UMW Hosts Community Water Conversations Panel with Support from Trout Unlimited

The University of Montana Western and Trout Unlimited are excited to host the 3rd annual Community Water Conversations, "What's Happening on the Ground: Restoration Efforts and Landscape Health," on Tuesday, December 3, 2024, from 4:00 to 6:00 p.m. in UMW's STC Great Room.

This free event, open to the public, will feature a panel discussion and Q&A session. It's an opportunity to hear from a group of experts sharing insights on local water issues. This year's panelists include:

Dusty Crowe – Assistant Field Manager, Dillon BLM Office
Tana Lynch – Associate Director, Big Hole Watershed Committee
Heidi Anderson – Southwest Montana Riparian Project Manager, The Nature Conservancy
Chris Edgington – Jefferson Watershed Project Manager, Trout Unlimited
Katelin Killoy – Riparian Ecologist, Arctic Grayling CCAA Programs, Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks (MT FWP)
Kaitlin Boren – Hydrologist, Montana Department of Natural Resources and Conservation (DNRC)

"Year 1 focused on local water resources and challenges from changing snowfall and precipitation. In Year 2, we addressed water rights and exempt wells in response to community interest. For Year 3, we're exploring how organizations and agencies work with landowners on restoration efforts to improve our local water resources," explained Dr. Arica Crootof, UMW Associate Professor of Environmental Sustainability.

Dr. Crootof's students are involved in designing and hosting the event. "We need spaces where people can come together and learn together. This happens in the classroom, but we need opportunities beyond the classroom too—and what better topic to bring us together than water," she said.

Montana Western's Community Water Conversations aim to create a space for students, practitioners, and community members to learn about the complexity of water issues and recognize the role each of us plays in shaping local water resources. We hope you can join us!

Montana Western would like to thank Montana Trout Unlimited and each of the panelists for making this event possible.

Attendees are encouraged to bring questions and ideas for this event and future community conversations. For more information, please contact Dr. Arica Crootof at arica.crootof@umwestern.edu.

THE ANDRUS HOTEL GRAND OPENING OF THE GATHERING PLACE

"Meet me at The Andrus," is once again an option for friends everywhere. The Andrus Hotel lobby has been restored to its original grandeur, with modern twists. Every turn reveals a pop of history: with a wall wrap of the 1917 coffee shoppe, brass door knobs to hang up coats, a vintage cash register, and more. A splash of Art Deco with Sputnik chandeliers and a neon sign "Where Friends Gather," illuminates the room. The remodel boasts a modern catering kitchen with a large granite service bar.

The highlight of the space is the 107 year old stained glass ceiling windows. These have been installed in their original atrium skylight location. Local artists and craftsmen have refurnished and backlit the original Italian stained glass. It is worth the trip just to see this work of art.

The Andrus Hotel was renovated and opened in 2020. It has received awards for being the best luxury hotel in Montana, best rural hotel in Montana, best historic hotel in Montana, best new historical hotel in America and other accolades. Renovating and updating the original Andrus lobby into a grand, yet comfortable, meeting space is the latest piece of a 10 year renovation.

Dr. John Micha, Andrus Hotel owner, designers, artists and craftsmen will be in attendance to meet and greet guests from 4 pm to 8 pm on Wednesday, November 20, 2024 in the original lobby at the Andrus Hotel. Wine, beer, soft drinks and hors d'oeuvres will be served for this unique celebration. A ribbon cutting will be at 5:30 pm as well as Door Prizes throughout the event.

This unique historical space, located at 45 E. Glendale St, is available for rent for a wide variety of events. It has a capacity for 90. Schedule your wedding, organization's meeting, Christmas parties, or other events at The Andrus Hotel (406- 925-5024), Dillon, Montana.

FOOD PANTRY THANKSGIVING DISTRIBUTION

Attorney General Knudsen leads 28-state effort against overreaching firearms classification

Montana Attorney General Austin Knudsen led a coalition of 28 states in filing an amicus brief against the Biden-Harris administration's attempt to thwart the Second Amendment by classifying forced reset triggers (FRT) as machine guns.

The brief, filed in the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in support of the National Association for Gun Rights, asks the court to affirm the lower court's decision and reject the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives (ATF) overreaching attempt to classify FRTs as machine guns under the Gun Control Act of 1968 (GCA). The attorneys general argue that the classification stretches the definition of "machinegun" too far under the GCA as FRTs don't fire "more than one shot…by a single function of the trigger."

"Time and again, ATF has ventured off into the regulatory wilderness, abandoning the only statutes that give it life in the first instance. Even though many of these statutes have remained essentially static for decades, ATF's role in executing them grows larger by the day because it must create 'new definitions' that are 'general enough to account for changes' in society," Attorney General Knudsen wrote in the brief.

The ATF has a history of overstepping its statutory authority. In three recent cases, the court has halted the ATF's "misadventures." For example, for years the ATF had no qualms with stabilizing braces but then changed course, proposing a rule that would have turned millions of gun owners into felons if they failed to register stabilizing braces they lawfully own with the federal government and pay a tax. Attorney General Knudsen sued the Biden-Harris administration over the rule, and it was found unlawful by two courts.

The ATF also went too far in its attempt to "squeeze 'weapons parts kits' into the GCA's definition of 'firearm'" and bump stock final rule which would have transformed hundreds of thousands of law-abiding gun owners into criminals.

Additionally, the Constitution gives Congress the power to change firearms policy – not the ATF or the courts.

"Regulating FRTs, like sports gambling and many other controversial subjects, requires important policy choices reserved for Congress, not courts or agencies," Attorney General Knudsen wrote.

Commission passes regulations aimed at bull trout protection

The Montana Fish and Wildlife Commission approved additional protections for bull trout in Hungry Horse Reservoir and the South Fork of the Flathead River in northwest Montana.

The commission approved four amendments to Montana's fishing regulations at the Nov. 12 meeting in Helena. Vice Chairman Patrick Tabor carried the amendments with support from Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks.

The regulation changes come as FWP is seeing record low numbers of bull trout spawning nests, known as redds, in many areas in the South Fork of Flathead River watershed, including in Big Salmon Creek and other tributaries. Bull trout were listed as "threatened" under the Endangered Species Act in 1998. Historically one of the strongholds for bull trout in Montana, the South Fork of the Flathead River is the only river in the state that allows the intentional fishing for bull trout through a limited season.

Angler surveys show that 44 percent of bull trout caught in the South Fork of the Flathead River are caught in the lowest portion of the river. Migrating bull trout in this lower portion of the drainage are vulnerable and by shortening the season, fish would be able to migrate to their natal streams without being targeted by anglers. Additionally, bull trout are known to congregate near the mouths of key spawning tributaries like Little Salmon Creek and Gordon Creek. These confluence areas have well-defined holes and are known areas to target concentrations of staging bull trout. Reducing the amount of angler-induced handling stress may help stabilize the downward trend in adult bull trout numbers.

Beaverhead S&R News

Submitted by: Mel Rice, Public Relations.

On November 13th the Beaverhead Search and Rescue was paged out to aide two 70 year old gentlemen who were stuck in a 2 foot snow drift and had no provisions with them. The Sheriff's department received an emergency call from a SPOT locator in the Gallagher Mountain area Southeast of Dillon and notified SAR at 2:50 PM. The two gentlemen from Polson were driving a road when the vehicle slid off in to a snow bank and they could not get themselves out. The Spot notification provided the unit with the exact location of the two men. Three hasty teams were deployed to the rescue area at 3:30.

One of the hasty teams arrived on scene at 4:57. A second hasty team arrived shortly after. A quick assessment of the two gentlemen determined them to be in good health. They were loaded into one of the rescue team's vehicles and transported off the mountain back to town. All three hasty teams were headed back to town at 5:20 and the rescue was complete with all members back in town and everything put away at 6:40 PM.

Search and Rescue members participating on the IC team were Trent Cottom, Tara Remely, Brian Vinson, and Brad Wagner. Hasty teams were made of S&R members Jack Bazemore, Mark Smith, Steve Mock, Jason Erickson, Charles Wharton, Josh Yeadon, Graden Greenslade, and Lance Hopman. Other members showing up for support were Mel Rice, Kolby Malesich, Weston Helle, and Russ Sigman. Again, your Beaverhead Search and Rescue wants to remind everyone to be prepared for all types of weather conditions and situations you may find yourself in. Whether it be lost, injured, or just stuck in a snow bank, be ready to spend some time out there by yourself. It takes time to get help out there to you. "In the Business of Saving Lives", your Beaverhead SAR.
