The crew will be out between 5 AM and 7 :45 AM. so please be cautious when traveling through those areas.

Animal Bites and Rabies Exposure

As warmer weather greets us, so does the risk for animal bites and rabies exposure. Prevention of rabies is a very important part of public health because it is a fatal infection. Here at Beaverhead County Public Health, we are trained to help determine the best course of action after a potential rabies exposure and are happy to help with any questions regarding animal bites. While bats, raccoons, and skunks pose the highest risk of rabies exposure in Montana, other animals can also transmit rabies including domestic pets like dogs and cats. It is a common misconception that pets are automatically euthanized after a bite, this is not the case at all. If a pet bites someone, it is a requirement that the pet be evaluated by a veterinarian, quarantined for ten days, then re-evaluated after the quarantine period to confirm that the pet is healthy and free from rabies symptoms. Animal bites must be reported to local law enforcement so animals can be located, the owner made aware, and animal quarantine is initiated. Bites and exposures must also be reported to Beaverhead County Public Health at 406-683-4771. There is no treatment once rabies infection takes hold, therefore it is very important for victims of animal bites to be treated within 10 days if rabies exposure is suspected. What we can do if rabies exposure is suspected is treat the bite victim with post exposure prophylaxis (PEP). This creates antibodies to prevent rabies infection.

Bat bites are very difficult to detect so all contact should be avoided. Individuals are advised to carefully capture any bat that has bitten someone, is trapped in a room with a sleeping or intoxicated individual, or any bat that has come in close contact with skin. Bats should be handled with leather gloves and placed in a bag or a box for transport. The bat is then submitted to the state lab for testing and if positive, the individual would be treated with PEP. If the bat is unable to be located it is advised that individuals report to public health so they can be appropriately evaluated and if determined necessary, treated with PEP to prevent rabies infection.

Remember to keep your pets up to date on their annual rabies vaccinations to protect them as well as others. Contact Beaverhead County Public Health if you have any questions regarding animal bites or rabies.

Springtime in Dillon

The City of Dillon encourages everyone (homeowners, businesses, renters) to keep their sidewalks clear of debris. With nicer weather, more and more people are getting out to enjoy walking and running throughout our community. Lets' all make it safe for everyone. Also, please when walking your dog, cleanup after them if they have to stop and relieve themselves. No one likes to pickup dog waste, particularly when it does not belong to your pet. Be a responsible dog owner and clean up after your dog! Your neighbors yard and city parks are not restrooms for your pets.

If you have any questions please contact Kristina Abbey, Director of Operations, at 683-4245.

Thank You

Ghost Hunting In A Ghost Town The Ultimate Date Night

Jeremy Crawford, Southwestern Montana News

We have all seen the shows in some form or another. These shows are ghost hunting shows, and the popularity of them has increased a lot. Some people have even gone into business to make money off the hype of ghost hunting. You can buy all sorts of ghost hunting tools from emf meters to spirit boxes to SLS cameras.

A couple weeks ago in the events section on Facebook an event for a ghost investigation in Virginia City popped up on my suggestions. I couldn't pass it up for a great date night with the wife and to experience something that deep down inside almost everyone of us has wanted to go and do. That is chasing ghosts. So, for the sum of $20 per person I bought two tickets.

Virginia City MT is a ghost town so it would only make sense that it would have a lot of ghosts. The town was the first territorial capital in Montana. It has a somewhat violent history with the Road Agents and the Vigilantes, not to mention the number of people that died of painful accidents involved in early days of mining.

The ghost tour was hosted by the Bozeman Paranormal Society and our main guide was a nice lady, Elies. She had many encounters with the ghosts of Virginia City and Nevada City, and she did a wonderful job of explaining what each tool did, what to expect, and a little history of what they thought the spirits they had interacted with did in their previous life.

We started at the Road Agents Roost restaurant in the back. A young girl whose family lived and ran a furniture store still resides in the building. They believe she may have drowned and that she is harmless. I was skeptical as she explained how an EMF meter worked, how dowsing rods worked and the other pieces of equipment help one communicate with a spirit.

Soon we were given the tools to use and to start investigating in this area. You would ask questions and your EMF meter would not light up, then you would move and ask another question. Sometimes you would get one or two lights but sometimes it would jump to its highest reading. At the restaurant using the dowsing rods I would ask questions and they would move being sceptical. I figured it was gravity and the way you held them. At one point I did feel a cold touch on my arm and hand followed by the rods almost feeling as if they were being pulled. It started to make me question what I was feeling and seeing.

Next, we moved on to the St. Paul's Episcopal Church; this building has been part of the community since 1904. I am sure it has seen its fair share of events. The building was a replacement for the older building that was falling apart. In 1900 prominent businessman Henry Eling died, his widow offered money for a brand-new church, as a memorial to him. The church was finished in 1904. The stone is native and was quarried from the hills above Hillside Cemetery.

The outside of the church reminds a person of an old English church: the stones are covered in a green moss, the windows are stained glass, and the old wooden doors are heavy.

We were given almost free range of the church in a respectable manner. We got to explore the basement all the time asking questions and checking the EMF meter. The highlight of the church would be as we sat in the pews with a spirit box asking questions and our EMF meters would spike randomly on different people. As the meter spiked the area would also get colder you could see this as well as feel it. The meter would stop spiking and the area would feel the right temperature again.

Next stop the Hangman's Building, the building became famous on January 14, 1864, Vigilantes used the heavy center support beam of this under construction building, to hang five of Henry Plummer's Road Agents: Frank Parish, Boone Helm, Jack Gallagher, Haze Lyons, and ClubFoot George Lane. Our guide told us about the time when she first started her foray into ghost hunting and how she walked by this building after a man asked her what she was doing. She turned to find a man in a hat drinking a bottle of beer standing inside the building with the door opened. She talked to the man for a while and somehow, she ended up from one side of the building to the other. She would leave the building and look back to see the man was no longer there. Her story is much more in depth but that is for her to tell.

We did not have as much activity at Hangman's Building that night, but we had a bonus building to explore. One of the fellow ghost hunters owns the business the Madisonian was located in and she has experienced unusual things in her building. From things moving to the constant cold spot above her register. We all gathered in the building, asked our questions and found some EMF readings but for most of us the knowledge of the building and events in the town that she shared with us distracted us from the ghost of the Madisonian.

After the event was over, my wife and I gathered back into our car to travel back home. We discussed what we experienced that night as well as experiences we have had before. Are ghosts real? I believe that is up to each individual to decide on, but I have had a few encounters with things I cannot explain, and I do believe that just maybe we do have spirits among us. If you would like to experience one of these adventures, they will be offering them in the future as well as the ones they have at the Old Montana Prison. I hear from one of the fellow participants that a prison adventure is a must.

Buyan Industries Donation

The Beaverhead Pickleball Association (BPA) took another step forward in providing the community with free, public pickleball courts thanks to a substantial and generous cost-savings donation of a shipping container by Buyan Industries, LLC out of Sheridan, Montana. The normal cost of a "one-trip," 20-foot-long container is over $4,400; but owner Joel Buyan's generous in-kind donation allowed the BPA to purchase the container at a reduced cost allowing the BPA to stay within its budget for such a purchase. The container will be used to store court tools, materials for giving free lessons, spare balls, extra building materials, etc. In the winter when the courts are not usable, then the courts' nets, posts, benches, wind screen, etc. will be stored in the weather-tight/rodent-free container.

With this in-kind donation of over $2,000, Buyan Industries, LLC has become a "Silver Club" benefactor. Other such benefactors include AgWest Farm Services, Beaverhead County, LS Ready Mix, Pioneer Federal Savings and Loan, Rowe Excavation, Stockman Bank, RE Miller and Sons, Festival of Trees, Helen Edwards, and a Dillon resident.

In addition to the Silver Club, there are "Platinum Club" benefactors such as Phillips Concrete, United Way of Beaverhead County and the Beaverhead Foundation. "Gold Club" benefactors include an anonymous donor, and the Matador Ranch and Cattle Company.

Anyone donating $1,000 or more will be listed on a plaque that will be installed when the courts are completed if the donor wishes to be recognized. Donations of any amount are appreciated and acknowledged. The BPA is a 501(c)3 organization and all donations are tax deductible. Mail donations to BPA, PO Box 683, Dillon, MT 59725.
