Celebration of Montana-Japan Relations to be Held at the Capitol Rotunda

The Japan Consulate General in Seattle, the lead organization that upholds Japan's connections with Montana, will host a reception in celebration of this relationship at the Capitol Rotunda in Helena on Wednesday, Jan. 22 at 5 p.m.

Paul Green, director of the Montana Department of Commerce, said, "Japan is one of Montana's top trading partners and longest-standing diplomatic relationships, with ties across agriculture, education, manufacturing, culture and diplomacy that touch every corner of our state." Green added, "Japan is consistently a top buyer of Montana products, purchasing over $240 million in exports from us last year."

While roughly the size of Montana, Japan has 123 million people to our 1.1 million. The relationship between Japan and Montana is rooted in the legacy of Ambassador Mike Mansfield from Butte, the longest serving ambassador to Japan, and our sister state relationship with Kumamoto Prefecture, established in 1982.

These strong connections are supported by the international teams at the Departments of Commerce and Agriculture. Additionally, Montana-Japan relationships can be seen in exchanges between local museums and art centers. Kumamoto's Amakusa Dinosaur Museum and the Carter County Museum in Ekalaka send students and paleontologists back and forth in the pursuit of dinosaur fossils, while a traveling troop of actors from Missoula Children's Theatre is funded each year to perform in Kumamoto.

Nikki Geiszler, executive director of the Montana World Affairs Council, said, "International relationships are vital to our towns and communities. We have a rich history with the Japanese Consulate, building bridges between students in Montana and Japan through our programs, such as Academic WorldQuest, EconoQuest and Virtual Exchanges. We value this important relationship with the Consulate and are honored to support this event in our state."

Commerce invites you to learn about these connections from the organizations and companies participating in the reception on Jan. 22. Consul General Iyori Makoto of Japan is scheduled to speak on the larger picture of US-Japan relations.

RSVPs are required and requested by Jan. 21, 2025. RSVP by emailing rthompson@montanaworldaffairs.org.

HEADACHES

By "Swede" Troedsson

In September, 1963, I was transferred from the Curlew Ranger District, in northeastern Washington, to the Madison Ranger District, headquartered in Ennis, Montana. My assignment was to prepare and administer timber sales on that ranger district.

My wife, MaryAnn, and I were moved into a government house located in downtown Ennis. The home was heated by a heating oil furnace located in the basement.

The following fall, the furnace began leaking fumes so badly that we could smell its strong odors upstairs. My wife and I were also waking up with headaches. The odor of heating oil fumes even permeated our clothing!

On two occasions I complained to our District Ranger, Neil Howarth. But, no action was taken.

In mid-September, the Beaverhead National Forest Supervisor, Vic Stokes, was conducting an Administrative Review on our district.

One day, at the end of the lunch hour, as I was about to return to the office, Vic and Neil entered our home.

Vic inquired as to why the house was so cold. I informed him of the faulty condition of the furnace, and the fact that we were waking up with headaches. The situation was so bad that we decided to shut off the furnace.

Vic asked me if I had informed Neil about the faulty furnace. I simply held up two fingers, signifying that I had notified Neil on two occasions.

If looks could kill!

I was not privy as to what Vic had to say to Neil after they left our home.

But, the furnace was replaced the following week.

Secretary Jacobsen highlights red tape reduction with Montana Outfitters & Guides Association

Montana Secretary of State Christi Jacobsen highlighted her work in eliminating red tape for businesses during a fireside chat at the Montana Outfitters & Guides Association (MOGA) convention. MOGA President Chris Francis hosted the event with Secretary Jacobsen.

"When I was elected to my first term in 2020, I made a promise to partner with the Montana business community to make it easier for our businesses in their day-to-day operations," said Secretary Jacobsen. "Cutting red tape and increasing efficiencies were important first steps in that process.

"We got to work in the Secretary of State's Office and immediately cut registration fees in half for new Montana businesses and also eliminated several other fees entirely. I'm proud to have waived the Annual Report filing fees for all Montana businesses in 2024 and 2025."

Secretary Jacobsen discussed the Red Tape Relief Project headed by the Governor's Office, which has included extensive regulatory reviews by each state agency. The initiative has been a significant step in fostering economic growth and stability by streamlining regulatory processes, reducing bureaucratic hurdles, and creating a more business-friendly Montana.

As a result, Secretary Jacobsen and the Governor have announced record new business creation in Montana in each of the past four years. On Wednesday, Secretary Jacobsen and Governor Gianforte celebrated Montana's 2024 record at Granite Peak Athletics in East Helena.

Attorney General Knudsen issues statement on SCOTUS TikTok decision

The United States Supreme Court upheld the law banning TikTok in the United States unless the Chinese-owned parent company, Bytedance, sells its stake in the app by. In response, Montana Attorney General Austin Knudsen released the following statement:

"I'm glad the Supreme Court agreed that Congress acted well within its power to protect Americans from the Chinese Communist Party's intelligence gathering tool. There's no First Amendment right for foreign adversaries to spy on Americans. TikTok poses a serious national security threat. It should be banned and the law should be enforced on Sunday."

Attorney General Knudsen has been a leader in the effort to ban TikTok to protect Americans' security and privacy. In December, he led a brief asking the Supreme Court to uphold the national ban. In 2023, Attorney General Knudsen also helped pass the law to ban TikTok in Montana, the first of its kind in the country.
