Montana Western Kicks Off New Academic Year with Orientation Weekend

The University of Montana Western is excited to welcome new students to campus during New Student Orientation, taking place Thursday, August 14, through Sunday, August 17.

Orientation at Montana Western is designed to welcome first-year and transfer students to campus and prepare them for the academic year. Over the four days, students will engage with peers, faculty, and staff through interactive sessions, icebreakers, and team-building activities before classes begin on Monday, August 18. These experiences help build friendships and lay the foundation for a supportive network that extends throughout students' time at UMW.

"By participating in New Student Orientation, students will be introduced to Experience One through immersive, hands-on activities, acquire skills to help them succeed in their university journey, and develop a sense of belonging and connection with other students, faculty, and staff," said Mike Piazzola, Senior Director of Student Life.

Festivities begin on Thursday, August 14, as students move into the UMW residence halls. Members of the campus and Dillon communities are invited to volunteer for Move-In Day to help welcome new students to Montana Western. To sign up, visit https://www.umwestern.edu/orientation and complete the "Montana Western Moving Company" form.

The ceremonial start of the academic year--Convocation—will be held on Friday, August 15, at 10:00 a.m. in the Straugh Gymnasium, followed by the Legacy Plaza Ceremony. A Welcome Lunch for students, families, faculty, and staff will follow on the campus lawn in front of Mathews Hall.

Orientation events will continue through the weekend with activities such as hiking to the "M," axe throwing, floating the Beaverhead River, and other opportunities to explore Dillon and the surrounding area. The weekend will conclude with the Bulldog Feast and the return of an alumni favorite: the Bulldog Brain Teaser!

For the full schedule of events, visit https://www.umwestern.edu/orientation. For more information, please contact Bulldog Life at 406-683-7565.

'More than just a resource': Secretary Christi Jacobsen highlights significance of coal industry at Montana Coal Council Convention

Montana Secretary of State Christi Jacobsen was honored to be a featured speaker at the 48th annual Montana Coal Council Convention. She expressed her support and gratitude for the coal industry's workers, their families, and their businesses.

"Thank you to everyone in the coal industry for your continued investment in our state, your commitment to doing business here in Big Sky Country, and for producing energy for our country and the world," said Secretary Jacobsen. "For our family, like all of you, the connection to land, power, and progress isn't abstract – it's personal. I understand firsthand the pride, hard work, sacrifice, and stewardship that go into natural resource development. I want to thank each of you for the work you do every day to produce energy for Montana and the world."

Secretary Jacobsen discussed her votes on the Montana Land Board, which increased and protected public access while supporting responsible natural resource development. Her votes led to historic revenue of more than $92 million for Montana schools last year.

"In addition to funding education for our children, we're protecting public access, preserving working lands, and standing guard over the Montana way of life that we all treasure," Secretary Jacobsen said.

Secretary Jacobsen thanked the state legislators in attendance for their continued support of natural resource development. She touched on affiliated legislation that she recently filed into Montana law and discussed the correlation between Montana's efforts and President Trump's executive order, 'Unleashing American Energy.'

"Montana coal is more than just a resource; it's a foundation of good-paying jobs, reliable energy, and national security," said Secretary Jacobsen. "Under President Trump's leadership, America has a renewed focus on energy independence, unleashing domestic production, reducing reliance on foreign sources, and putting American workers first. That spirit is alive and well here in Montana, where your industry continues to deliver the power that drives our state, and this nation, forward."

"Thank you for being part of that mission and for standing firm in support of Montana jobs, Montana families, and Montana values," she added. "These aren't just policy wins, they're long-term investments in Montana's strength, resilience, and future. Thank you all for making these victories possible."

FWP hears from hunters ahead of drafting mule deer management plan

As Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks develops a new statewide Mule Deer Management Plan, several public workshops around the state provided key insight to what hunters are thinking, what things they'd like the plan to include and opinions on key concepts for the plan.

"In parts of the state, especially eastern Montana, there's a lot of concern over mule deer," said FWP Director Christy Clark. "We recognize our great state's wildlife are the public's resources, and we need to manage them for present and future generations."

These workshops weren't only important for the public to have a voice, but also critical for agency staff to hear directly from hunters who are concerned about mule deer management and have ideas for the future.

"It's important for people to know they are being heard when they voice their frustrations with the mule deer populations and how we've seen significant decline," said Quentin Kujala, FWP chief of conservation policy. "People were very willing to participate in these interactive meetings and provide invaluable feedback for us to implement in our new plan."

Nearly 150 people attended the seven workshops held at each of FWP regional headquarters offices. At the workshops, attendees rotated in small groups through interactive discussions on harvest, habitat and health management. Attendees then chose what they felt was the most important objective that arose from each session. FWP looks to use these objectives as guidelines to draft a new management plan, with several more opportunities for public input to come.

The new Mule Deer Management Plan, slated for the end of 2026, will reflect public concerns FWP has heard over the past several years, as well as the latest science and research around mule deer numbers and management. The plan will provide more comprehensive guidance for FWP as it manages mule deer and include strategies and information on management concepts that address hunting harvest, mule deer habitat conservation and herd health.

Western Montana workshop review

The meetings in western Montana were well-attended and the opinions were valuable in understanding what hunters in the area are thinking, said Liz Bradley, FWP Region 2 wildlife manager.

"We gathered a lot of good input at our meeting, combined with more thoughts that have come in since," Bradley said. "Some things that rose to the top for west-central Montana was a good discussion of the pros and cons of general license opportunities versus limited permits. Folks here also had thoughts on habitat priorities and related research needs, predators, increased hunting pressure, CWD and ways to take an even harder stance against poaching in limited permit areas."

These workshops provided a unique forum for hunters to share their thoughts, said Neil Anderson, FWP Region 1 wildlife manager.

"Effective wildlife management requires input from the public, and the attendees at the meeting provided valuable insight into their perspective on what it takes to manage for an increasing mule deer population in northwest Montana, something everyone agreed they would like to see," Anderson said.

Here are more ideas from western Montana workshops:

1. FWP should have mandatory harvest reporting.
2. FWP should reduce nonresident opportunity before reducing resident hunting opportunity.
3. FWP should find another method other than managing for low buck to doe ratios.
4. Hunters should choose the specific hunting district or region.
5. FWP should cut nonresident mule deer licenses by 50 percent, which should improve hunting quality.
6. FWP should use timber treatments and prescribed fire to improve mule deer habitat.
7. We need to expand the scope of research on migration and mortality data to consider neighboring states and root causes of mortality.
8. CWD testing should be mandatory.
9. CWD management needs to be tailored to the region and the hunting districts.
10. Use hunters and trappers to reduce predators, including lions and bears.

Shakespeare in the Parks to Perform "As You Like It" at Montana Western Montana Shakespeare in the Parks will hold a free performance of Shakespeare's "As You Like It" on Friday, August 1, 2025, at 6:00 p.m. at the University of Montana Western's Pioneer Federal Amphitheater on Legacy Plaza. Just bring your lawn chair, blanket, and a picnic dinner, and enjoy an evening of live Shakespeare!

"As You Like It" speaks to the joy and complexity of love, identity, and the transformative power of nature. This romantic comedy follows Rosalind—one of Shakespeare's most complex and beloved female characters—as she ventures into the Forest of Arden. Along the way, she encounters a colorful cast of characters and explores themes of love, transformation, and self-discovery.

"I'm so delighted to bring As You Like It to MSIP!" said Eva Breneman, Director of "As You Like It". "It's a beautiful, funny, thought-provoking play about transformation and the desire to find oneself. It contains yearning and music and one-liners. I love the nature of Rosalind and Orlando's love story and how they fall in love with each other over the very nature of love. I love the primal idea of going back to nature to find one's deepest desires—I especially think the citizens of Montana and the mountain West will understand that impulse."

Montana Shakespeare in the Parks has been bringing the timeless works of William Shakespeare to communities across Montana and neighboring states for over 50 years. Renowned for its high-quality, free outdoor performances, the program aims to make the arts accessible to all, fostering a love for theater and literature in audiences of all ages. Each summer, the cast and crew travel thousands of miles to bring Shakespeare's plays to parks, town squares, and public spaces throughout the region.

To see the full Montana Shakespeare in the Parks tour schedule, visit https://shakespeareintheparks.org.

Montana Western's School of Outreach has brought Montana Shakespeare in the Parks to the Dillon community since 1986 and is a local sponsor of the event. We would like to thank our premier local sponsor, Pioneer Federal Savings & Loan, and our additional local sponsors: McIsaac Appraisal and the UMW Foundation.

For more information, please contact School of Outreach Program Coordinator Bethanie Wharton at 406-683-7537 or bethanie.wharton@umwestern.edu.

Secretary Christi Jacobsen advocates for Montana recreationists and snowmobile community during July Land Board meeting

During Monday's monthly Land Board meeting, Montana Secretary of State Christi Jacobsen voted to approve projects on Montana's state trust lands that will benefit the state's schools and other trust beneficiaries.

Secretary Jacobsen gave the green light to a timber sale in Lincoln County, generating revenue for Montana's K-12 schools. The logging project will also promote forest health on the state trust lands.

Secretary Jacobsen motioned for the Land Board to approve improving services to areas of Montana, including replacing an outdated bridge in Sweet Grass County. Secretary Jacobsen also voted to guard against federal government attempts at closure by guaranteeing permanent access for recreationists to park and access public land in Missoula County.

"I'm proud to utilize my votes on the Land Board to generate substantial revenue for our state trust beneficiaries, especially our Montana schools," said Secretary Jacobsen. "It's important that we continue to support the timber industry's efforts to supply timber for a wide variety of projects, while also decreasing fire hazards and promoting healthy forests by managing insects and disease."

"As an avid user of our public lands, I was also proud to support protecting a parking area for recreationists to utilize year-round," Secretary Jacobsen continued, "including the addition of a snow groomer storage shed that will benefit Montanans with Scenic Montana Trails, the Missoula Snowgoers, the Missoula Nordic Club, and more. I can't wait to join you on the powder in Garnet atop Elevation Mountain!"

Bozeman Symphony Presents Free Summer Ensemble Concert in Virginia City

The Bozeman Symphony invites the public to enjoy a free summer evening concert in historic Virginia City on Saturday, Aug. 9, at The Elling House Arts and Humanities Center, 404 E. Idaho St.

From 7 to 8:15 p.m., Symphony Principal Oboist Sandy Stimson and Principal Timpanist Jeff Vick will present a unique and engaging duet for oboe/English horn and percussion. This intimate chamber performance promises a dynamic blend of melody and rhythm, highlighting the artistry and versatility of two of the Symphony's standout musicians.

This concert is part of the Symphony's Far Afield outreach initiative, which for over 30 years has brought live classical music to rural and underserved communities throughout the Greater Yellowstone region. Through Far Afield, the Bozeman Symphony seeks to inspire, engage, and connect Montanans of all ages through the shared experience of live music.

For more information and concert updates, visit bozemansymphony.org or call (406) 585-9774.
