Alexis Wood Layland

Feb. 20, 1962 ~ Oct. 23, 2024

My mother lived a life of adversity. Anytime Somebody told her no, she couldn't do it, she would do her damndest to achieve it every time. Or if they said you're a girl, she would work twice as hard as a man. She taught us how to survive. She taught us which trees and plants gave medicine. Which one's gave nutrition. She taught us how to dry and process animals. She taught us how to cook a variety of cuisine from five or six different nations. She ended up being my best friend. I leaned on her and my father for most of my life. My 2 sisters and I were extremely fortunate to have such dedicated parents. When the educational institution failed us, our parents home schooled us. They taught us that if you are able to help people who can't help themselves, then you are obligated to. If I have the knowledge that somebody else needs, then you are also obligated to share it. Both of my parents grew up as children not regarded in the highest esteem by their society, this didn't make them back down. In fact, it made them learn how to fight in new ways. Unfortunately for my parents, they raised 3 girls that have the same mentality. They have this constant fight profile. So arguments became a daily thing in our household, it wasn't always just to prove our point, sometimes it was just because we were bored.

My parents told us each at least once that they were very proud of us. They didn't say it very often. They didn't need to say it very often. Because they had raised us to be self reliant, to not need to be praised unless it was something extremely worthwhile. And though, at times, I think, that we were used as chess pieces against one another and against the other parent. My parents seemed very wholeheartedly devoted to their children, both of them were very hard working and workaholics. That's not to say they didn't enjoy life and what it had to offer more times than I can count. We were in the car just going for a drive, possibly for a picnic, not usually camping.

But every outing was a family outing. Everyone was included and it wasn't until much later, in our young adult lives that we were even given the option to say we didn't want to go. So we will miss both of our parents. For the rest of our lives, we'll no longer have someone that we can call at 2 o'clock in the morning, that can give us mechanical advice. No longer can we call mom to help us stitch ourselves up. No longer help us deal with our life problems. Be soundboards for everything else that we have going on. Be those bright and shining faces to remind us that we're burning daylight. I missed the days when dad used to go over to chucks to play cribbage. I miss going to work with my mom at the nursing home. I miss going to work with my dad at the junkyard. I miss the people who helped me. That would be there when we messed up and ask us what we learned, and help make it easier to get over it.

But the one thing that they always told us for as long as I can even remember death is certain for all of us. It is nothing to be sad over. It's nothing to mourn. It's the next chapter in their existence and we should be excited that they finally get to take that journey! So farewell great giants of my youth and Pillars of my adulthood!

Glass Program to Host Artists in Residence Karen Willenbrink-Johnsen and Jasen Johnsen

The University of Montana Western is excited to welcome acclaimed glass artists Karen Willenbrink-Johnsen and Jasen Johnsen as artists in residence from November 19-23. Known for her captivating, nature-inspired sculptures and her appearance on the Netflix series "Blown Away", Willenbrink-Johnsen, along with her husband Jasen, will share their expertise and creative process with students and the community. Their residency will culminate in a free public presentation and live demonstration on Saturday, November 23 starting at 3:30 p.m. in UMW's Emerick Art Studio.

Willenbrink-Johnsen brings a wealth of experience in glass artistry, honed over years of working in prestigious studios, including the Pilchuck Glass School, a world-famous center for glass art in Washington State. Recently, she showcased her talent as a contestant on the fourth season of "Blown Away", the popular Netflix glassblowing competition series. Her work often features intricate representations of flora and fauna, showcasing her deep appreciation for the natural world and her ability to bring it to life in glass. As a master of her craft, she is celebrated not only for her technical skills but also for pushing the boundaries of traditional glass art. Her creations are featured in galleries and private collections worldwide, and she is passionate about sharing her craft with students and emerging artists.

Joining her for the residency is her husband, Jasen Johnsen, an accomplished glass artist and master toolmaker. Known for creating one-of-a-kind, handcrafted carbon-steel and stainless-steel tools, Jasen's designs are uniquely refined by his experience using them in his own glassblowing and hot sculpting work. Together, they will work closely with UMW students, guiding them in exploring new techniques and approaches to glass sculpture. This residency offers students a unique opportunity to learn directly from two experts in the field, gaining insights into the creative and technical aspects of glass art.

The week-long residency will conclude with a free public presentation on Saturday, November 23, held in UMW's Emerick Art Studio. The presentation will begin at 3:30 p.m., followed by a live demonstration at 5:00 p.m., where attendees can witness the

Veteran's Corner Update #283

By Mike Lawson

Veteran News Updates:

- This year's Veteran's Day Ceremony in Butte was at the Civic Center and had one of the best attendances in the last 10 years. We did flag ceremonies at the SW MT Veteran's Home as well as two other assisted living homes. It was a great day and some restaurants gave free meals to veterans with other merchants giving discounts for purchases. It's a positive recognition for all veterans.

- My Assistant Toys For Tots Coordinator Shirlee Boitnott and myself, made a road trip to Dillon and Twin Bridges putting out toy donation boxes to those businesses who are kind enough to be drop off places. It will really get busier after Thanksgiving but here in Butte we have already received quit a few toys. People have a heart for underprivileged kids and these donations are appreciated. We traveled over 170 miles and had three beautiful mountain ranges that we traveled between. The Big Hole, Beaverhead and Jefferson rivers were in our sights on this trip also. What a privilege to live in this part of the world.

- Up north on the Blackfoot Indian Reservation the VA has reopened the medical clinic that was closed during the Covid epidemic. This is good news for our veterans in that part of our Montana's northwestern border area with Canada.

- On the national level, the VA is taking steps to expand benefits for Veterans who served at the Karshi-Khanabad (K2) base in Uzbekistan after September 11, 2001; as well as their survivors. For most of us we don't remember or give much thought to this place. This was during Operation "Enduring Freedom" and lasted less than a decade with about 1,300 US military personal there at any one time. This was made up of about 800 Airmen and mostly Army personal with a small number of Marines. If any one of you or your relatives were there, please get in contact with the VA for more information and help.

- Suicide deaths among Veterans continue to increase. The method used is mostly overdoses or firearms. The VA is working hard to reverse this trend. As I have encouraged in the past: service members, veterans or family members in need of emergency counseling call 988 and select option 1. For texting enter 838255. Suicide can never be taken for granted.

I'll wind this up. Winter, with it's cooler temps and snow, is quickly descending upon us. Dress for it and drive at a safe, slower speed.

Vehicle vs. Train Incident Near Dell: Minor Injuries Reported

Jeremy Crawford, Southwestern Montana News

On November 20, 2024, at 3:38 A.M., Lima fire and ambulance services were dispatched to the scene of a vehicle versus train collision just south of Dell. Upon arrival, deputies discovered a 46-year-old man from Hamilton seated in the front of the vehicle with minor injuries.

Initial investigations revealed that the driver had been parked on the tracks and was reportedly "sleeping" when the incident occurred. The individual was subsequently transported to Barrett Hospital for evaluation.

The Montana Highway Patrol is currently investigating the circumstances surrounding the crash. Authorities have indicated that alcohol was a contributing factor in the incident. Further details are expected as the investigation continues.

According to court record, he was not found innocent or guilty for the rapes. He received a conditional Deferred Prosecuting Agreement, in part due to the complexity of trying rape in marriage. For his abusive handling of a minor, he received one year suspended prison sentence. The important thing is, it's stopped, and the treatment is on record. I recommend the film, 'It Ends with Us' for family of survivors of domestic violence. Thank you to those in the justice system who worked tirelessly to procure justice. I am neither alone nor special, in that I should receive perfect justice when so many have not, and God's timing is not our own.

WORKWEAR

Is Your Work Puff Tough Enough?

Ever wish you could work in a puff jacket without it snagging and ripping? Come on down to our Patagonia Workwear outpost in Dillon and try on our Steel Forge Puff Jacket and Windbreaker. They're built from a tough, high-tear strength blend of 100% recycled nylon and polyester ripstop that blocks wind and repels moisture. The jacket is packed with 100% recycled polyester insulation and lined with 100% recycled polyester taffeta that glides over layers.

Men's Steel Forge Puff Jacket - $249. Available in S-3XL.
