Montana's Conduit Bond Financing Options Expanded for Non-Profits, Businesses

Passage of SB 104 means MFFA can provide more streamlined service, economic development bond financing to more industries

The Montana Department of Commerce announced today that the Montana Facility Finance Authority will begin providing conduit bonds to a broader range of projects. With the passage of Senate Bill 104, signed by Governor Greg Gianforte on April 16, 2025, more Montana businesses and nonprofits will benefit from a clear, reliable route to the bond market — without relying on taxpayer funds.

"Conduit bonds play a vital role in driving economic development by enabling large-scale projects that provide substantial public benefits, such as healthcare and housing," said MFFA Executive Director Adam Gill. "These investments not only create jobs and stimulate local economies but also enhance the overall quality of life for Montanans."

For over 40 years, MFFA has served as a statewide issuer of healthcare bonds, facilitating the issuance of more than $4 billion in bonds across Montana. SB 104, sponsored by Sen. Gayle Lammers (R - Hardin) expands access to MFFA's financial expertise, enabling a broader range of borrowers — including schools, museums, energy providers, broadband providers and manufacturing facilities — to move forward with critical expansion projects that might otherwise face delays, reductions or cancellation.

SB 104 creates a clear and consistent pathway to let private borrowers work with private lenders. While not obligating anyone to participate in the bond market or imposing risk on state or local governments, the bill creates a path to the market for projects with a clear public benefit.

In addition to providing MFFA with a new, expansive reach, SB 104 triples the biennial bond issuance cap from $500 million to $1.5 billion. It also automatically increases the cap by 3 percent every two years.

"For the last 40 years, the MFFA provided access to the bond market for healthcare facilities across Montana — that's been our core expertise," Gill said. "That avenue has always been available to other organizations, but they had to work through local governments that weren't consistently available or equipped with the resources to help. This new law changes that. It allows us to offer our expertise directly to a broader range of eligible projects, without creating any obligation for the state or its taxpayers. It's a win for the organizations, a win for communities and a win for Montana."

The MFFA is governed by a seven-member board who are appointed by the governor and confirmed by the senate. It is a quasi-judicial board which is administratively attached to Commerce.

If TikTok existed in 1980, my prom would've gone viral

by Tom Purcell

Social media has transformed the American prom.

Today's teens have grown up with smartphones and TikTok, where the real event isn't the prom itself — it's the content they edit and post afterward.

My prom experience surely would have gone viral had TikTok been around in 1980.

We arranged a pre-prom meeting at her house to get to know each other.

"I heard about you, a regular class clown," she said. "You better not show up in a limo, wear a top hat or cane or do anything else to embarrass me."

The authenticity of that painful video clip — her anger and the painful expression on my face — surely would have racked a few million TikTok views.

Still, I wanted to impress her. I bought her the finest corsage in our high school (it cost $45, which would be about $170 now). I bought a box of frozen steaks, snacks and other refreshments for the after-prom party.

On the afternoon of the prom, my friend Gigs and I — we double dated — took a drive to the prom ballroom downtown to make sure we wouldn't get lost later.

Later that evening, we picked up our girls for photos and false enthusiasm, but we were late for dinner (we got lost).

I'm certain my date didn't spend a few thousand dollars on her dress as girls do now, though I remember she looked great.

The truth is, I can't remember what she was wearing because I hardly saw her all night long. She and Gigs' date spent most of the night in the ladies' room, while Gigs and I counted how many times the hard-rock band played "Cocaine" (nine).

Finally, around 11:30 p.m., the dance was over. We took the girls home.

But our suffering was just beginning.

We picked our dates up early the next morning and drove to a lake cabin where my friend Cook was having an after-prom party. The cabin was a two-hour drive, but it took us five (we got lost).

My date didn't utter a word until 2 p.m., when she challenged Gigs and me to a tennis match.

Gigs is an outstanding athlete and I'm no slouch, either. We crushed the girls, and after the match they refused to talk to us.

Gigs and I spent the rest of the day tossing a football and eating steak. Around dusk, the girls told us it was time to leave.

Five hours later we arrived home (we got lost) and the torturous affair was finally over.

I read that Generation Z prefers to post authentic content over the fake "look how perfect my life is" content that Millennials and GenXers prefer.

Looking back, I can see that my prom had all the raw, awkward authenticity Gen Z loves — I just didn't have TikTok to prove it.

In any event, I have some advice for Zoomer promgoers: Be kind to your date — or your unpleasant actions might rack up millions of views on TikTok and Instagram.

My date had no idea I'd become a nationally syndicated humor columnist — and retell variations of our awkward experience at least 15 times in hundreds of newspapers over the next 45 years.

That's not as good as millions of views would have been, but old-school newspaper payback is still sweet.

Secretary of State Christi Jacobsen honors Montana small businesses during National Small Business Month

Editor's note: Secretary of State Christi Jacobsen highlights local Montana businesses through her Montana Business Spotlight series. Each Spotlight introduces Montanans to a locally owned business, sharing their journey and highlighting the goods and services they provide to Big Sky Country.

In celebration of National Small Business Month, Montana Secretary of State Christi Jacobsen is honoring local businesses statewide for their positive impact on our communities and state.

"Small businesses are the backbone of our economy, representing innovation, entrepreneurship, and resilience," said Secretary Jacobsen. "I am proud to recognize these businesses' contributions to creating jobs and supporting local economies across Montana."

"The Secretary of State's Office is the first stop for these businesses, and we're honored to assist with their registration so they can take their dreams to Main Street," she added.

According to data from the U.S. Small Business Administration, more than 95 percent of Montana businesses are estimated to be small businesses, providing meaningful employment opportunities for Montanans statewide. Montana's small businesses are vital to the state's economy and essential to their communities.

Secretary Jacobsen encourages all Montanans to recognize and support their local small businesses.

"Montana is blessed to be home to thousands of wonderful small businesses, each filled with hard-working owners and employees who embody the spirit of our communities," said Secretary Jacobsen. "Small businesses are the heartbeat of Montana. I'm deeply grateful for their contributions, creating jobs, fostering innovation, and continuing to share the values that make Montana the Last Best Place."

"Thank you for doing business in Montana!" Secretary Jacobsen added.
