Jason Breckenridge White

August 14, 1974 -- December 11, 2024

Jason Breckenridge White was born in Butte Montana in 1974 and over the years lived in Montana and Utah.

We lost our beloved Jason in December.

Jason was truly a special man. He was dealt many bad hands, yet never complained, he did not let it get him down, nor did he hold a grudge. Jason loved and appreciated the great outdoors.

He enjoyed camping, hunting, and cruising across a lake in the speedboat, even before all the ice had melted while wearing his wool watch cap. Hiking, exploring and bicycling never got old for him. He probably circumnavigated the earth in miles on his mountain bike. His favorite hobby was his ATV's, often riding from sunup until sundown. Sometimes getting back in his rig with his lunch sandwich between his fingers and the steering wheel. Jason also loved artwork, especially pen and ink and he did hundreds of pieces of art in his lifetime.

Jason loved exploring his Norwegian/Viking ancestry through books and media.

You have heard the saying "give you the shirt off his back" he could never say no to friends or family. A truly generous soul.

Jason is survived by his Grandmother Martha Kramen, father Bryan White, his "best mom" Debbie Breckenridge, sister Jami Breckenridge, nephews Eli and Tucker Lefler and many others from Norway to Montana.

Jason did not have a single enemy, saying he will be missed doesn't seem like a strong enough statement. We thank the Lord for the promise of the resurrection and are grateful for the time we had to spend with Jason.

The Beaverhead County Spelling Bee took place today at the Beaverhead County Courthouse, with 30 young spellers competing for the coveted top spot and a chance to advance to the state spelling bee.

The event began with a practice round designed to help participants get a feel for the competition. The first word presented was "magnolia," followed by the challenging word "amnesia," which tripped up the first contestant. The word "teriyaki" also posed a challenge, leading to eliminations. By the end of the first round, 14 spellers had been eliminated, narrowing the competition down. The second round saw 10 contestants remaining, followed by a third round that further reduced the field to eight. As the rounds continued, the number of contestants dwindled: five in the fourth round and three by the fifth round.

In the sixth and final round, all three remaining spellers successfully spelled their first word. However, one contestant misspelled "university," resulting in elimination. This left the top two contestants to compete head-to-head.

In the next round, the first word, "accolade," was missed by speller number one, while the champion, Emma Filer, correctly spelled "pedigree." Emma then sealed her victory by spelling the championship word, "appraisal," thus winning the spelling bee.

Emma, a homeschooler, is set to represent Beaverhead County at the state spelling bee, showcasing her impressive spelling skills and determination throughout the competition.

UMW's Business Idea Pitch Competition Opens Doors for Student Opportunity

On December 5, 2024, the University of Montana Western Business Department hosted its inaugural campus-wide Business Idea Pitch Competition. The event stemmed from a pilot capstone course led by UMW business students Brody Connelly, Emma Day, Haylee Grytdal, and Rylie Halsell.

The competition invited students from various disciplines to present their business ideas in a "Shark Tank"-style format before an audience and a panel of three faculty judges. A total of 17 UMW students and two Montana Youth Challenge (MYC) student teams participated, competing for various awards.

Emma Day received the Audience Favorite award for her pitch, Rooted Table. James Carter won Most Creative Idea for his pitch, Zynding Machine. Brody Connelly was recognized as Most Charismatic for his pitch, Powerland Equipment and Repair. Cady Brown took home Best Overall Pitch for her idea, Grow Ag, an online employment resource connecting aspiring agriculture professionals with farmers and ranchers.

Each winner received a stipend and a gift certificate for the UMW Bookstore, while all participants received a certificate and a business plan book.

The competition emerged from a pilot venture capital capstone course designed to immerse students in entrepreneurship, business development, and venture capital through hands-on, project-based learning. Business majors Connelly, Day, Grytdal, and Halsell were invited by Associate Professors Rick Rochester and Brian England and Professor Christian Gilde to take part in the course.

"Our professors approached us about this pilot capstone project—something completely new on campus. We're building a business plan and taking it to competitions, giving us real-world experience in entrepreneurship," said Connelly.

Throughout the yearlong course, which began in fall 2024, the students developed a business plan to pitch at competitions hosted by other universities. With faculty mentorship, they refined their ideas and presentation skills, already earning $3,000 in funding from state-level competitions.

This spring, the team will compete at the John Ruffatto Startup Challenge at the University of Montana and an event at Washington State University, where they hope to secure additional funding and recognition.

Building on their own experiences, the team wanted to create opportunities for more UMW students to showcase their ideas. They organized workshops to help students from all disciplines develop their pitches, sharing insights they had gained through the capstone course and external competitions.

With funding from the University of Montana Western Foundation, the group successfully hosted the inaugural competition on December 5, marking a significant step in fostering entrepreneurship and cross-disciplinary collaboration at UMW.

"One of our biggest goals was to involve students from different majors. Business, education, agriculture—we wanted to bring people together and show that entrepreneurship applies to every field," said Day.

Looking ahead, the group hopes this is just the beginning. They envision expanding the event to include local businesses and sponsors, creating even greater opportunities for students to develop practical skills and network with industry professionals.

"Dillon is a small town, but the business community here is incredibly supportive," said Halsell. "We've had the chance to meet business owners, visit different facilities, and learn from real-world professionals. We want more students to experience that."

With growing interest and institutional support, the Business Idea Pitch Competition has the potential to become a cornerstone event at UMW, empowering students to turn ideas into action and preparing them for success beyond the classroom.

Yes, references to pennies are woven into our cultural identity. You know, like "A penny saved is a penny earned" and "See a penny, pick it up; all the day you'll have good luck – although TOMORROW you will probably catch tuberculosis or get run over by a horseless carriage or something."

Sigh I suppose such references will become increasingly obscure. Think about Billy Joel's line "Anthony works in the grocery store, savin' his pennies for someday." Future generations will quiz, "What's a penny? What's work? Grocery store? You mean the I Think It's Just A Misdemeanor If You Steal the Walk-in Cooler store?"

Most Americans will roll with the punches if no more pennies are produced, but I'm confident there will be pockets of resistance.

Some diehard numismatists will fight to keep Uncle Sam cranking out pennies at a loss, citing "tradition...tradition!" (If there's any justice, they'll get a hernia lugging around enough pennies to buy tickets for a Broadway revival of "Fiddler on the Roof.")

The curmudgeonly class will be apoplectic over the idea of merchants rounding up a $9.99 total to $10. Rounding down to $9.95 isn't necessarily a viable long-term solution, because nickels also cost more to produce than their face value. ("I swear, those contractors are dime-and-quartering me to death.")

And I know the end of pennies would be a shock to the system of people who get their jollies by tying up the checkout lane while they meticulously count out cash, but I'm sure they will adapt. ("Okay, put one cent on this credit card and one cent on this credit card and one cent on this debit card I got from my grandson. Oh, I simply must tell you about the dream the little scamp had the other night about 'War and Peace'...")

Many countries have already eliminated their lowest-denomination coin. I think in Russia it mysteriously fell from an upper-story window. Canada was more subtle. ("You're looking a mite depressed, one-cent coin. Have you ever heard of a little thing called assisted discontinuation?")

Can't make heads or tails of the situation? Try your best to modernize your view of economic realities.

"Every time it rains, it rains soggy $20 bills from heaven..."

Veteran's Corner Update #293

By Mike Lawson

Veteran News Updates:

• Today was the the Grand Opening and Open House of the Montana Army National Guard Silver Bow Readiness Center. This new 34 million-dollar Silver Bow Readiness Center will have approximately 150 Soldiers from the 1889th Regional Support Group, the 103rd Public Affairs Detachment, and Detachment 1, 230th Engineer Company, stationed there. This facility was the combining of the Montana Army National Guard armories that were located in both Butte and Anaconda. It a beautiful facility, consisting of several buildings composed of the Readiness Center itself as well as the detached Vehicle Maintenance facility... The two missions of any National Guard Unit are regulated by the federal government and the state government they are located in. These missions are: 1) The Federal Mission: To support the U.S. Army in times of war and national emergency. Called to duty by the President. 2) The State Mission: To help protect life and property and to preserve peace, order and public safety. Called to duty by the Governor... This facility's location is at the Montana Connections industrial park located southwest of Butte.

• I've been a veteran advocate for two plus decades . The motto I live by is that a veteran is a veteran is a veteran no matter what service he/she served in. Being involved in all our local veteran service organizations on the local, state and national level as a member and officer has opened doors to knowing where to get help for our veterans in need. This has helped create a network of folks who can help or know where help can be obtained. The VA is a major caregiver. Once we get these veterans into VA Health Care, their life is in a better place. We as members in any of our Veteran Organizations are non-political but as advocates we look to our politicians for veteran support on the national and the state level to support and write legislation for Veteran causes. Each of our Senators and Representatives have folks working for them to take Veteran's concerns to whatever level to try and get resolutions that will help Veterans.. A prime example is getting the SW MT Veteran's Home being built. We lost a valuable veteran advocate in Senator Tester. However, Sen Sheehy hired another of my-go-to guys as his Military & Veterans Rep. Todd Dunlap is, in my opinion, one of the most knowledgeable people. He knows the VA inside and out and has a passion for helping veterans. He's a retired Navy Master Chief and American Legion Member. Welcome aboard, Todd.
