The former NRA competitors include seven-time PRCA world champion Dan Mortensen (Saddle bronc, all-around), steer wrestling world champion Ty Erickson, Tie-down roping champion Haven Meged and Jess Lockwood, the two-time PBR Champion.

"It was cool to win both," said Gaasch, now a home-schooled senior in high school. "Somebody asked me how old I was. I said, '17.' Guys said they thought I was a freshman or

He turned 18 in November.

College is in the near future. Already committed to perennial power Montana State University where he will study welding and ranch management, Gaasch will continue his high school rodeo education, chasing a return trip to the National High School Finals Rodeo.

"I wouldn't be where I am at without high school rodeo," he said. "High school taught me a lot about rodeo. You learn the system. It's step up in competition... getting you ready for the move up to the college level.

"You just learn how to handle things. You take the good with the highs and the lows with the losses. You learn how to review what you did wrong and move on to the next one."

Gaasch is competing in steer wrestling, tie-down roping and team roping his final high school spring.

"I love bulldogging," He said. "hopefully, I'll do well at the state finals and make it back to Nationals."

Last year, Gaasch finished 30th at the NHSFR in Rock Springs, Wyoming.

He joined the PRCA after turning 18 and has already competed at three pro events in Arizona. Gaasch is traveling with two time National Finals Rodeo qualifier Bridger Chambers this summer. Chambers won the RAM Montana Circuit steer wrestling title in January.

"It will be great to travel with him. He has tons of knowledge," Gaasch said.

The Young Cowboy also plans to defend his NRA Titles.

"I want to keep moving up," he said of the rodeo ladder. "Finish high school, finish college and hope to go professional."

But High school rodeo is the priority now, offering more than just buckles and saddles.

I grew up with my buddies in high school rodeo," added Gaasch. "Best friends for life."

Great Falls Montana SBDC Rural Business Advisor Wins National Award for Excellence

Rich Gannon named 2025 Montana "State Star"

The Montana Small Business Development Center Network, headquartered at the Montana Department of Commerce, announced that SBDC Rural Business Advisor Rich Gannon has been named the 2025 Montana "State Star."

The State Star is a national honor that recognizes outstanding performers from Small Business Development Centers around the country. Gannon will be honored in September at the national ASBDC conference in Orlando. Award nomination criteria names exemplary performance, significant contributions to the program and a strong commitment to small businesses as top qualifiers for the award.

"Rich goes above and beyond in meeting the needs of entrepreneurs, empowering them with tools and guidance that foster real growth and opportunity," said SBDC State Director Chad Moore. "His commitment to practical results and his passion for supporting rural small business owners makes him an invaluable asset to the Montana SBDC and the communities he serves."

Gannon is hosted by the Great Falls Development Alliance. He provides confidential one-on-one consulting and training for entrepreneurs and small business owners across a seven-county region. Gannon joined the SBDC in 2019. Over the past six years, he has counseled 942 clients, supported 2,855 jobs and helped clients secure over $20,435,968 in funding.

"It's truly an honor to receive this award. I'm grateful every day to have a job where I get to meet and support small business owners as they start and grow their businesses," said Rich Gannon. "I'm also thankful to be surrounded by a team of like-minded advisors who share a common goal of serving our clients."

In 2024, Gannon remained a key resource for small businesses in the Great Falls seven-county region. He accounted for 69 percent of his center's new business starts and brought a forward-thinking, technology-driven perspective to client advising, which contributed to improved outcomes for local entrepreneurs. Amid changes in leadership at his center, Gannon was instrumental in maintaining the program's strong performance. He also completed training in the new national AI certification program and now serves as a member of America's SBDC Capital Interest Section Group.

Additionally, Gannon launched a website bootcamp training event designed to guide businesses through building and managing their own

Montana Homeowner Assistance Fund Ends Homeowner Insurance Support

The Montana Department of Commerce announced that the Montana Homeowner Assistance Fund program will no longer provide homeowner insurance assistance. Commerce officials said this decision was made due to a lack of interest in this element of the program and that the funds will instead be used to meet increased requests for property tax assistance.

"Since the inception of the property tax assistance program in 2022, we have seen over a 900 percent increase in expenditures. With the homeowner insurance assistance program receiving little attention, it made sense to move the dollars to cover where the need appears to be most vital," said Montana Department of Commerce Acting Director Mandy Rambo.

The Montana HAF program serves Montanans whose gross household income does not exceed 100% of the Area Median Income. To be eligible for property tax assistance, the homeowner must live in their residence and be behind on tax payments.

The policy changes include:

- No new homeowner assistance applications for property insurance will be accepted after 11:59 p.m. on May 23, 2025.
- Applications that have already been submitted will be reviewed to determine household eligibility for the program and eligible applicants will be funded.

Since the beginning of the HAF program, more than 1,200 Montana households received assistance with more than $16 million of total funding awarded.

The HAF program is funded through the federal American Rescue Plan with total funding of $50 million. Funding for the HAF program will expire on September 30, 2026.

Tag! You're It

Planning to fish the Big Hole, Beaverhead or Ruby rivers this year?
We need your help!

Reporting tagged trout helps inform research; cash rewards and prize drawings continue

In the upper Jefferson River basin, anglers play a central role in research aimed at helping Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks better understand trout population declines and fish health concerns.

This research is now in its second year, with FWP and Montana
State University collaborating on three PhD studies looking at causes of mortality for adult trout, how tributaries contribute to mainstem trout populations, and ways to enhance proactive fish health monitoring.

FWP staff have tagged trout in the Big Hole, Beaverhead, Ruby and Madison rivers as part of the study effort. These tags are found near the dorsal fin. Anglers who catch a tagged fish should use clippers to remove the tag as close to the skin as possible while minimizing handling time and exposure to air for the fish, then submit a report for each tagged fish they catch. These reports will include information such as the tag number, date, location, condition of the fish, gear type used, and whether the angler released or harvested the fish.

To report a tagged fish from these four rivers, visit mtcfwu.org/msutag or call 406-994-2384. A how-to video on this process is available on FWP's website.

When anglers report each tagged fish they catch, they're substantively contributing to the informed management of these fisheries by helping researchers better understand how environmental conditions and other factors contribute to population recruitment, survival and mortality of trout.

In essence, when you go fishing on these rivers, you're helping trout populations through this research.

Anglers who submit reports may be eligible for rewards. Yellow tag reports are each worth $100. Anglers who report blue tags will be entered into regular drawings for gear and fishing trips. These drawings have already begun this year, and they'll continue over the coming months.

Some fish may still be carrying tags from last year. These tags may be covered with a thin film of algae, making them less noticeable. However, the same reporting process and reward opportunities apply to these tags.

Anglers and other river recreationists may also meet staff from MSU while on the river. These creel clerks will be interviewing recreationists as part of the research effort.

Commissioner of Securities and Insurance, James Brown, Announces Settlement with Vanguard Over Target Retirement Fund Distributions

James Brown, Commissioner of Securities and Insurance and Montana State Auditor, announced a settlement with Vanguard Marketing Corporation and The Vanguard Group, Inc., resolving an investigation into large, unexpected capital gains tax distributions from Vanguard's Target Retirement Funds in 2021.

The investigation, conducted in parallel with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) and other states, focused on Vanguard's decision in December 2020 to lower the investment minimum for its Institutional Target Retirement Funds. This change prompted significant redemptions from the Investor Target Retirement Funds, resulting in unusually high capital gains distributions to shareholders holding these funds in taxable accounts.

"Montana investors deserve transparency and fair treatment," said Commissioner Brown. "This settlement ensures that affected investors receive meaningful remediation and that Vanguard improves its practices to protect Montana's investing public."

Key findings from the investigation include:

- Vanguard failed to adequately update its analysis of potential tax impacts before recommending the minimum investment reduction, relying on outdated data that did not reflect market rebounds.
- Vanguard did not sufficiently disclose to investors the risk of significant capital gains distributions resulting from the change.
- The firm's supervisory systems were not reasonably designed to ensure these risks were communicated to decision-makers and investors.
- Under the Consent Order:
- Vanguard will pay $135 million in remediation, subject to specific offsets, to a SEC Fair Fund to benefit harmed investors nationwide, including Montana investors.
- Vanguard has paid an additional $13.5 million administrative penalty.
- The settlement resolves Commissioner Brown's and the CSI's investigation into this matter, provided Vanguard complies with the terms of the Consent Order.

Commissioner Brown encourages any Montana investors who believe they may have been affected to contact the Office of the Commissioner of Securities and Insurance at 406-444-2040 for more information.
