BOOKSTORE HOSTS AUTHOR DONNA ERICKSON

The Bookstore will be hosting author Donna Erickson Saturday, August 2nd from 1:00-3:00 for a book signing. The reading will begin at 1:30 followed by a discussion. Her book Rooted at the Edge: Ranching Where the Old West and the New West Collide paints a portrait of a ranching community steeped in history, conflict, and beauty. In this narrative nonfiction work, Donna Erickson explores the hilly skirt of ground at the northern boundary of Missoula, Montana, separating the town from the wilderness beyond. The North Hills region represents the critical—and often highly personal—issues at play at the edge of many western towns. In the movie A River Runs Through It, opening credits scan across the 1950s town, the North Hills, and the wilderness beyond. The North Hills region represents the critical—and often highly personal—issues at play at the edge of many western towns. The urban-rural fringe is both valuable and vulnerable. Across the West, a way of life and a way of work are vanishing. Ranchland is simultaneously cherished by families for the lives they've made there and coveted by urban neighbors for open space. Community residents may love a place for its scenery and wildlife habitat while others wish it converted to a commercial parking lot. Complex ecological relationships can be bulldozed in a single afternoon. Rooted at the Edge conveys, in a way that statistics cannot, what's at stake when ranches at the urban fringe are threatened.

Donna Erickson was raised riding horses, putting up hay, and herding cattle at Skyline Ranch. Her family's nearly 1000-acre ranch lies in the North Hills at the edge of Missoula, Montana. As a young adult she ranched there and on other leased ranches in western Montana. Many decades later, her life as both a rancher and landscape planner gives Donna a unique perspective on ranching at the edge of a growing western town. She wrote this book to share stories about a century of change in this iconic landscape and the threats it faces going forward.

Part of the third generation at Skyline Ranch, Donna never found a niche for herself and her young family there. She left ranching in 1986. Her love of both the land and design led her to a career in landscape architecture. While pursuing a graduate degree at a Dutch university, she developed expertise in planning for rural environments and in conservation planning. Those interests stemmed directly from an early life in ranching. She writes: "On the one hand, the land is part of me; I am rooted in the North Hills. On the other, I've lived most of my adulthood away from them. This perspective helps me understand the outlooks of both ranchers and their urban neighbors." Donna was a professor of landscape architecture and planning at the University of Michigan for 16 years. Leaving academia 25 years after moving from Missoula, Donna is one of many Montana 'rebounders.'

That water cost how much???

Tyrades! by Danny Tyree

"All day I've faced a barren waste/ Without the taste of water/ Cool but over-priced water..." – Apologies to the Sons of the Pioneers.

According to the New York Times, "fine water" is starting to give fine wine a good stomping.

Yes, natural mineral water is attracting the attention of alcohol-leery consumers. It also offers competition to mass-produced purified bottled water, which supposedly has been stripped of its "character." (In the Forties we lobotomized humans. Now we lobotomize hydrogen and oxygen! When will they ever learn? When will they ever learn?)

Many brands of natural mineral water are only a few bucks more expensive than purified water; but some premium offerings sell for thousands of dollars! ("Hey! My money and I were soon parted! What's up with that???"

We're entering an era in which — if you're not keenly aware of hotel water bars, home water cellars, water sommelier programs and social-media water influencers — you're...well, all wet.

I am in awe of the connoisseurs who can genuinely distinguish between the thousands of brands of premium water. Each sip tells them a narrative of Mother Nature's magnificence. Each sip tells them of millennia of meteorological and geological collaboration. Each sip, if it's really being honest, tells them, "Putting 'I could swish and spit water all night long' on your dating profile is not the winning formula you think, dude."

On the other hand, other consumers just convince themselves that they're getting their money's worth from glorified whistle-wetters. I still remember Aunt Addie Lee visiting my parents' weekend farmhouse and gushing about the flavor and crispness of their spring water, which was obviously superior to (ugh!) municipal water.

Dad didn't have the heart to tell her that he had grown disgusted with maintaining the springhouse pump and had connected to the county water supply. It was probably enough of a shock for her not to find any Sears Roebuck catalogs in the bathroom. ("Is Mr. Whipple holding you hostage? Blink twice for 'yes.'")

Some health-conscious water enthusiasts declare "the more the merrier" when it comes to the myriad minerals contained in water from far-flung locales. I would advise studying your unique deficiencies and allergies before taking the plunge. With my luck, I could erect a new Stonehenge with my kidney stones.

Some fans want local mineral water to become part of the hyperlocal farm-to-table ethos. They want people to sit down to a meal and contemplate "the journey of the water." Sure, I like a good travelogue; but I'd rather watch a VHS of "The Water Boy" than listen to a lecture about the water residing in the bladder of a virgin alpaca or seeping through the fossilized remains of a Neanderthal named Gorak Shouldapatedntedfire.

I hope we're not setting ourselves up for long-term trouble as we encourage people to become addicted to exotic water. I mean, if some foreign enemy knocks out our electric/communications grid and civilization collapses, I'm not seeking help from an effete snob who craves effervescent water that bubbled up from Shangri-La. I'm hanging with the redneck who grew up drinking from a hot garden hose, if you know what I mean.

One of my friends said everyone should decide their own appropriate thirst-quencher. I'll drink to that — if I can get loan approval for the water.

"References? How about Mr. Whipple? The Ty-D-Bol Man? Natural Artesian Kool-Aid Man?"

ADVANCED IMAGING TECHNOLOGY

at Barrett Hospital & HealthCare

Superior imaging means faster, more accurate diagnoses—to provide peace of mind, and detect issues sooner so that they're easier to treat and beat. At Barrett Hospital & HealthCare, our state-of-the-art imaging technology rivals the services at larger healthcare systems so you can access the diagnostics you need where it's closer for you and your family. Get the whole picture of your health when—and where—you need it.

To learn more, talk to your provider at Barrett Hospital & HealthCare or visit barrethospital.org/diagnostic-imaging.

Where People Come First. Always.

3D Mammography

Detects 20-65% more invasive breast cancers compared to 2D alone and is the only mammogram FDA approved as superior for women with dense breasts and clinically proven to reduce unnecessary callbacks by up to 40%.

CT or CAT scan

State-of-the-art diagnostics allows providers to view precise, detailed, 3D images of multiple areas in the body.

MRI

Wide bore scanner combines comfort with superior imaging capabilities. Providers receive clearer, more accurate images. And who says an MRI has to be uncomfortable? At Barrett, we have a large, dedicated scanning room on site to make it easier for our patients who suffer from claustrophobia.
