Secretary Christi Jacobsen: 'State Canvass completed for Montana's 2024 Primary Election'

"Montana's 2024 Primary Election results are official," Montana Secretary of State Christi Jacobsen announced on Thursday. "Today, the Board of State Canvassers completed the official State Canvass procedure at the State Capitol Building."

Representatives from the Attorney General's Office, Office of Public Instruction, and the State Auditor's Office completed the canvassing after 5 p.m. on Thursday evening.

In accordance with Montana law, the Board of State Canvassers declared that the candidates receiving the highest number of votes cast during the June 4th Primary Election have been nominated and will advance to the General Election. Once the Commissioner of Political Practices notifies the Secretary of State of candidates' compliance with applicable filing requirements, the Secretary of State's Office will provide successful nominees with certificates of nomination.

County canvassing procedures were completed earlier this month.

"Thank you to the Montana Elections Team and every individual who served on the County and State Canvass Boards," said Secretary Jacobsen. "Montana's post-election procedures are crucial for ensuring accurate results and transparency. Congratulations to all of the nominated candidates in Montana's 2024 Primary Election."

Montana's General Election is Tuesday, November 5. Secretary Jacobsen reminds eligible Montanans to register to vote, confirm their registration, and learn about Montana's electoral process by visiting VoteMT.gov.

Volunteers Needed for Bannack Days

Bannack Days will be held on July 20 & 21.

We expect to have children make close to 1000 rag dolls at Bannack Days so donations of cotton material and Polyfill stuffing/batting is needed. Material can be whole pieces or cut into strips: 1 1/2 inches wide by 22 inches for arm lengths and 44- 46 inches for body lengths. We also use muslin material that can be cut into 10-inch squares for heads. Contact the park or Arlis Vannett at 406-925-2209 / arlis_v@hotmail.com if you have questions or want to make arrangements to make a donation.

We can also use donations of old candles and crayons for our ever-popular candle dipping hands-on demonstration. Contact the park or Amanda Berguson at 406-925-0947/ amandaberguson80@gmail.com if you have questions or want to make a donation.

Volunteers are also needed during Bannack Days to help with these activities and in other areas. If you can help in any way, call Arlis Vannett at 406-925-2209 or John Phillips, Park Manager, at 406-834-3413. Come Join the fun!

UMW Students Present Research

University of Montana Western undergraduate students Samantha (Sam) Haak and Jonah Lindsey recently presented their research at the Geological Society of America (GSA) meeting in Spokane. Their poster, titled "Antarctic Aerial Electromagnetic Resistivity (AEM): Understanding Low-Resistivity Anomalies in the McMurdo Dry Valleys and Brine Infiltration in the McMurdo Ice Shelf," provided new insights into the dynamics of Antarctic ice shelves.

Haak graduated in the spring of 2024 with a Bachelor's degree in Environmental Science with a focus in Geology, and Lindsey is a senior majoring in Biology with a focus in Ecology. The two of them teamed up under the guidance of Dr. Neil Foley, Professor in UMW's Environmental Science Department, and conducted National Science Foundation (NSF)-funded research that revealed the McMurdo Ice Shelf (MIS) contains up to 17% brine, highlighting significant saltwater infiltration into the ice shelf.

Ice shelves, formed when glaciers descend from land and float when they reach the ocean, are crucial components of the Antarctic landscape. They are common around the periphery of Antarctica and calve off or break off to become massive icebergs. Haak and Lindsey's work shows that seawater can enter this calving front and percolate through pore space for dozens of kilometers.

Using electromagnetic (EM) resistivity data, Haak and Lindsey mapped the extent of the brine. Resistivity is a measure of how difficult it is for electrical current to pass through a material. Pure snow and ice exhibit very high resistivity, whereas saltwater has low resistivity. This contrast allowed them to identify regions with low-resistivity brines.

Understanding the extent and mechanism of brine infiltration is crucial because it increases the ice shelf's weight, much like how a wet sponge is heavier than a dry one. This increased loading of the ice shelf makes it more susceptible to calving. While calving is a natural process that removes ice from the shelf, accelerated calving, where more ice is lost than replaced, could contribute to sea level rise as glacier ice flows more rapidly to the sea. This accelerated calving also has short-term repercussions as the stability of the MIS is particularly important because it hosts runways that serve the United States Antarctica Program at McMurdo Station, a nearby logistical hub for the whole continent and many affiliated national Antarctic Programs.

Haak and Lindsey correlated their measurements with past researchers' work. Their use of EM resistivity is novel in this setting, but it is a useful complement to different techniques used by past researchers, notably Ice Penetrating Radar. Their work is useful for mapping extents and thickness of brines, while radar is useful for high-resolution cross-sections.

The University of Montana Western celebrates Haak and Lindsey's achievements, reflecting the institution's commitment to experiential education.

Veteran's Corner Update #261

By Mike Lawson

Greetings to all of you who read my SW MT Veteran Update articles.

Veteran News Updates:

• Across SW MT there will be parades/rodeos/fireworks etc. Most of these events, especially the 4th of July, will see a Veteran representation of floats, marching, etc.. Sign-up deadlines to get your float or event registered are quickly coming up, so if that concerns you or your groups, please inquire and do the paperwork. Here in Butte we'll do the Toys For Tots float and a Dav Van. The Trolley will have Veterans and their wives/husbands aboard and the UVC Honor Guard will have some veterans marching and carrying our American/State flags. The Civil Air Patrol young folks will also be marching and if the past parades are any indication, they will be leading the parade.

• I've been somewhat concerned about the newly completed section of our VA Butte CBOC Clinic not being utilized. In making a call to a friendly source at Ft Harrison, I found out that there's some final in-depth VA inspections yet to take place within the next couple of weeks. Once those take place and are passed, they will hire more staff to begin seeing veterans. This was added to address more audio and physical therapy veteran services.

• This week will see some of our American Legion members from SW MT make the journey to Glasgow, Mt. for the state convention being held there in the far reaches of NE Montana. I don't think I have ever been there, so am looking forward to seeing that part of our state.

• Our Butte Toys For Tots Campaign covers from Butte to Dillon, to the Ruby Valley (including Silver Star, Twin Bridges, Sheridan and to Virginia City), Whitehall, Cardwell, and Harrison. We have developed this Campaign over the years to see it run like a well oiled machine and many kids from High School to newborn babies receive presents at Christmas. This campaign is run by some very dedicated team members who make things run smoothly. I have been the Coordinator for close to a dozen years and have seen what a great program it has become. The National TFT Organization has divided the thousands of TFT Campaigns being held across the US and beyond into 7 regions. Montana, along with a number of other states, belong to Region 7. I was recently awarded "Region 7 Coordinator of the Year" for 2023. I am honored to receive this award, but it really is a reflection of the Butte TFT Campaign and all the volunteers who make it happen. So I share this award with each and every one of these great team members, especially my Assistant Coordinator, Shirlee Boitnott. Until next time, take care.

Attorney General Knudsen issues Statement
 The U.S. Supreme Court today reversed a lower court's decision that prohibited states and local governments from enforcing laws that prevent public spaces from becoming homeless encampments. In response to the Johnson v. City of Grants Pass ruling, Attorney General Knudsen released the following statement:
 "This is a huge win for cities across Montana that are suffering from unsafe public spaces. For too long local governments have been unable to address the rampant homeless camps and their side effects in communities across the state because their hands were tied. Cities like Bozeman and Missoula can't hide behind the lower court's flawed decision any longer. Now, they can enforce the laws that stop Montana streets from becoming camps for the homeless."
 Attorney General Knudsen led a 24-state effort calling on the Supreme Court to reverse the lower court's decision in March.

Speaker Events Coming Up At State Parks
 Several interpretive events highlighting natural, cultural and historical elements of southwestern Montana are scheduled at Lewis & Clark Caverns and Missouri Headwaters state parks. These family-friendly events are free to Montana residents. An $8 entrance fee applies to nonresident vehicles.
Missouri Headwaters State Park events
 Missouri Headwaters State Park has events planned for each Saturday in July as part of the park's summer speaker series. These talks will each begin at 7 p.m. behind the park office, except for the July 13 event, which will be in the picnic area. Visitors are encouraged to bring their own chair and bug spray.
 • On July 6, Headwaters will host Buck Buchanan, a Montana singer and songwriter. Since a young age, Buchanan's appreciation of music, combined with his love of poetry, led him on the path to writing songs. In 1976, he moved to West Yellowstone to be part of a country rock band with his longtime friends. In 1980, he moved to Bozeman and was a science teacher for 22 years at Belgrade Middle School. His love for songwriting and playing music never ended, so in 1998, he and Johnny Regan founded the country band, www. Twang. Buck currently resides in Manhattan with his wife, Carol.

Spring deer, elk surveys show mixed results

Some areas are reducing antlerless B licenses to grow herds. Biologists conducting spring deer and elk surveys found some areas with improved herd growth and some areas with lower recruitment due to poor habitat conditions and disease.

During the spring season, FWP wildlife staff get a pulse on deer and elk numbers by conducting aerial spring trend surveys or green-up flights across the state. These flights occur in the same areas year after year so biologist can understand population trends.

Southwest Montana - Region 3

Deer ~ What we saw: Overall, mule deer populations exhibit regional variability, with some areas showing declines and poor recruitment, while others demonstrate robust populations and good fawn survival due to mild winters and favorable conditions. Observed deer were in good body condition, suggesting a healthy population outlook. There was one primary exception – an aerial survey of mule deer in HD 380 (Elkhorns). There was a 29 percent decrease from last year and 59 percent below long-term spring average.

What we did: Proposed a reduction in the HD 380-02 mule deer B license from 100 to 75.

Why we did it: To stabilize and encourage population growth.

Elk ~ What we saw: Overall, elk counts in most districts are at or above management objectives, with high calf to cow ratios signaling good reproductive success. However, bull to cow ratios are generally low, potentially due to survey conditions rather than actual population deficits. The overall health and growth of elk populations across the surveyed districts are positive. In HD 380, the total count observed was 1,387 elk, although it is believed that 200 to 300 elk were missed. Notably, there was a significant movement of elk between HD 380 and HD 390, affecting counts. Calf ratios and yearling bull numbers were lower than average, likely due to the previous harsh winter. What we did: Reduced Elk B Licenses from 175 to 125 in HD 380-01, and reduced Elk B Licenses from 100 to 50. Increased 394-00 Elk B Licenses in HDs 318 and 335 from 300 to 400.

Why we did it: To support population growth in HD 380 because of low calf recruitment. In HDs 318 and 335, the population is robust and can support the increased harvest opportunity.

The results we are expecting: In HD 380, we are expecting the reduced harvest of cows to generate increased calf recruitment and population growth in future years to meet management objectives. In HDs 318 and 335, we are expecting the increased cow harvest to stabilize the growth of the population to management objectives.
