Montana Western to Hold 2nd Annual Job Expo

The University of Montana Western Career Services Office would like to invite all interested employers and UMW students to the 2024 Job Expo on Tuesday, October 15, from 10:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. in the Lewis & Clark Room located in Mathews Hall.

The Montana Western Job Expo provides a valuable platform for employers to connect with students who are seeking internships, employment, and future career opportunities. All UMW majors will be represented, giving recruiters the chance to engage with students across various academic disciplines. Employers are encouraged to bring branded merchandise or swag items to help promote their business or organization.

Students attending the Job Expo will have the chance to network with potential employers and explore career opportunities, including internships. It is recommended that students come prepared to speak with recruiters by preparing an elevator pitch and having a current resume on hand.

Registration Details

Employers: To register for the event, complete the online registration form. The cost is $150 per table. Employers can opt to register for both the Job Expo and the Spring Career Fair for a combined cost of $250. A continental breakfast and lunch will be provided for two attendees per exhibiting employer, with additional team members welcome to enjoy the meals for $20 per person.

Returning employers will receive an email with instructions to register through Handshake, UMW's career services platform. New employers are encouraged to contact Kelly Coble for more information about Handshake and event registration.

Students: Registration is free for all UMW students. Students who attend the event will also receive 1,000 Paw Print points. To register, complete the online registration form.

The University of Montana Western thanks all new and returning employers for supporting our students and making this event a success.

For more information on the 2024 Job Expo, please contact Kelly Coble, Director of Career Services & Learning Center, at 406-683-7143 or kelly.coble@umwestern.edu.

LUCKY LURE

By "Swede" Troedsson

In the early 1970's I hiked into Polaris Lake to try my luck at fishing. (Polaris Lake is located in the East Pioneer Mountains, about four miles northeast of Polaris, Montana.

Lee James, who owned the sawmill in Argenta, Montana, was also fishing at the lake. He was not having any luck.

Using my favorite high mountain lake fishing lure, I caught my limit in about 30 minutes, much to Lee's chagrin.

As I was preparing to leave the lake, I walked over to Lee and gave Lee my lucky lure. I said to Lee, "Here, Lee, try this lure. It sure worked for me!"

I saw Lee about a week later, and inquired how the lure worked for him. He replied "I didn't catch a damn thing!"

FWP releases online tool to track grizzly bear mortality

Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks released a new online tool that provides the public with up-to-date information on known grizzly bear mortalities across the state.

The Grizzly Bear Mortality Dashboard displays mortality information, including the various factors that contribute to grizzly bear deaths in Montana, outside of Tribal lands. By increasing transparency and providing accessible information, FWP aims to educate communities and foster a better understanding of the circumstances that often lead to bear mortalities.

Grizzly bears in Montana are currently listed as threatened under the Endangered Species Act (ESA). However, Montana has petitioned to remove ESA protections from bears in the Northern Continental Divide Ecosystem (NCDE) and has supported Wyoming in petitioning to remove ESA protections from bears in the Greater Yellowstone Ecosystem (GYE).

Montana is also home to four grizzly bear recovery zones including the NCDE, GYE, the Bitterroot Ecosystem and the Cabinet-Yaak Ecosystem. Between Montana's portion of all four recovery zones and other areas where grizzly bears have established populations, FWP estimates that about 2,000 grizzly bears are in Montana, though a precise number is difficult to estimate.

In recent years Montana has established a framework of statutes, regulations, rules and a new management plan that give clarity on exactly how grizzly bears would be managed in the state when ESA protections are removed. FWP has also recently relocated two bears from the NCDE to the GYE, establishing genetic connectivity.

These actions have addressed concerns raised by previous court decisions on delisting grizzly bears and provided clarity on what grizzly bear management would look like under state management.

A key piece of Montana's management would be accurately estimating grizzly bear populations from year to year. One of the data points critical to this estimate is mortalities.

The Grizzly Bear Mortality Dashboard will update daily at 1 p.m. The dashboard will reset to the new year in January, but data from previous years will be available through FWP's Grizzly Bear Management webpage.

Candidates are supporting the trades

by Tom Purcell

There aren't many positives to come out of a very noisy 2024 election, but here's one: There's growing support to get young people into the trades.

According to MSN, the prior two election cycles included battles over proposals to make a four-year college education free, or at least more affordable, but this year the emphasis is on two-year colleges and the trades.

Now that's a great shift in thinking.

I've written about this subject many times over the years, as massive college debt has increasingly saddled young people with a huge monthly burden.

As Mike Rowe has long pointed out, high school counselors and parents have long pushed college degrees as the best alternative, but that trend began to shift a good 15 years ago.

One Washington Post article shared the stories of young people who, after receiving college diplomas, chose to get into the trades. One 29-year-old fellow in Washington, D.C. — he had a degree from Notre Dame — became an electrician rather than attend law school and suffer in paper-pusher hell.

Around 2010, the Post said that more 20-somethings were forgoing the white-collar world to become plumbers, electricians, mechanics and carpenters — a trend that will benefit us all if it continues and it should.

Look, this country was designed by people who worked with their hands. Ben Franklin started off as a printer's apprentice, a messy job. His trade helped him master communication, business management, politics, human nature.

George Washington, a farmer, toiled in his gardens to crossbreed the perfect plant. He was forever trying new ways to cultivate and harvest his crops.

Many of our Founders were farmers. They were humbled by the unforgiving realities of nature.

Hands-on labor made them sensible and innovative. Their good sense is evident in the practicality of the U.S. Constitution.

We have lost touch with such common sense.

The shift happened over many years, of course. Industrialization moved Americans to the cities and, gradually, to paper-pushing jobs in the service-industry.

Now we're a country of white-collar snobs with an underdeveloped understanding of how things work.

Consider this important white-collar maxim: "If you can't dazzle them with brilliance, baffle them with BS."

I've seen highly skilled BS-ers establish long white-collar careers without producing anything of any value.

Blue-collar workers cannot BS their way through their work.

An electrician mixes up the hot wire and ground wire only once.

A carpenter is kept honest by his level — he measures twice, cuts once.

A plumber's skill is evident when the water valve is opened and the pipes don't leak.

Blue collar workers have no choice but to develop horse sense — to develop efficient ways to solve real problems.

This common-sense, problem-solving wisdom eventually seeps into our public discourse and eventually demands that real people with real ideas are the people we elect to represent us.

I hope more college-educated folks leave the white-collar world to become skilled laborers.

I hope we stop glamorizing careers on Wall Street, the legal profession and many other paper-pushing careers.

I hope more people use their hands to produce something of value every day — and use their practical, decision-making skills to resolve other challenges we face.

That's the only way to build a great republic — or, to paraphrase Ben Franklin, keep one.

TOWN PUMP MATCH FOR FOOD PANTRY

It is that time of year again, and the Town Pump has graciously offered to provide a match up to $20,000.
As we're sure you know, the cost of food keeps climbing and we are helping more families.

We would truly appreciate you helping us reach our goal of $20,000 in cash donations. This is what we can bring in from September 1 – November 30, 2024. If we reach the $20,000, they will match that amount. We use these funds to purchase milk, produce, eggs, cheese, and meat. We are a non-profit 501(c)3 business. We will send out receipts for tax purposes in January 2025.Please make checks out to Beaverhead Community Food Pantry, or BHC Food Pantry, and send to P.O. Box 1356, Dillon, MT, 59725.

Thank you, The Beaverhead Community Food Pantry
