Celebration of Life for Sharon Graham

Join us as we come together and honor the life of Sharon Graham.

We have all felt sadness and grief for Sharon's passing, but now it's time for us to celebrate the remarkable life she lived.

A celebration will be held Monday, July 22, at Jaycee Park located at 122 East Sebree Street in Dillon. It will start around 2:00 p.m. A short memorial will be held at the Dillon Cemetery at 1:00 p.m.

A light luncheon and refreshments will be served.

Richard Allen Morris

Our beloved husband, father and grandfather, Richard Allen Morris, after many years of courageously living with multiple health issues, passed away on July 14th, 2024, in Kirkland, WA. We have already received a great outpouring of love and wonderful stories with people remembering what a kind, funny, loving person he was.

In his 79 years here on Earth, he embodied the spirit of a Renaissance Man. Richard was talented at everything he put his hand to. A few highlights of his life include being a devoted born-again Christian who was a faithful member of First Baptist Church in Dillon, Montana. Richard proudly served his country as an Air Force Vietnam Veteran. He was a skilled Air Traffic Controller at many beautiful airports in the United States. He later found success as the owner of a thriving automotive sales lot and he owned and operated Faded Glory, his own Auctioneer business. Richard volunteered tirelessly across the United States with SOWERS and offered his services freely for many charitable causes, including Wounded Warriors.

Richard remodeled many homes (he was a fixer-upper before it became popular). There wasn't a homeowner responsibility he couldn't handle. Late in life, Richard discovered a natural talent for crafting unique furniture pieces that reflected his creative vision.

First and foremost, however, Richard was kind and sincerely loved and admired. He is survived by his devoted and grieving wife of 57 years, Cathy Kiah-Morris, his two daughters, Cassandra Avery Morris of Kalispell, MT and Andrea Morris Belanger (Gary), of Snohomish, WA, and many grandchildren and great-grandchildren. He was preceded in death by his beloved son, Roger Lee Morris.

Richard's legacy of love and his many accomplishments will be celebrated in a memorial service to be held at a future date in Dillon, Montana

Details will follow.

Season Tickets for 2024 Montana Western Bulldogs Football Soon Available

The Montana Western Bulldogs are excited to announce that season tickets for the highly anticipated 2024 football season at the brand-new Bulldog Stadium, located on the Montana Western campus, will soon be available for purchase.

Fans who join the Bulldog Club, the dedicated fundraising arm supporting Montana Western student-athletes, will have an advanced opportunity to purchase season tickets starting July 22. All Bulldog Club members will receive an email from the athletic department with details on how to purchase their season tickets. This opportunity will remain open until August 5. Following this period, season tickets will go on sale to the general public August 6.

Priced at $90 each, season tickets offer an incredible value, ensuring that fans can be a part of every thrilling moment of Bulldogs football. Season tickets will be available for purchase until noon on Friday, September 6.

Additionally, season ticket renewals will be available each year, allowing fans to maintain their dedicated support for the team.

Details regarding single-game tickets and game day parking will be released soon. Fans interested in enhancing their game day experience with a tailgate space can visit here.

Join us in cheering on the Montana Western Bulldogs and be part of the excitement at the new Bulldog Stadium. Secure your season tickets today while supporting Montana Western student-athletes.

For more information, please contact the Montana Western Athletics Department at (406) 683-7391 or via email at umw.sid@umwestern.edu.

GOODYEAR SNAKES

By "Swede" Troedsson

Following a semi-truck too closely can lead to an unpleasant surprise.

At dusk in the early 1990's, my wife Pat and I were driving from Deerlodge to Dillon, MT. Upon entering the Interstate, we found ourselves behind a semi-truck. Behind this moving semi-truck there were sparks occasionally lighting up on the asphalt. The semi was hauling crushed cars. The sparks were being caused by metal debris hitting the pavement after falling off that load of crushed cars! This load did not have a safety net over the crushed cars.

Before I became fully aware of the source of the sparks, a piece of metal hit my windshield!

As the semi-truck continued on its way, I saw a highway patrolman engaged in a traffic stop on the other side of the Interstate. I stopped my car and ran across the Interstate to the patrol car and informed the patrolman of this situation. He immediately radioed ahead, relaying that information to a patrolman at a traffic stop further up the highway. That next patrolman gave chase, but before he could overtake that semi, HIS windshield was impacted by a piece of metal!

That semi-truck driver was cited for an unsafe load. When I caught up to him, I asked that truck driver to give me the name and telephone number of his company. However, I decided not to pursue the incident because the damage to my car's windshield was very slight.

Earlier this year (2024), I was complimenting my neighbor on her new car. She explained that she was forced to buy a new car because her previously owned car was totaled by a hood that flew off a pickup truck that was being transported by a semi-truck that was just in front of her. (Speculation has it that the pickup truck's hood was not latched).

Because of the heavy traffic right behind her, she dared not slam on her brakes. She could only watch as that airborne truck's hood slammed into her car's windshield. Fortunately, she was not injured. The truck driver was cited for an unsafe load (no net over the load.)

In the early 1980's I was returning from Wise River, MT to Dillon in a Forest Service truck. I was following a semi-truck. Just east of Dewey, I watched as a recap layer on one of his rear tires began to peel off. It was head right towards me! I slammed on my truck's brakes and watched as about four feet of recap hit the asphalt about two feet in front of the hood of my truck! My vehicle was not damaged. (Some truckers refer to those lost recaps as "Goodyear snakes".)

Following a semi-truck too closely makes a truck driver nervous. They like to keep an eye on traffic following close behind them in case they have to make a sudden move. If you can't see either of the truck driver's outside rear view mirrors, then the driver cannot see you.

DO YOU TALK WITH YOUR HANDS?

Tyrades! by Danny Tyree

Somewhere over the years, karma gave me the finger.

It all started with an incident in Mrs. Jones's high school English class. Classmate Tracy Holder was unconsciously performing multiple animated hand gestures as he delivered an emphatic observation. Unnoticed, I smugly imitated his gesticulations.

(That was not my finest hour. The late Tracy was a cool guy, and I would definitely not give my immature younger self an "o-tay" signal for such tomfoolery.)

By the time I was producing an exaggerated version of a basketball referee's "traveling" signal, Tracy caught on and shot me a death glare.

It didn't dawn on me for a long time, but some combination of college Speech & Theater courses, years of teaching Bible class, life's inevitable ironic twists and turns and the Curse of Tracy turned ME into one of those "hand talker" people.

Certain nationalities and ethnic groups (such as Italian-Americans) are stereotyped as relying on body language to enhance the spoken word, but I assure you that the trait can befall people of any ancestry. Yes, my "air bagpipes" are just as efficient as "air violin" for mocking a tale of woe – although I do shudder at the thought of a cooked sheep's stomach being thrown at me in retribution.

I shouldn't complain about the unanticipated evolution of my speaking skills. Research shows that people who communicate through active gesturing (including classics such as "the forehead smack," "the pinch of salt" and "rip off the Band-Aid") tend to be evaluated as warm, agreeable and energetic.

(Research also shows that if you give researchers enough funding, they will likewise declare that people surrounded by a chalk outline also tend to be evaluated as warm, agreeable and energetic. But I digress.)

Speakers who enhance their message with appropriate hand gestures are regarded as leaders. Even if you expand into wretched excess of gestures, you're still regarded as a leader. ("Dude, we trust you to go first to jump off the bridge, cross the minefield and ask the boss for a 50-percent raise. We've got your back. And, no, I'm not making that busting-my-guts-with-laughter gesture behind your back.")

"Hand talking" was much less expensive back in the Good Old Days. Young people should honor hand gestures as the forerunner of emojis; but they're so hooked on technology, it's traumatizing for them to illustrate the traditional "one that got away" fish story. ("It was this long…I mean, it was this long…I'm gonna have to buy a cellphone for each hand in order to describe that freakin' trout!")

A study analyzing TED Talks found that the most popular, viral speakers used nearly twice as many gestures as the least popular speakers utilized. I must admit that I now find my patience severely tried by lecturers, experts and casual acquaintances whose body language is so reserved, prim and unadventurous. C'mon, at least pantomime removing the stick that is so firmly wedged in…well, never mind.

Public speakers realize that success has its drawbacks, if dramatic emphasis gives way to clueless flailing. ("More deals closed than anyone else in the state. More awards won than anyone else in the region. More eyes poked than the entire Moe Howard Fan Club…")

I'm just getting started, but I can tell by the music my editor is cranking up. He thinks I've exhausted the subject.

"You and that hand jive have got to go."

Hoot-owl restrictions placed on additional rivers in southwest Montana

Full fishing closure on stretch of Madison below Ennis Dam

A full angling closure and two new hoot-owl restrictions will go into effect on additional sections of the Madison River in southwest Montana. The full closure will go into effect at midnight tonight. The hoot-owl restrictions go into effect at 2 p.m. on Thursday, July 18.

Hoot-owl restrictions prohibit fishing from 2 p.m. to midnight each day. These closures and restrictions, which are due to warming temperatures and low flows, will stay in effect until conditions improve.

- Full closure takes effect at midnight tonight on the Madison River: o From Madison Dam at Ennis Reservoir on the lower Madison to the footbridge at North Western Energy powerhouse
- Hoot-owl restrictions take effect Thursday, July 18, include: o From the footbridge at North Western Energy powerhouse to the confluence with the Jefferson River

o From the Yellowstone National Park boundary to Hebgen Reservoir

Hoot-owl restrictions remain in effect for portions of the Beaverhead, Big Hole, Blackfoot, Clark Fork, East Gallatin, Gallatin, Madison, Ruby and Sun rivers, as well as the Bitterroot, Jefferson and Silver Bow Creek in their entirety.

Bulldog Volleyball AVCA Team Academic Award

The American Volleyball Coaches Association announced today that more than 1,400 collegiate and high school volleyball teams have earned the AVCA Team Academic Award sponsored by INTENT this season. The Montana Western Volleyball team has earned this honor for the sixth time in program history.

The award, initiated in the 1992–93 academic year, honors volleyball teams that maintain a year-long grade-point average of 3.3 on a 4.0 scale or 4.1 on a 5.0 scale.

"We are pleased that the record-setting success of the 2023-24 season on the court has extended to the classroom, too, as evidenced by more programs earning the AVCA Team Academic Award than ever before," says AVCA CEO Dr. Jaime Gordon. "This is a great example of how committed our coaches are when it comes to helping their players reach their full potential as both students and athletes."
