Donn James Ross

Donn James Ross of Dillon, Montana died a hard-fought battle with cancer in the Bozeman Hospital, surrounded by his family at his side on October 5, 2024. He was 84 years old.

Donn was born July 22, 1940, to James A. and Ardis O. Ross.

On October 15, 1961, Donn married the love of his life, Carolyn Jean Baier. Donn worked as a banker from 1960-2006. After his retirement from banking Donn enjoyed his time working the Forest Service. During his career they lived in Greeley, Colorado, Cheyenne, Wyoming, Newcastle, Wyoming, Livingston, Montana, Troy, Montana, and after his retirement they settled in Dillon, Montana. Donn was an avid outdoor enthusiast. His hobbies and interests included fishing, fly-tying, cross-country skiing, geocaching, gardening, hiking, camping, family bowling at Christmas, buggy riding, wine tasting, and anything to do with his grandchildren.

Donn loved and enjoyed giving back to every community in which he lived. He was passionate with his volunteer work, which included a myriad of volunteer work in a plethora of church activities. He was a member of the Kiwanis Club, front desk volunteer for Barrett Hospital, and gave generously to the Shriners. However, most importantly to Donn was his love of enjoying his family for life.

Donn is survived by his daughter Treva (Richard}, Son, Scott, and his daughter Terri (Gary). His grandchildren Aubrey (Jesse), Aundrea (Beau), Tanner (Brynley}, Michael (Madalen}. Great grandchildren Dillion, Ellis, Clayton, Zoe, Brynleigh, and of course his faithful companion springer Chayrae.

Donn is preceded in death by the love of his life, Carolyn Ross, his parents, Jim and Ardis Ross, and sister, Jeannie Lawrence.

A memorial service is scheduled for Saturday, October 19, 2024@ 1:00 pm at the 1st Presbyterian Church in Dillon, Montana. Please join the family for a reception in celebration of Donn's life, at the 1st Presbyterian church, immediately preceding the memorial service.

In lieu of flowers and/or condolences the family would prefer all memorial donations be sent in Donn's name to the Southwest Montana Family YMCA at 75 Swensen Way, Dillon, Montana.

The family would like to personally thank the 1st Presbyterian Church of Dillon and all friends who have reached out to Donn and his family during the most difficult time.

To offer condolences please visit www.franzen-davis.com.

Beavers Take A Homecoming Win Over The Blue Devils

Jeremy Crawford, Southwestern Montana News

The Dillon Beavers returned to Vigilante Field Friday night, determined to celebrate Homecoming with a decisive victory against the Corvallis Blue Devils. The Beavers delivered on their promise, securing a commanding win with a final score of 42-6.

With the hometown crowd cheering them on, the Beavers wasted no time establishing their dominance on the field. They struck early, ending the first quarter with an impressive 21-0 lead. The offensive onslaught continued, as the Beavers piled on more points, closing the second quarter with a staggering 42-0 score.

The halftime festivities added to the excitement, as the Beavers crowned their Homecoming King and Queen. Congratulations to sophomore class representatives Marcus Lagunas and Kylie Konen for earning the titles, adding a celebratory touch to the evening's events.

As the second half unfolded, the Beavers began to mix in their second-string players, giving them valuable game experience while maintaining control of the contest. The game concluded with the Dillon Beavers triumphing 42-6 over the Blue Devils.

Looking ahead, the Beavers will take to the road next Friday for a matchup against the Hamilton Broncos, seeking to continue their winning momentum.

The Juniper and Me

Bryce Angell

I gazed down at the fence line, prob'ly near a quarter mile. One lodgepole post lay on the ground. It'd been there for a while.

Right off I noticed one lone fencepost standing straight and tall. I knew it was the juniper I'd planted late one fall.

My father taught me how to lay out fence and plant a post. He said a juniper fence post would outlast more than most.

The other posts were rotted through, no use that I could see. I soon recalled the nightmare of the juniper and me.

I drove out to the desert looking for a dried up tree. Then spotted one lone juniper. Its limbs were dead debris.

I brought my father's new chainsaw, a Homelite XL-12. He had purchased it this morning. Pulled it off the Homelite shelf.

The chainsaw started with one pull. But a nagging in my gut kept telling me the juniper is a tougher tree to cut.

Sparks were flying past my ears. I had dulled a brand-new chain. So, I sharpened up the chain and sawed. Then sharpened once again.

The juniper smelled pungent, maybe like a billy's beard. Or even natural pepper spray like your senses had been seared.

I finally cut clean through the stump. For the third time dulled my saw. You might just say I had a juniper stuck in my craw!

I weren't about to sharpen so I tossed the chain away. And muttered how I hated junipers in every way.

I threw the fence post in the truck and cussed, "I've had enough." And never, to this day, have I cut wood so juniper tough.

That day I dug and planted my juniper fence post. I wondered, would it stand the test of my good father's boast?

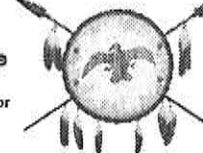

Seeing my old juniper, after fifty years or so, sure proved its worth, of all the posts, I'd planted long ago.

I wonder if my Grandkids would help me cut and plant a post. Their name scratched in the juniper would be something they could boast.

But by the time we cut the juniper and sharpened all around. They'd prob'ly be so mad at me they'd plant me in the ground.

So, should I plant another fence post from the juniper tree? I recollect that one's enough of the juniper and me.

Thank you!

I want to publicly thank Gina Miller for her help and kindness in my time of need. When my 90-year-old mother Pauline Washik passed away on October 4th Gina and I were sitting on the bed with her. I cannot thank Gina, Julie and Jamie enough, all 3 were wonderful in the time they spent with Mom and me. God bless you. I know I am not strong enough physically and emotionally to do your job. God has a special place in Heaven for people in your line of work. Thank you again and I pray that you continue to help people in time of need. We all need an angel at times and you were mine for the short time I knew you. God bless.

Supports Susie Hedalen for Montana Superintendent of Public Instruction.

Letter to the Editor;

Recently I had the opportunity to meet and question Susie Hedalen on some education Issues of concern in Montana. These included accreditation and teaching on the Native American Reservation Schools. We talked about the use of bilingual tribal persons to assist the children to learn English. This was a big concern for her. I found her to be knowledgeable in all areas. She has experience in teaching, as a principal and administrator in class C and AA schools across the state. She was Deputy Superintendent for the Montana Office of Public Instruction and Vice Chair of the Montana Board of Public Education.

Susie is endorsed by Gov. Greg Gianforte and Attorney General Austin Knudsen.

I urge you to vote for Susie Hedalen for Superintendent of Public Instruction.

Bulldog Cross Country Competes at Frontier Conference Preview Meet

The Montana Western cross country teams continued their 2024 season on Friday afternoon with the Frontier Conference Preview Meet. The race gave the Bulldogs a preview of the Frontier Conference Championships to come in a few weeks.

"Being in the middle of our season, this race was a good opportunity for our team to challenge themselves a little more during the race, whether it was going out a little faster or being able to push harder during the middle of the race," Head Coach Taylor Grove said. "I think all of our athletes did well today. We had our two top men Harrison and Carlin run big season bests. Our women ran their first 6k of the season and most of them were able to run right around their 5k season best and hold on for another kilometer. Overall, it was a good race for this point in the season."

Results: The women's race saw the Bulldogs led by sophomore Olivia Steadman, running a race time of 24:22.6 and placing in 27th. Freshman Destiny Vogl followed behind, finishing in 43rd with a time of 25:40.5, with freshman Ruby Smith close behind in 46th finishing with a time of 25:47.2. Freshmen Olivia Canney and sophomore Justene Santi rounded out the scoring for the Bulldogs, with times of 26:03.8 and 26:26.0. Freshman Kylee Wyatt competed in her first race and finished with a time of 31:54.5.

Sophomore Harrison Silverio led the way for the Bulldogs with a 27:14.4 and a 41st place finish. Junior Carlin Onstad was the second fastest Bulldog runner on the day, placing 64th in a 28:35.1 time. Freshman Kreg Butler and Noah Rovente were the third and fourth Bulldogs to cross the line. Butler ran a time of 29:37.4 and finished in 71st with Rovente running a 30:32.2 to finish in 79th. Sophomore Kaden Hennessey ran a 33:00.5 to close out the scoring for UMW.

Bridger Wheeler also competed in the race, finishing with a time of 32:28.7.

Up Next: Western will hit the road for their next race at the LC State Invitational on Oct. 19 in Lewiston, Idaho.

OpEd "Empowering Recovery: The Vital Role of Physical Therapy in Cancer Care"

By: Stacy Regan PT, DPT, Barrett Hospital & HealthCare

Cancer diagnosis and treatment are journeys fraught with challenges that touch nearly every aspect of a patient's life. From the moment the word "cancer" enters the conversation, individuals find themselves navigating a complex landscape of medical decisions, emotional turmoil, and physical strain. While the focus often zeroes in on the pivotal roles of chemotherapy, radiation, and surgery, one crucial ally in the battle for wellness and quality of life often remains overshadowed: physical therapy.

Physical therapy (PT) serves as a beacon of hope for cancer patients, offering not just rehabilitation but a pathway to reclaiming a sense of normalcy and strength. It is a misconception that PT primarily addresses injuries or post-operative recovery unrelated to cancer. Recent advancements and clinical experiences have highlighted PT's profound benefits in the comprehensive cancer care paradigm.

Physical therapy provides significant benefits tailored to each phase of cancer treatment. In the pre-treatment stage, PT helps in conditioning patients by enhancing their physical fitness and resilience. This preparation can make a notable difference in how individuals endure the rigors of surgery or the debilitating effects of chemotherapy.

During active treatment, the role of PT becomes even more crucial. Cancer therapies can result in a suite of side effects, such as fatigue, neuropathy, and muscle atrophy, all of which may severely impact a patient's daily life. Physical therapists devise personalized exercise regimens that combat these effects. These tailored programs help maintain mobility, improve circulation, and reduce fatigue, thereby enhancing the overall effectiveness of cancer treatments and improving patients' mental health by fostering a sense of autonomy and control.

In post-treatment recovery, physical therapy shifts to focus on overcoming sedentary habits developed during treatment and managing chronic issues that might have arisen. Lymphedema, a common side effect of certain cancer treatments, involving painful swelling, can often be alleviated through specialized PT interventions. Pelvic floor therapy can be helpful for pain and sexual functioning after treatment for prostate cancer.

Moreover, physical therapy shines in its holistic approach to healing—a rarity in modern medicine that cancer patients deeply appreciate. The therapeutic interactions provide emotional support, addressing psychosocial dimensions by fostering patient-therapist relationships that contribute significantly to recovery. Such support is pivotal, especially when battling a disease that often makes individuals feel isolated from their "normal" lives.

In conclusion, physical therapy should be an integral component of cancer care, not just an optional adjunct. As research continues to underscore its benefits, healthcare providers must proactively incorporate PT into cancer treatment plans. It empowers patients, restores dignity, and redefines recovery by viewing them not merely as survivors but as individuals capable of thriving beyond their diagnosis.

4.1 Magnitude Earthquake Shakes Dillon, MT Residents

Jeremy Crawford, Southwestern Montana News

Residents of Dillon experienced the waves and rumblings of a 4.1 magnitude earthquake early Monday morning. The quake, which struck at 1 a.m., was located eight miles east of Dillon, as reported by the U.S. Geological Survey (USGS).

Local residents felt the tremors, prompting many to take note of the unusual disturbance. Those who experienced the earthquake are encouraged to report their observations to the USGS through their online reporting system.

Fortunately, no damage has been reported, and there have been no significant aftershocks following the initial quake. Authorities continue to monitor the situation, reminding residents to stay prepared and aware of potential seismic activity in the area.

For further updates and to share your experience, visit the U.S. Geological Survey website.
