acceptance of Jesus Christ as Savior. God's word states that those who haven't believed in Jesus Christ are condemned because of their unbelief. This means they aren't ready for when their life on earth ends and cannot look forward to the joys of eternity in heaven or the incorruptible, perfect body.

We pray that this resurrection presentation will help any unbelievers realize their need of spiritual salvation. Romans 10:13 gives the simple formula. It is this: "For whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord [Jesus Christ] shall be saved."
