HARRISON PEAK

By "Swede" Troedsson

The United States Board On Geographical Names, operating under the United States Secretary of Interior as an agency within the U.S Geological Survey, is responsible for approving the naming of topographical features.

The Board's policy is that a topographic feature cannot be named after an individual until after that individual has been deceased for at least 15 years. Public comment on the proposal must be solicited, and must meet the approval of the public land management agency or the private land owner on which the topographic feature is located.

In early 1998, after retiring from the U.S.D.A. Forest Service in 1994, I decided to propose naming a peak located on the Big Hole Divide after the Harrison ranching family. The peak is on the western edge of the Grasshopper Valley, approximately 28 miles WNW of Dillon, Montana.

The feature would be named in honor of Marshall C. Harrison, who received a land patent in the Grasshopper Valley in 1896, and whose family has managed a livestock operation there ever since.

Comments on the proposal were solicited through official news releases by the Beaverhead-Deerlodge National Forest, and in newspaper articles in the Montana Standard and the Dillon Tribune. Twenty petitions were distributed throughout the local area.

There were 138 local residents who signed petitions in support of the proposal. Letters of support were received from Beaverhead County Sheriff Harold Forsman and State Senator Bill Tash. One letter of objection was received from a Butte resident who felt the peak should be named after a Native American.

Support was also expressed by the Beaverhead County Commissioners, the Montana Department of Natural Resources & Conservation, the U.S.D.A. Forest Service, and the Montana State Board on Geographic Names.

In December 1998, the proposal was submitted to the Beaverhead-Deerlodge National Forest.

The Forest Service then forwarded it to the Region One Forest Service office in Missoula, who then forwarded it to the National Office of the U.S.D.A. Forest Service in Washington D.C. Upon their approval, the Washington Office submitted the proposal to the United States Board On Geographic Names.

In 2001 the Harrison Peak name proposal was approved by the U.S.

Board On Geographic Names.

Later, Forest Soil Scientist Dan Svoboda suggested that I propose having a peak named after me because of my long-term tenure on the Beaverhead-Deerlodge National Forest. I informed Dan of the policy that a topographic feature cannot be named after an individual until after that individual has been deceased for at least 15 years. Dan offered that, if I would do the paper work, he would submit it 15 years after I died!

In July 4th, 2002, I accompanied Dr. Ron Loge and his family to Harrison Peak. While there, we installed a wooden sign with the name of the peak routed into it. I was proud to have been instrumental in the official naming of that peak.
