Mountain View Cemetery- Wind

With the high winds, a lot of flowers were blown away from the headstones up at the Cemetery. I am hoping to reach the community and get those with flowers on headstones to come check and try to find the flowers that go with their loved one's headstones over the weekend. Starting on Monday I am going to start picking up the flowers that have been blown away. I will hold onto them for a month, but if they are not claimed will dispose of them.

Please contact Logun Norris, Cemetery Sexton, Mountain View Cemetery - Dillon, MT (406) 660 - 4246

Letter to the Editor

Southwest Montana is built on hard work, local pride, and the small businesses that keep our communities vibrant. Nowhere is that more evident than in Virginia City and Nevada City, where concessionaires, shop owners, and seasonal workers form the backbone of our local economy. These are not just businesses—they are families, neighbors, and community partners who help preserve our heritage while welcoming thousands of visitors each year.

In recent weeks, many of these concessionaires have faced uncertainty as the Department of Commerce has moved forward with contract terminations and proposed renewals that lack transparency, negotiation, and clear justification. As the Representative for House District 69, I have taken these concerns seriously. I have conducted outreach with concessionaires, local officials, members of the Montana Heritage Commission, Department of Commerce officials, and staff within the Governor's Office to understand the full scope of what is happening and to advocate for a fair, responsible process.

Their concerns are valid. When state agencies make decisions that affect livelihoods, local economies, and the long-term health of our historic communities, those decisions must be grounded in fairness, accountability, and open dialogue. That has not happened here.

I stand firmly with the concessionaires and the people of Southwest Montana who are asking for a reasonable pause—time to review the facts, negotiate in good faith, and develop a defensible fair market value for each contract. Doing this work up front is not only responsible, it is essential to protecting the economic vitality of our region.

Southwest Montana deserves a process that respects its people, its history, and its future. I will continue to advocate for transparency, collaboration, and a fair outcome for all involved.

Rep. Ken Walsh, House District 69

Attorney General Knudsen requests DOJ to investigate China-linked energy activist organizations

Montana Attorney General Austin Knudsen led a 26-state coalition of attorneys general requesting the United States Department of Justice investigate two China-linked climate activist organizations for potential violations of the Foreign Agents Registration Act (FARA), which requires any organization, political party, individual who collects money, or in the interest of a foreign principal to register with U.S. Department of Justice.

In a letter sent Tuesday to U.S. Attorney General Pam Bondi and Assistant Attorney General for National Security John Eisenberg, Attorney General Knudsen stated his concerns with Energy Foundation China (EF-China) and Center for Climate Integrity (CCI) as they have close ties to China but failed to register under FARA. Both groups are registered as U.S. based 501(c)(3) non-profit organizations, and are participating in political activities in the United States aimed at destroying the country's energy sector.

"Montana is a proud energy state, and I will not stand idly by when there are organizations, especially those linked to China, attempting to undermine our energy sector," Attorney General Knudsen said. "China is our greatest adversary and I'm asking Attorney General Bondi to investigate these organizations to ensure our energy is protected from foreign influence."

EF-China and CCI appear to be receiving millions of dollars in grants from a Chinese Communist Party (CCP) aligned charity in the United Kingdom called the Children's Investment Fund Foundation (CIFF) making them an agent of foreign principal under FARA. EF-China and CCI spend money they receive from CIFF on litigation, lobbying, and public relations campaigns to attack the U.S. energy sector and promote radical environmental policy pushing anti U.S. oil-and-gas agendas.

Additionally, EF-China has several employees who are CCP members and former Chinese government officials. The organization appears to be primarily located in Beijing where most leadership and staff work. On tax filings, EF-China claims its "headquarters" are in San Francisco, but it's part of a coworking space within an office building.

Attorneys general from Iowa, Alabama, Alaska, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Indiana, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Virginia, West Virginia, and Wyoming also joined the lawsuit.

Are you expecting the Tooth Fairy for Christmas?

Tyrades! by Danny Tyree

Most of us take it for granted that December should be a month for festive cheer, not wailing and gnashing of teeth.

So I went for my semiannual dental cleaning with expectations that it would be the customary quick "See ya again in six months" affair.

Unfortunately, at some point, my hygienist uttered the ominous words, "That doesn't look right."

It wasn't the words or the additional scans that convinced me of the gravity of the situation. It was the echo effect in the elusive abscess that had been squatting in my mouth. ("…look right…look right… look right…")

I've kept my WaterPik handy and religiously "Take Aim against cavities," but sometimes bone level decreases just happen. And this particular happening blindsided me, as in "Writer got run over by an x-ray/Walking home from our house Christmas Eve…"

Seriously, why shouldn't I have been discombobulated by the diagnosis in this joyful season? Scrooge's line wasn't "Are there no prisons? Are there no forceps?" And the old miser was never visited by the Ghost of Root Canals Yet To Come.

I trusted my dentist, so I didn't stare overly long at the X-rays. I'm squeamish looking at cavities, dry sockets and other imperfections – a fact that my wife and son exploit with sadistic glee. (They could have saved medieval monarchs a fortune on iron maidens, racks and other torture devices. "Wanna see me wiggle a bicuspid, heretic?")

I was referred to the same oral surgeon who has performed various procedures for my wife and mother. To my relief, he recommended extracting only one tooth, not the impacted wisdom tooth behind it. (Yes, I still have four impacted wisdom teeth, as well as my tonsils, adenoids, appendix and bittersweet memories of my umbilical cord.)

I'm not sure why wisdom teeth enjoy such notoriety. Give an occasional thought to the neighboring "Let's Google it" teeth or the "What could possibly go wrong?" teeth. But I digress.

I made do with a local anesthetic because (a) my wife assured me the numbing would be sufficient and (b) I was afraid general anesthesia would get Secretary of War Pete Hegseth riled up. ("General Anesthesia? Isn't he the slacker with the woke double amputation? I'm transferring him to Lower Slobbovia!")

The stubborn tooth required a tremendous amount of pressure, a drill and removal in two sections; but I came through the ordeal with flying colors. And by flying colors, I mean, "There goes another blood-red gauze pad! He shoots! He scores! He remembers not to drink through a straw for a couple of days! The crowd goes wild!"

I don't miss the tooth, so I'm not thinking "implant." That's like saying, "I lost my brother-in-law. Better get an artificial replacement!"

I even learned why teeth are referred to as "choppers." You need a medevac helicopter after you see how little your dental insurance pays!

I have managed to roll with the punches and regain my yuletide momentum, but I'm nervous about what other holidays may be disrupted by medical issues.

Will Valentine's Day be marred by Cupid's arrow testing the limits of my tetanus vaccination?

Will Arbor Day wind up remembered as Splinter-palooza?

But Easter is the one that really worries me.

"Peter Cottontail, I don't care if you go hopping down the Bunny Trail – but you'd better hop my spleen right back over here, mister!"

Also on Monday, DMS Band and Choir will be performing for their Winter concert at 7:00 pm in the Parkview Gym. Come and listen to the lovely music that the students and Mrs. Kidd have been working tirelessly on!

On Tuesday, December 23, the Winter dress-up theme is dress in your pajamas! As a reminder, this day is a half-day. So, this theme is perfect for being comfy on our last day before winter break!

The Candy Cane Sales fundraiser for the Beaverhead Animal Shelter was a huge success! The DMS Students and Teachers gave generously and we raised $706!
