Reminder: Fishing closures during spawning begin for sections of Big Hole, Ruby and Beaverhead rivers

Regulations aim to reduce angling impacts on low fish numbers

Annual fishing closures began Oct. 1 for sections of the Big Hole, Ruby and Beaverhead rivers to protect trout during spawning seasons.

The Montana Fish and Wildlife Commission adopted new regulations last year in response to struggling fish populations in the three rivers. These restrictions limit fall and spring angling during trout spawning season in some stretches of the rivers.

Some flow-related fishing closures remain in effect for the rest of the Big Hole River. Thus the entire Big Hole River is closed to fishing at this time. Flow-related closures will be in effect until flows improve, or until Nov. 1.

Trout abundances in several areas of the three rivers have steadily declined since 2011 and are at or near historical lows. Meanwhile, fishing pressure in these areas has increased. Current fishing regulations aim to be responsive to fish populations in accordance with Montana's statewide fisheries management plan.

Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks is conducting new research with Montana State University to better understand and manage trout mortality, recruitment and health.

Bicentennial, Incorporated Grants Updated Date

Bicentennial, Incorporated is now accepting grant applications from non-profits in Beaverhead County and the Ruby Valley; the deadline is November 1. Applications will be available by contacting board member Fred Morganthaler at fmorganthaler@qwestoffice.net.

There are two categories of grants. Category 1 is for grant requests up to $3000. The second category is for grants above $3000. Category 1 has a simplified application; the application for grants ranging from $3000 and above is more extensive.

Bicentennial, Incorporated was established following the sale of the Bicentennial Apartments, and since then has awarded grants to non-profits which meet the vision of the mission statement. The mission statement of Bicentennial, Incorporated is to provide support for services that will enhance and improve the lives of senior citizens in Beaverhead County and Ruby Valley in Madison County.

The Bicentennial Apartments were built in 1976 to provide safe, affordable housing for senior citizens, and following the completion of the building, the board began donating, in lieu of taxes, to various entities which provided services for the Bicentennial residents, as well as other seniors in the area. The spirit of giving back in order to help senior citizens maintain a quality lifestyle has been carried forward by the board of Bicentennial, Incorporated. Current board members include Fred Morganthaler, Marlene Stonelake, Robyn Walker, George Warner, Jim McIsaac, Kelly Taylor, Shirley Midlestadt, and Harriet Chambers. Mary Sporich

For the past two years the board has sponsored a dinner, which is free to all senior citizens in Beaverhead County and the Ruby Valley. The dinner will be on December 6 this year. The grant recipients will be announced at that time.
