Bureau of Land Management to Conduct Slash
Pile Burns in Beaverhead and Madison Counties

The Bureau of Land Management's (BLM) Dillon Field Office (DFO) will be conducting controlled burns of slash piles starting Nov. 21, 2024 through March 2025 in Beaverhead and Madison Counties, specifically near Grant, Wisdom, and Virginia City, Montana.

The designated areas for burning include:

- Schwartz Creek area near Grant
- Granite Creek drainage areas near Virginia City
- Twin Lakes area near Wisdom

These slash piles will be burned when the ground is snow-covered or when surrounding fuels are sufficiently wet to minimize the potential for unwanted fire spread. The BLM will only proceed with burning when weather conditions and forecasts indicate adequate smoke dispersion.

The timing of these prescribed burns is contingent upon favorable weather and fuel conditions. The burns will be managed by fire managers from the BLM to ensure safety and effectiveness.

btp59725@gmail.com • (406) 683-9844It's normal to be thankful for these things, isn't it?

Tyrades! by Danny Tyree

I would love to revolutionize your Thanksgiving Day speeches, but I must admit that the blessings I feel gratitude for are embarrassingly mundane.

I mean, I am thankful for weekends, babies, walks in the rain, comfy sofas, random acts of kindness, the fact that I pay so little attention at work, I am permanently exempted from having to sign a non-disclosure agreement...

I am thankful that the descendants of Abraham have been blessed to be as numerous as the stars in the sky and the grains of sand on the seashore, although they do fall short of the number of artificial ingredients in a box of breakfast cereal.

I am thankful that some states' vote-counting pace provides a perfect strategy for dieters. ("Whoa! It turns out that combo meal I ate last Tuesday had 2,000 calories! I'll have to take that into account the Thursday after next, when I find out how many calories this here chocolate fountain packs!")

I am thankful that my taste buds can accommodate sour grapes. That makes it easier when my smartphone camera announces, "Storage full!" just as I'm about to snap some once-in-a-lifetime photograph. ("Ah, who needs a photo of Bigfoot hiding a lost John Lennon recording in Amelia Earhart's plane, anyway?")

I am thankful that - if there's any justice in the world - all those clothing designers who refuse to standardize sizes and cuts will someday find themselves not quite fitting into their caskets or urns.

I am thankful that I can still manage to fake detecting a difference between 500 permutations of (faintly) scented candles. ("Ah, yes - the Buttcheeks & Boysenberry! I shall savor the experience until my dying day! Perhaps you would enjoy a little something I call Eau de Exertion of Just Turning On The %$#@ Lamp. Wait, there's more! I'm also marketing a new game called Just What Foul Odor Is Debbie Trying To Mask, Anyway?")

I am thankful that if you smile, the world smiles with you - although not necessarily at the same time and not without sneezing, half-closed eyes and devil horns.

I am thankful that I may someday be as famous as Robert Oppenheimer, since my kitchen junk drawer is finally approaching critical mass.

I am thankful that folks tolerate my inability to remember names; but let's be honest: most people don't have names that are that memorable to start with. You can ask (let me consult my list here) my mechanic Brad Pitt, my accountant Babe Ruth and my neighbor John Jacob Jingleheimer Schmidt.

I am thankful that there has been a pause in cases of zealots trying to "cram their ideas down your throat." Of course, the tentative plan to infect you with their opinions via a patch is alarming in its own right. ("No, wait. Better yet: you can now scan this QR Code to have all your beliefs ridiculed to the core!")

I am thankful to find teachable moments in life, although some days I'm less inclined to impart my years of wisdom than to announce, "Hey, go raid your grandparents' closet and do a Seventies dress-up day!"

Don't take things for granted this Thanksgiving. Show a little reverence.

In the words of the patriarch Isaac, "Hey, Dad, the next time you want to try a burnt offering, might I suggest a box of Fruity Pebbles, instead?"

Attorney General Knudsen announces retirement of DCI chief

Attorney General Austin Knudsen announced today the retirement of Division of Criminal Investigation (DCI) Administrator Bryan Lockerby, effective December 13. Lockerby has served Montanans in the position for 12 years and will retire after a 43-year career in law enforcement.

"It has been a pleasure working with Bryan over the last four years. He has been an integral part of my administration's commitment to getting drugs off the streets, stopping human trafficking, and finding and holding criminals accountable," Attorney General Knudsen said. "He has had a long and distinguished career in law enforcement, and I wish him the best in his well-deserved retirement."

"I am grateful to Attorney General Knudsen for his leadership, advocacy, and support of the DCI mission. It has been an honor to serve Montanans over the last 43 years," DCI Administrator Lockerby said. "I am thankful for my family who stood by me through every challenge, and proud to leave behind a team that embodies our values and commitment to supporting public safety."

Attorney General Knudsen will appoint an administrator or interim administrator to lead the Division by December 13.

Lockerby began his career as a patrol officer with the Great Falls Police Department in 1982. Over his 31 years with GFPD, he rose through the ranks serving as a general case detective, sergeant, lieutenant, and eventually captain of investigations. During his time at GFPD, he conducted undercover narcotics investigations, attended the FBI National Academy, and served as the tactical commander of the Department's High Risk Unit.

In 2013, he was appointed DCI administrator by former Attorney General Tim Fox. He was given the opportunity to continue serving in that capacity by Attorney General Knudsen in 2021. During his tenure at DCI, the Division's programs have grown considerably. Under Lockerby's leadership, with the support of the Attorney General and the Legislature, DCI has created or expanded the Human Trafficking Unit, the Office of Consumer Protection, Office of Victim Services, the Internet Crimes Against Children (ICAC) Task Force, social security fraud investigations, elder abuse investigations, and bolstered Montana's drug task forces.

He has also served as the chairman of the Rocky Mountain Information Network (RMIN), that provides law enforcement support to local agencies in eight states; and the chairman of the Rocky Mountain High Intensity Drug Trafficking Area (RMHIDTA), that provides critical federal funding for drug task forces in Montana, Colorado, Utah, and Wyoming.

According to court record, he was not found innocent or guilty for the rapes. He received a conditional Deferred Prosecuting Agreement, in part due to the complexity of trying rape in marriage. For his abusive handling of a minor, he received one year suspended prison sentence. The important thing is, it's stopped, and the treatment is on record. I recommend the film, 'It Ends with Us' for family of survivors of domestic violence. Thank you to those in the justice system who worked tirelessly to procure justice. I am neither alone nor special, in that I should receive perfect justice when so many have not, and God's timing is not our own.
