Saints Score 4 More All-Americans on Day 3 and Men's Track & Field Places 5th Overall

The Fighting Saints of Carroll College in Helena, Montana closed out a tremendous meet at the NAIA Outdoor Track & Field Championships at Indiana Wesleyan University on Friday. Carroll had several men and women compete with the men's team finishing just one point shy of a trophy, taking fifth place – the highest placement in program history.

On the women's side, Madalen Shipman (Dillon, Mont. / SR – 800m), from Beaverhead County High School in Dillon, Montana, was the only Saints woman competing on Friday in the finals. She raced in the 800m final, running a lifetime best. Her time of 2:11.53 was a PR and placed her 5th in the nation for her second All-American award in 2025. She was 3rd in the nation in the 600m at NAIA Indoor Nationals.

Madalen qualified for the Outdoor Championships with a time of 2:13.24 in the 800 and was ranked 22nd going into the championships. In her heat on Thursday she took 2nd with a 2:11.60 and that put her in 8th in the final field of nine. In the finals she rose to the occasion running another PR of 2:11.53 which was good for 5th place overall and All-American status.

Additionally, Madalen was awarded the "NAIA Champions of Character Award" on Tuesday night at the awards dinner. The award recognizes 'integrity, respect, responsibility, sportsmanship, and servant leadership' within the NAIA. "I am so humble and happy to receive this award on behalf on Carroll College and my team" stated Madalen. "There are so many deserving student athletes and I feel so honored."

"It was a really fun meet and just great to see our athletes be so competitive as individuals and a team," said Head Coach Harry Clark. "Everyone will look forward to some time off to recharge after their work all season, but we know they'll be excited to get back after it and look ahead to the future," he added.

Montana Petroleum Association and Secretary of State Christi Jacobsen celebrate key legislative milestones

This week, leaders with the Montana Petroleum Association (MPA) joined Montana Secretary of State Christi Jacobsen at the Montana State Capitol to celebrate MPA's priority legislation from the 2025 Montana Legislative Session. Secretary Jacobsen held a ceremonial filing of the organization's key objectives into law.

"What could be better than beautiful Montana energy powering America? Congratulations to the Montana Petroleum Association and our wonderful oil and gas producers," said Secretary Jacobsen.

In addition to the Montana Petroleum Association's primary objectives, the state of Montana has also been innovative in the oil and gas industry. Throughout the calendar year, Secretary Jacobsen and her all-Republican colleagues on the Montana Land Board approve quarterly oil and gas lease sales, which have gained increased interest and generated higher revenue following the modernization of lease sales held online. The Department of Natural Resources and Conservation (DNRC) utilizes the online platform EnergyNet, and the past three oil and gas lease sales have generated an estimated revenue of nearly $13 million, benefiting students across Montana.

"This is just a start; a lot more can get done, and I'll fight for our cutting-edge producers every step of the way," said Secretary Jacobsen. "Let's drill, baby, drill."

from the Indian Equity Fund helped me scale my business more quickly and effectively. In the video production industry, professional-grade equipment is essential and often expensive. The grant allowed me to invest in the tools I needed to deliver high-quality work to my clients. As someone from the reservation serving communities across Montana, I don't have easy access to rental houses or last-minute gear like many in larger cities do. It's important for me to have what I need on hand, ready to go, and the IEF really helped make that possible."

Eligible applicants for IEF grant funding include enrolled members of the eight federally recognized tribes in Montana. A total of $320,000 of IEF program funding is available annually to support Native American businesses in Montana.

The IEF is one of four financial assistance programs under Commerce's Office of Indian Country Economic Development. Other funding opportunities include the Native American Business Advisors, Tribal Tourism and Native American Collateral Support grant programs.

WP's biennial hunting season-setting process begins in June

Hunting regulations often are the subject of debate, curiosity or even consternation with hunters around Montana. Hunters who want to see changes in regulations or have ideas to improve the regulations will have a great opportunity to make a difference in the coming weeks.

On odd years, Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks does a complete run through of hunting regulations to consider both large and small changes. This process is called "season setting" and starts off with scoping meetings around the state to gather ideas from hunters and to answer questions about suggested changes that FWP staff are considering. These scoping meetings will be held in June and July.

FWP staff will look to hunters to provide broad input on regulation changes they'd like to see. Staff will also look for feedback on a few specific proposals.

These scoping meetings are not the same as public comment meetings. FWP staff will listen at the scoping meetings and capture the general themes. Staff will use this information to develop draft regulations, which will be released for public comment as proposals for the Fish and Wildlife Commission in October. FWP will hold additional public meetings in early November to answer questions about the draft regulation proposals. Comment on the draft regulation proposals will be collected through the FWP website during the fall public commenting period. The final decision on regulations will come at the December Fish and Wildlife Commission meeting.

We know hunting regulation changes are important for hunters, and we need your input early in the process to make sure any changes are made with careful consideration of what hunters think and what they want.

Scoping meeting schedule: Biennial Season Setting Meetings to Discuss Concepts All meetings from 6 to 8 p.m. June 10: Dillon - SAR building
