Council Meeting: July 17, 2025

By: MJ

The Council meeting looks as if it run-amok. Example: First item on the agenda was: "Public Comment on Items on the Agenda". This DID NOT HAPPEN. A council person started talking in public time slot and Mayor McGinley never called on the many members of the public in attendance to speak. Why? Is it time the city government representatives remember where the money comes from (taxpayers). There are laws that allow the public to speak. At times during the meeting there tended to be stress by some city officials, however the council moved forward politely and with clarity.

Mr. Guza, the legal representative, attended the meeting via zoom. He answered questions from the council members and is sending a letter to Beaverhead Meats to cease and desist the killing of animals within the city limits. Mr. Guza stated he was interested in why people are still concerned about Beaverhead Meats slaughtering animals in Dillon. The state has stopped them from killing within city limits. Mr. Guza will send a letter to Montana Dept. of Livestock making them aware of the city ordinances that do not allow slaughtering of animals. Council lady Ripley communicated to Mr. Guza that there was an ordinance dating back to 1984. Ms. Ripley asked that letters written be sent to the owners of property.

Montana Department of Livestock sent Beaverhead Meats a letter dated July 9, 2025, telling them to cease and desist killing in city limits until they had a proper license to do so. Currently the license they hold does not allow slaughtering. Question: When and if Beaverhead Meats obtains the proper license from Montana does that mean they will be issued a permit by the state to slaughter animals?

The Council minutes of the July 2nd meeting were not approved. Council lady O'Rourke brought up the issues that letters had been written about the kill plant and were not included in the minutes. Ms. O'Rourke read the letters into the record. For three (3) council meetings the mayor has been asked to put items on the agenda to no avail. Council members cannot take any action on items not listed on the agenda. Question: Why are the topics not being put on the agenda therefore making it possible for the council to manage the city by making informed decisions?

Let us remember the council shall be the legislative and policy determining body of the City of Dillon. All powers of the City shall be vested in the city council except as otherwise provided by law or the Charter. It appears choices are being made by the city officials to choose what goes on the agenda and what they want the council to debate. If it is not on the agenda, it often is not talked about at council meetings, and no decisions can be made by the council. Is the council being kept in the dark for reason unknown?

The council members took some of the power back by taking a definite stand on what information the letters to be written will say, minutes not approved until council sees the corrections, and items will be placed on the agenda when council asks.

Did They Kill The Kill Floor?

Jeremy Crawford, Southwestern Montana News

The Dillon City Council convened Wednesday night for its regular monthly meeting, drawing a packed chamber and ongoing tensions that have characterized recent gatherings.

Over the past few weeks, community members—including homeowners and business owners—have voiced concerns and sought resolutions on various issues, particularly regarding livestock slaughter regulations. Last night's meeting was no different, marked by heated debate over city policies and recent correspondence from the state.

Key among the issues was a letter sent by the Montana Department of Agriculture, instructing Beaverhead Meats to cease all livestock slaughter at their facility at 620 N. Montana Street. The department clarified that their license only permitted slaughter in the field, not at the facility. In response, the city's director of operations and city attorney issued a letter to Beaverhead Meats, reiterating that keeping livestock at their location was also prohibited.

However, questions arose over the phrasing and recipients of this letter. During a previous special meeting, Councilwoman O'Rourke and Councilwoman Schultz requested the letter be amended to explicitly state "no slaughtering" and to include the owner, Mike McGinley, his son David, and the building owner—all of whom were not fully addressed in the original correspondence. The existing letter only named David McGinley, prompting further debate.

Adding to the controversy, three council members submitted a request to include an agenda item—to draft and send a cease-and-desist letter to halt animal slaughtering at the facility. The mayor argued that this matter was already addressed and should not be on the agenda. Councilwoman O'Rourke contended that, according to council rules, the request met the criteria to be included. A vote on the issue ended in a 4-4 tie, leaving the mayor to decide. Recognizing the oversight, the mayor admitted it was likely a mistake and allowed for discussion, emphasizing that Beaverhead Meats' operations did not directly affect his personal life.

The meeting also covered the approval of minutes from July 2nd and a special session. Councilwoman O'Rourke expressed dissatisfaction with the minutes' accuracy, claiming that previous records misrepresented the council's stance on the kill floor. The council agreed to postpone approval pending corrected transcripts, citing concerns over proper documentation.

Adding to the complexity, discussions turned to the enforcement of city ordinances related to livestock slaughter. The director of operations explained that enforcement is limited without permits or complaints, and she was uninformed about certain issues until a Facebook post brought them to light. She criticized the city council for leaving her in the dark regarding complaints dating back four years. Many council members, however, cited historical laws dating back to 1982 that prohibit animal slaughter within city limits.

Debate also ensued over recent incidents involving animals being kept in trailers overnight to be slaughtered outside city boundaries. The director clarified that any citations for such activities would depend on specific violations. After nearly an hour of discussion, the city attorney announced he would send official cease-and-desist letters via certified mail to the involved parties.

As the meeting concluded, questions about transparency and proper governance remain. The recent proceedings highlight serious procedural flaws, including the omission of agenda items, restrictions on public comment, and potential violations of open meeting laws. The takeaway from last night's meeting raises additional concerns, particularly regarding adherence to open public meeting laws. Not allowing public comment might have broken these laws, and the mayor needs to pay closer attention to the requests made by the city council, ensuring that items they ask to be placed on the agenda are included. When items are omitted, it prevents meaningful discussion of those topics. Transcripts also need to be better documented and more accurately worded to truly reflect the meetings.

Currently, the city hall appears to operate more like a frat house than a professional city government—characterized by a chummy atmosphere, past issues such as growing pot, and a lack of accountability. This is your city, funded by your taxes. Proper governance can only be achieved if the city's bylaws are followed, the council, the voice of the people—is allowed to discuss topics that are correctly placed on the agenda, and citizens are granted their right to participate. As questions about transparency and accountability continue, the community's trust and the integrity of local government are at stake.

Government Meetings

If you wonder how things are done - go to the government meetings and see for yourself. The previous two stories were reports from the last City of Dillon Council Meeting. Being there in person, politics and personalities can be a very messy business. After it is over, will what is said and what is suppose to be done happen? Time will tell. But I can assure you, if you do not keep both eyes and ears open you will not know. The last couple meetings have been about a couple main issues. It is up to you, the taxpayers, to show up and speak up and let the governing bodies know how you expect them to act.

Wednesday night was not how it should be!

MANY REASONS TO LOVE BATS

FWP often talks about bats in October, as many people are thinking about Halloween, and bats get lumped in with the scary stuff.

But we don't buy into that old stereotype about bats being bad, so we're switching it up and talking about bats in summer. After all, summer is when bats are out and about, and when Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks nongame staff are researching them.

Let's talk about the number one reason why bats should be favored and not feared: Montana's 15 species of bats are all insectivores, which means they eat only insects. The agricultural pest control service of bats in Montana is valued at nearly $700,000,000 million per year. Bats help farmers by consuming common crop pests.

A single little brown bat can eat 1,200 mosquitoes in an hour! A colony of 150 big brown bats can eat 33 million cucumber beetles each summer. The 20 million Mexican free-tailed bats from the famed Braken Cave in Texas eat 200 tons of insects nightly.

Bats are important pollinators, playing a vital role in the reproduction of more than 500 plant species worldwide. Their saliva also contains properties used in producing anti-coagulants for the medical industry.

It's sobering to think that bats everywhere are threatened by habitat loss, pesticide use, and a disease called white-nose syndrome that has killed millions of bats in eastern states and poses a serious threat to bat populations, some of which were already declining. Ten of the 15 types of bats found in Montana are species of concern

Human intolerance is another huge threat to bats. If we're fearful of an animal, we are not as likely to see the importance of conserving it. F W P works to conserve bats and their important role in our ecosystem through disease prevention, habitat conservation and species monitoring.

This summer, FWP is hosting several bat-themed events around the state. To see if there is an event near you, check with the nearest FWP office.

City of Dillon Downtown Master Plan Update

Community Share Feedback Through Online Surveys

The City of Dillon is kicking off an update to its 2016 Downtown Master Plan and is asking for community participation through two new online surveys—one for business owners and property stakeholders in the downtown corridor, and another for residents and visitors who live in or enjoy downtown.

To gather feedback, the City is offering two separate surveys:

- Downtown Business Survey – For business and property owners within the downtown district
- Community Survey – For residents, patrons, and visitors of Downtown Dillon

Both surveys open July 3rd and can be accessed through the Downtown Dillon Master Plan website: https://www.visualizedillon.com/masterplan Comments and questions can be directed to Kristina Abbey at operations@dillonmt.org or by calling 406-683-4245 Monday - Friday, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

What is a Christian?

The Bible says to Love All People.
The Bible says to Love ALL people as much as you do yourself.
Do you?

The Bible says to REPENT of your sins against other people.
To tell them you are sorry you wronged them. To ask FORGIVENESS.
Do you?

So, if someone "Identifies" as a Christian...but hates you...tells lies about you....slanders and gossips about you...and refuses to ask forgiveness...are they....Christians ?
If they do not want to "Make things right"...
If they refuse to be Friends?....are they Christians?
Even if they go to church every Sunday? Even if they are the Preacher at the church?
Even if they have been preaching for "50 Years" ?

The Bible says in Matthew 7:22-23, "Many will say to Me ON THAT DAY, 'Lord, Lord, did we not prophesy in Your name, and in Your name drive out demons and perform many miracles?' Then I will tell them plainly, 'I never knew you; depart from Me, you workers of lawlessness!"

Many say they do not believe the Bible.
But in these "LAST DAYS"....the time is coming when they soon will....even "Preachers"
Galatians 1:8-9
