Bulldog Rodeo Prepares for College National Finals Rodeo

The Montana Western men's and women's rodeo teams secured second place finishes in the Big Sky Region to qualify for the College National Finals Rodeo (CNFR). This marks the first time since 2021 that both teams will be traveling to the CNFR in the same season.

"On the men's team, I'm excited to take a group of veterans. Four of the six men have been there, and I think this group can do something special," Head Coach JT Robbins said.

The men's team will be sending a group of six men to the finals, including four repeat finalists.

"Our women's team had an impressive season, claiming victories at several rodeos within one of the most competitive regions in the country. They're young, driven, and dedicated to putting in the work—I'm excited to see what they accomplish next," Robbins continued.

Four Bulldog women claimed bids to the finals after they finished in second as a team in the region. This year's finals will be a first for three of the four women competing at the CNFR.

Entries

Gavin Knutson from Polson, Mont. finished in second in the region in bull riding this season. This will be his third trip to the finals. Knutson finished the season winning four of the 10 rodeos this season and placed second in two more. Knutson is the fourth ranked Bull Rider in the nation and makes his third trip to the finals.

Erickson (heeler) from Rigby, Idaho, won the region title in team roping and earned their spot at the finals. The pair was unstoppable this season, winning three rodeos and placing in the top six in six rodeos this season. Trexler sits in 14th in the nation as a header and Erickson is in 13th as a heeler.

Chase Martin from Molalla, Ore. finished third in the region for saddle bronc riding and will take his first trip to the finals to represent Montana Western in the event. Martin won a pair of rodeos this season and placed in the top five in all but two rodeos this season. Martin enters the rodeo as the 24th ranked rider in the country.

After sitting out most of the fall season due to an injury, Trevor Kay, Chester, Idaho came out strong this spring and finished in third in bareback riding to secure his third trip to the CNFR. He enters as the 14th ranked rider in the country.

Jake Deveraux from Newcastle, Wyo. placed second in the region in tie down roping and will round out the Bulldog men competing at the finals this summer. Deveraux earns his second trip to the finals for the Bulldogs and sits in 24th in the national standings heading into the CNFR.

On the women's side, two Bulldogs won the region in their events. Tavy Leno won the region in goat tying and Tynell McInenly finished on top in breakaway roping.

Public can still provide input on mule deer management through online portal

Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks is developing a new Statewide Mule Deer Management Plan and recently held public workshops around the state to hear from the public.

FWP still wants to hear from people who care about mule deer management but were unable to attend a workshop. Those folks can go to FWP's website and leave a comment. FWP will be taking public feedback through June 27.

"The turnout for our workshops was fantastic, but we want to maximize the opportunity for public input of all stakeholders," FWP Director Christy Clark said. "If you want to share your thoughts and couldn't make a workshop, we need to hear from you."

The new Statewide Mule Deer Management Plan will reflect public concerns FWP has heard over the past several years, as well as the latest science and research around mule deer numbers and management. The new plan will provide more comprehensive guidance for FWP as it manages mule deer and include strategies and information on management concepts that address hunting harvest, mule deer habitat conservation and herd health.

Public input is vital to ensure the management plan's strategies reflect public concerns and opinion.

FWP's goal is to manage for the long-term welfare of Montana's mule deer resource and provide hunting opportunities that reflect the dynamic nature of deer populations. Through these public workshops, FWP will get a clearer understanding of what the public wants to see in the Statewide Mule Deer Management Plan, which will help us achieve this goal.
